Lease Bill's Opponents Meet to Map Restrictions

Walsh, at Conference In Hiram Johnson's Office, Would Forbid Naval Transfers

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Facing certain passage of the aid to Britain bill, Senatorial critics of the measure met late yesterday in bipartisan conference to organize opposition and discuss possible restricting amendments.

Included in the group that convened in the Capitol offices of Archisolationist Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, was Democratic Chairman David I. Walsh of the Naval Affairs Committee. Although he did not commit himself, his presence at the meeting was taken to indicate support of further limitations on Executive powers.

Asked if he would offer an amendment to the bill to prohibit the President from giving away any part of the Navy, Senator Walsh simply said, "Somebody is going to offer it." The Massachusetts Democrat indicated strong agreement with Secretary Knox's stand against divesting the Navy of any more ships.

Senator Johnson said after the meeting that amendments had received only a "cursory" discussion. It was reported that those mentioned included a prohibition against American convoys to Britain, and, in more definite terms than the bill now contains, a prohibition against sending American merchant vessels to belligerent countries.

Hemisphere Limit Studied

It appeared unlikely that any such proposals would be accepted by Administration forces; but one projected change receiving considerable attention was the amendment to limit countries that could be aided under the bill to those invaded or threatened with invasion.

Another proposal that will be supported by some Democrats who favor the bill as a whole is the amendment explicitly stating that the bill does not authorize sending forces outside the Western Hemisphere or American possessions.

Those at Meeting

Attending the meeting in Senator Johnson's office were Democratic Senators Walsh, Bulow, of South Dakota; Gillette, of Iowa; Wheeler, of Montana; Clark, of Idaho, and Clark, of Missouri, and Republicans Johnson Brooks, of Illinois; Willis of Indiana; Tobey, of New Hampshire; Capper, of Kansas; Taft, of Ohio; Shipstead, of Minnesota, and Nye, of North Dakota and Progressive La Follette, of Wisconsin.

Administration strategists were confident yesterday that opposition

Wells Reveals He Sent Missing $417,000 to Friend

The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced last night that the reported disappearance of $417,000 in cash from the Star Island Home of Roe Wells, near Miami, had been solved with a signed statement from Wells that he sent the money to a friend for safekeeping.

The money was reported missing by Mrs. Wells last Tuesday. She also said jewels worth $200,000 had disappeared.

The FBI said the jewels had been found intact, mislaid in the Wells residence.

Senate Passes New Debt Limit Unanimously

Acts by Voice Vote After 3-Hour Debate on $65,000,000,000 Top

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday gave unanimous approval to legislation to increase the public debt limit to $65,000,000,000 and remove from future issues of Federal securities the present exemption from Federal taxation.

The bill providing a $16,000,000,000 expansion of the Government's borrowing authority, the greatest single increase in the debt limit ever granted, was passed on a voice vote after three hours of debate. Three minor amendments must be approved by the House before the bill goes to the White House.

Administration supporters, as well as critics of New Deal spending policies, warned that Government borrowing alone cannot meet the Nation's swiftly mounting defense bill.

"We now have a psychology in the United States which is favorable to an immensely increased tax burden," said Senator Brown (Democrat), of Michigan, floor manager for the debt-limit bill.

Taft Charges Buck Passing

Increases in the "middle bracket" income taxes are almost inevitable, Brown said, while Congress must at least consider a general manufacturers' sales tax.

"We will have to reach into forms of taxation which, theoretically, may not be entirely just," he told the Senate. "We've got to raise the money."

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, criticized Treasury Secretary Morgenthau for asserting before the House Ways and Means Committee the need for new taxes without offering specific proposals.

"When it comes to recommending unpopular taxes he passes the buck to Congress," Taft said.

Taft urged an effort to finance all

Contracts Let By Army Face House Inquiry

War Dept. Adviser Admits His Firm Got Government Order

Revelation that a War Department adviser drawing a $6,500 Government salary also is sharing in a Government contract fee of $1,114,700 yesterday brought plans for a House committee inquiry into letting of Army contracts.

Francis Blossom, partner in the firm of Sanderson and Porter, of New York, told the Military Affairs Committee he is a member of the advisory committee which considers construction contracts for the Chief of Construction of the Quartermaster Corps. At the same time, it was brought out, Blossom's firm has a contract under which it receives a $1,114,700 fixed fee for building a shell loading plant at Ellwood, Ill.

Closely Questioned

While the witness said the advisory committee had had no part in the awarding of the contract, and that he had told Secretary of War Stimson he would not participate in any discussion regarding his own firm in connection with letting Government work, he was closely questioned by committee members.

Following his testimony the committee held an executive session and Chairman May (Democrat), of Kentucky, later announced the investigation into "full details" of contract awarding.

Blossom said that when he took the position here, upon invitation of Brig. Gen. C. D. Hartman, then Chief of Construction, he did not understand that he was to receive pay. However, he began receiving salary checks in December and they have since continued.

He insisted he knew nothing whatever as to the details of the contract.

The witness said he had been helping to build up the company for 45 years, that he holds a 9 per cent interest in it, and felt he was entitled to share in the profits.

Friend to Join Knox

Ralph Austin Bard, a Republican businessman and close friend of Secretary Knox, was nominated yesterday by President Roosevelt to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, succeeding Lewis Compton.

Disclosure that Compton, who has been ill for some time, resigned January 10, accompanied the nomination. Compton had been invited by Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey to become State finance commissioner. They were associates when Edison was Secretary of the Navy, until his resignation last year.

Bard has been prominent in Chicago business circles but has never been a Government official.

Born in Cleveland July 29, 1884, he attended Princeton University and began his business career as a salesman for Eversz & Co., dealers in investment securities in Chicago.

He is now president of Bard & Co., a Chicago investment firm, and also of the Wahl Eversharp Pen Co. In addition he is director of the American Shipbuilding Co. and the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Co.

In 1907 he married Mary Hancock Spear, of Chicago. They have two sons and one daughter.

Compton's letter of resignation, made public yesterday, gave this explanation for his action:

"It is entirely possible that the Secretary of the Navy may want one of his own choice appointed to the position I now hold. I wish to avoid any possible embarrassment to you in any situation. Therefore, I tender herewith my resignation. . . ."

President Roosevelt accepted the resignation "with the deepest personal regret" in a letter dated Thursday.

Mexico Gets Bill to Reopen Her Oil Fields

Camacho Presents Measure Designed To Attract Foreign Investments Again

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—President Manuel Avila Camacho today submitted to the special session of Congress a bill which would reopen Mexico's rich oil resources to private exploitation and apparently clear the way for the resumption of operations here by the United States, British and Dutch companies expropriated by former President Cardenas in 1938.

The Presidential message accompanying the proposed legislation, however, made it clear the government intended to safeguard its financial interest in any exploitation of its petroleum fields.

Explaining his decision to prepare modifications in the constitution which affirms that all Mexico's natural resources belong to the nation, the President said he sought that "amplitude and flexibility required for the best stimulation of private initiative."

Attractive Leases

The President, who pledged opportunities for United States capital during his campaign, told Congress:

"Such modifications are designed to make attractive the leasing of petroleum fields from the nation, placing such leases upon a financial basis more in accordance with the realities of our capital market, with the essentially speculative nature of the enterprise and with accepted business standards.

"This, however, without prejudicing the fundamental point of view of the law that the nation, as owner of the oil, is the one who first of all should receive benefits resulting from the exploitation.

State to Keep Control

The government would participate in, and control, any privately financed companies that might be established by foreigners, the President said, to conserve their semi-official public utility character.

"In this manner it will be feasible to establish, in intimate contact and cooperation with the public petroleum institutions already existing, a perfect coordination betwen the private undertaking and the activity of the state which will be translated into the development regular, coherent and harmonious of the industry," he added.

The petroleum companies have not insisted on outright ownership being restored to them, but have demanded clearly defined and ample management rights and that the government share under a lease relationship which would guarantee it a fixed percentage of profits.

Some such formula appeared possible under the projected law.

Seventeen United States, British and Dutch companies owned the properties expropriated March 18, 1938, by the Cardenas decree. The companies set valuation at more than $400,000,000, a figure which the Mexican government called excessive.

Bridges Arrested As Revolutionary On Warrant of U.S.

San Francisco, Feb. 14 (AP).—Harry Bridges was arrested today on a Justice Department warrant charging him with having been a member of an organization advocating violent overthrow of the United States Government.

The West Coast longshoremen's leader, an Australian, was cited to appear March 31 for his second deportation hearing.

Bridges, cleared of Communist connections in a Labor Department hearing in 1939, was released on $3,000 bond.

The new hearing will be on what Attorney General Jackson described as "new and additional evidence" compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in a 2,500-page report.

America, Australia, Britain, Dutch Indies Move as Roosevelt Receives Nomura

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt said yesterday that relations with Japan "cause concern," as evidence accumulated that the four democracies with stakes in the Pacific are cooperating to curb Tokyo's threat to extend the "new order" southward toward Singapore and the Dutch East Indies.

A feeling of disquiet over the European and Asiatic situations swept official circles here, causing Senator Wiley (Republican), of Wisconsin, to propose that the Senate call Secretary of State Hull and other high officials to report on world conditions to a closed session.

There was no Administration assurance that Wiley's proposal would be accepted, and the next move in the diplomatic joust appeared to be up to Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the new Japanese Ambassador, who presented his credentials to President Roosevelt in a comparatively brief ceremony yesterday.

Aid for Philippines Approved

Congress evinced its concern about dangers to American safety from the Far East when the House Naval Affairs Committee gave swift approval to a "junior lend-lease bill" for the Philippines, permitting the United States to furnish naval equipment, but not ships, to the islands. Seeking more information on a $186,115,000 authorization bill for fortifications at Guam, Samoa and other key Pacific sites, the committee called Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, to give secret testimony today on the Samoan project.

Joint pressure on Japan this week by the United States, Great Britain, Australia and the Netherlands was revealed meanwhile by competent authorities to be part of a definite policy of democratic cooperation.

Aroused by Japanese political and military concessions in Indo-China and Japanese support of Thailand ambitions, the four democratic countries indicated their concern when the United States again urged its citizens in China and Japan to return home, the Australian war cabinet met to consider what it called a situation of "utmost gravity," the Netherlands East Indies government ordered its ships in the Pacific into neutral ports, and Great Britain told its Ambassador in Tokyo to remind the Japanese government of what it called Italy's "mistake" in entering the war at the behest of Germany.

White House Ceremony

This pattern of veiled struggle between the four democracies and the three-power Axis, of which Japan is a partner, was the background for the White House ceremony yesterday when Ambassador Nomura presented his credentials.

The one-eyed envoy, a grey-haired naval veteran, was accompanied to the White House by Secretary Hull.

After the call, Nomura said that he and the President, who are old friends, exchanged reminiscences

Survivors Tell How Six Ships Went Down Fighting Nazis

100 Rescued From Convoy Attacked By Warship Are Put Ashore at Madeira

By International News Service

Funchal, Portuguese Madeira Island, Feb. 14.—The story of a dramatic sea battle, in which six armed merchant ships—their auxiliary guns blazing to the last—were sent down under the fire of a large German warship, unfolded tonight after more than 100 survivors were landed at Funchal.

The engagement, lasting half an hour, was fought early yesterday when the high-speed Nazi naval vessel, believed to be one of Germany's 10,000-ton pocket battleships, attacked a big British convoy steaming toward England.

Taken by surprise in the dark northeast of here, every ship in the convoy vigorously returned the fire of the German surface raider which, from a comparatively long range, poured tons of explosives into the midst of the merchant vessels.

Though their fire-power and speed were hopelessly outclassed by those of the Nazi warship, the convoy's vessels nevertheless gallantly continued their cannonading until the German raider broke off the engagement and sped away.

How many of the officers, seamen and gunners aboard the convoyed ships perished was not known. Four survivors brought to Funchal required hospital care.

(In Berlin the high command announced 14 ships in the convoy, laden to capacity with millions of dollars' worth of war materials bound for England, presumably from America, were sent to the bottom under the German surface naval attack. The vessels thus sunk aggregated about 82,000 tons displacement, the Germans claimed.)

Survivors related that some of the half dozen ships sunk continued firing even after being hit by giant projectiles from the battleship's 11-inch guns. True to tradition of the British navy and merchant marine, they went down fighting.

Ships that had not been hit dispersed and picked up survivors who had managed to take to life rafts or leaped overboard.

One of the ships sunk was believed to have been of Greek registry.

Athens Says Fascists In Central Albania Face Encirclement

By J. Reilly O'Sullivan
Associated Press Staff Writer

Athens, Feb. 14.—The Greeks were reported officially tonight to have broken through Italian defenses at many points in an offensive along the entire Albanian front which was ushered in by 48 hours of almost continuous artillery bombardment.

The British air force also prepared the way with large-scale bombings which the R. A. F. called the "heaviest and most successful" yet carried out in Albania.

The night GHQ communique said 200 prisoners had been taken, that the Italians had suffered very heavy losses and that many automatic arms and materiel of "all descriptions" were taken.

Crete's barren coast was bombed by the Italians, without result, the ministry of home security said.

(Columbia Broadcasting System reported hearing the Greek radio announce the capture of 7,000 Italians at one point in the central sector. The Associated Press was without any confirmation of this figure.)

Italians Face Encirclement

Greek gains in the central sector were described as of particular strategic importance, with Italian forces holding the region in danger of encirclement.

Sun to Banish Fog, Rain Today

Fog and rain that grounded airline traffic yesterday and made a Norfolk & Washington steamboat 10 hours late getting into Washington are expected to break away today. The Weather Bureau last night predicted fair weather and slowly rising temperatures.

The Norfolk-Washington steamer Northland, due at 7 a. m., ran into fog at the mouth of the Potomac early Thursday night and Capt. Edward A. Eaton cut the speed to 3 miles an hour. It docked here at 5:35 p. m. yesterday.

Rain last night kept East-West planes down at Washington Airport. Flights to the South, however, were operating.

City of Sweethearts

Love Has Field Day in D. C.; Valentines Swamp Postmen

Oceans of love spilled over Washington yesterday, in various ways.

There were guys and girls that sent their girls and guys singing telegrams, whose contents were a single word, oft repeated, to the tune of "Mary Had a Little Lamb," or "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

The word was love, love, love . . .

"Such sentiment!" remarked a woman telegraph employe who described these musical antics. Then in a voice soft with wonder and bright with sympathy, she said, "Oh, it's grand."

Telegrams, she said, were "piled to the roof," and business was "unusually heavy."

A male spokesman for another telegraph office reported mystically on Valentine business. "It's been rather exciting; we've had lots of it."

Love, he said, did not produce as much business as the Christmas spirit, and he added that it was difficult to estimate the extra employes needed for Valentine messages, "because we're calling in extras all the time to take care of national defense business."

Washington's postmen literally couldn't carry their bundles of love and kisses. Officials assigned extra "relay" trucks to help the postmen haul their loads from their offices and distribute batches of the mail at storage boxes along their routes.

Postmaster Vincent Burke reported that letters mailed here in the 24 hours before Valentine's Day totaled 1,893,000, the heaviest rush since Christmas, and about 30 per cent of these were for local delivery. That's nearly 500,000 letters more than normal, he said.

Turks Stand Fast

By the Associated Press

A Belgrade source close to Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic said last night that Yugoslavia would accede to Adolf Hitler's wishes after the return today of her statesmen from a conference with the Fuehrer.

The country is expected to accept what were described as comparatively favorable terms in order to keep out of active warfare. These terms, while not yet known, are expected to call for active participation by Yugoslavia in Hitler's "new order" for Europe.

Driven Into Corner

Informed sources interpreted the Yugoslavs' journey to Germany as meaning that the government of Yugoslavia had been driven into a corner as a result of Bulgaria's bowing to German wishes and Russia's nonintervention policy in the Balkans.

An informant said that the Regency Council in a few days would discuss the terms brought back from Germany and then formulate Yugoslavia's answer.

Beyond the bare statement that the Yugoslav Premier, Dragisa Cvetkovic, and his foreign minister, Aleksander Cincar-Markovic, had talked "in friendly spirit" with Hitler and German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop at Berchtesgaden, German authorities in Berlin remained silent.

But from well-informed quarters in Berlin came declarations that Yugoslavia was approaching "vital decisions."

Turkey Ready to Fight

(Outside of Germany these "vital decisions" were assumed to involve Yugoslavia's consideration of Nazi requests for permission to move troops through that country to threaten Greece.)

Meanwhile, Turkey served notice through her controlled press today that she stands ready to fight in the Balkan crisis because she cannot be disinterested toward any German invasion of Bulgaria.

A British military mission completed an inspection of Turkey's defenses on the Bulgarian frontier and Hitler stepped up the preparations of his Balkan army of 600,000 men in Rumania.

Obviously inspired, the press declarations from Istanbul were interpreted in Balkan capitals as

Over Our Shoulder

a preview of the Sunday Post

TRITEST thing to tell a newspaperman is "Oh, you must meet such interesting people." But trite or not, it's true. Post reporters, photographers and feature writers met a lot of interesting people within the last day or so, and make it possible for you to meet them, too—in the columns of Sunday's Post.

Willkie

Mr. Willkie, for example. If you weren't one of the lucky few who jammed into the Senate committee chamber you'll know what it was like when you see the front page of "Pictures." The Post roto magazine, this week. And other interesting people in "Pictures" are some Washington bachelors, shown living alone and claiming they like it.

Walter Krivitsky's another. Former secret agent, later a Russian general, finally a refugee from the OGPU—why did he commit suicide here? Eddie Folliard thinks the answer may be the same as that to Krivitsky's own question in his recent magazine articles: "Why Did They Confess?" Here's a fascinating problem and some ingenious speculation as to the solution. Read Folliard's piece Sunday.

Krivitsky

They say that long fingernails are worn in Hollywood to help actresses—and actors, too—claw their way up to stardom. Yet here's a man who refuses to let himself be starred! It's Thomas Mitchell, 24 years an actor, recipient of an Academy Award. Meet him for yourself in Sunday's Post, where you'll also find Hedda Hopper introducing you to a lot of new Hollywood "finds" with a few notes on where these "unknowns" sprang from. Louella Parsons gives you the story of her Hollywood-London phone conversation with Vivien Leigh. While Nelson Bell tells you something about John Barton, currently celebrating his fiftieth anniversary on the stage—and his fourth visit to Washington with "Tobacco Road."

Mitchell

Townsend

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's morning musicales have been famous for 18 years. Now it is announced that this season will be the last. But Hope Ridings Miller got a confession that perhaps it's only au revoir and not goodby. Meet one of Washington's really individual and interesting women in this society section article Sunday.

If Nazis Sank U. S. Ships

If Hitler carries out his threat to torpedo American ships carrying supplies to England—would you vote to go to war? That's the poser Gallup asked the voters, and Sunday's Post brings you the answer.

Problem for Mothers

Suppose you had just heard your daughter was thinking of leaving her husband and baby to run off with another man. And suppose—long ago—you had faced just that temptation yourself. Would you open the hidden secrets of your heart to your daughter? "With Love From Mother" tells the story of what happened when Janet's daughter seemed about to step into a pit which Janet had once dug for herself. An unusually absorbing Sunday Post novel—complete in tomorrow's issue.

Comix? Nix!

Since newspapermen always abbreviate "pictures" to "pix," you'd think "comix" would have caught on. Perhaps it just isn't smart to abbreviate comics—anyhow there's nothing abbreviated about the Sunday Post's comic section; in fact, it's the biggest in Washington. Your favorite daily Post comics, plus a lot of new comic characters. More interesting people for you to meet—in Sunday's Post.

British Expect Drive at Suez With Invasion

By Drew Middleton,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 14.—Fear of a world-wide conflagration, involving a German invasion of Britain timed with thrusts of Suez and Gibraltar and a Japanese grab for Singapore, increased among diplomatic and military authorities tonight.

Invasion of this island remained the No. 1 consideration in discussions of a possible plan of grandiose proportions to seize at one swoop three of the world's most strategic positions—Gibraltar, Suez and Singapore—while the German army and air force try to break England.

Despite continuous and growing alarms in the Balkans and tension in the Far East, Britons remember well that all surface signs pointed to a Nazi thrust toward southeastern Europe just before Adolf Hitler launched his overpowering drive into Norway and through the Lowlands and France last April and May.

Eye Kept on Home Front

The gradual tightening of British censorship is viewed by foreign observers as one sign that the British are not allowing the present clamor in the Balkans to divert their attention from the perils of an invasion of England.

Not since Nazi bombers hammered Coventry and submarines ranged the North Atlantic in packs last fall has it been so difficult to assess—for publication—the British Empire's position.

Other indications that Britain expects to deal with plenty of trouble are the army's renewed interest in invasion "problems," the swift conversion of American-built fighting planes from the packing case to the firing line, and repeated warnings from statesmen and soldiers.

Expects Use of Gas

The public has been told by Prime Minister Churchill of the gas threat. There is a general feeling that the Germans will use gas, but only against military objectives such as airdromes and coastal fortifications.

There are many responsible observers who believe the Luftwaffe's comparative inactivity recently is due to preparations for a continuous air battle, which will make all previous ones look like play. They compare the lull to that on the Western Front before the big German drive last spring.

In the next few days British householders will receive a government leaflet telling what to do in event of invasion. They will be told again to stay at home and not fill the roads with refugees. Martial law may be declared when invasion comes.

The first German blows are expected from the air, with attacks on airdromes by parachute troops and gas. At the same time Junkers troop-carrying aircraft, each with 20 fully equipped infantrymen, may try pancake landings near airdromes and vital communications centers.

Other Thrusts

It seems generally agreed in responsible quarters that the German plan is to synchronize with this blow at Britain a drive at the Suez through Turkey, after consolidation of the position in Bulgaria, and an attack on Gibraltar, possibly through Spain.

There is little doubt in these quarters that a Turkish attack on Germans in Bulgaria would benefit the British by opening a new front in the Balkans, but there appears to be little hope of this developing.

As Japanese pressure southward strengthens, informed quarters agree that the Japanese will be met with "firmness" and determination to preserve Britain's key position in the Far East, Singapore. Most informed sources say Pacific tension is increasing, but that there is "no real crisis" as yet in the Far East.

Berlin Expects Yugoslavia to Yield

Turkey's "no" to Axis efforts to win a pledge from Ankara not to fight in the event the Nazis make their expected thrust through Bulgaria to get to Greece and the Mediterranean.

Other signs of the mounting uneasiness in southeastern Europe were seen in a run on clothing stores (perhaps evidence of a fear of war inflation) in Sofia, Bulgarian capital, and a Greek call for additional reservsits. As a result of the wild buying, the Bulgarian commissariat of supplies closed the Sofia shops for three days.

Activity of German troops in Rumania—many of them massed along the Danube opposite the Bulgarian border—was given additional significance by the fact that the Danube now has opened to navigation. Although there still were ice floes, unseasonal warmth started traffic a month ahead of schedule.

British Leave Bucharest

In Bucharest long lines of German military convoys rumbled through the blacked-out streets overnight while Nazi and Rumanian fighter planes patrolled the skies.

Members of the British diplomatic staff in Bucharest, leaving as a result of their government's severance of diplomatic relations with Rumania, arrived with their baggage at the Black Sea port of Constanta with the hope of sailing today for Istanbul. One hundred and forty-six Britons and members of Allied diplomatic missions were aboard the special ten-car train.

Supplementing its military preparations, the Turkish government moved to conserve the nation's wheat and other grains by ordering that all surplus stocks be listed with local authorities within the next five days.

Blockade Extended

At the same time, Britain announced that beginning today German-dominated Rumania would be regarded as "territory under enemy occupation" and warned traders that all goods of Rumanian origin or ownership would be liable to seizure.

A ministry of economic warfare statement said the Balkan kingdom, with which Britain severed diplomatic relations last Monday, would be regarded as "an enemy destination for contraband purposes."

This action followed by a few hours a Board of Trade ban on trading with Rumania. It was made a punishable offense "to have commercial, financial or other intercourse or dealings with or for the benefit of any person in that territory."

about World War days, when the President was Assistant Secretary of the Navy and the Ambassador was Japanese naval attache here.

They merely touched on problems pending between the Japanese and American Governments.

The letters of greeting which they exchanged, but did not read to each other, referred with "concern" to relations between the two countries.

Nomura's letter to Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The recent developments in Japanese-American relations have unfortunately been such as to cause considerable concern on both sides of the ocean."

Nomura said that better Japanese-American relations were needed and he added:

"Toward that end I am resolved to do all that I can."

He asked President Roosevelt's cooperation in that undertaking.

In the customary formal reply, the President echoed:

"There are, as you have stated, developments in the relations between the United States and Japan which cause concern."

Mr. Roosevelt said he was glad to hear that the Japanese envoy would work for improvement of feeling between the two nations and he assured Nomura that American officials would help him carry out his duties.

Mr. Roosevelt closed by asking that Nomura convey to the Emperor of Japan "my hope for his continued health and well being."

Administration leaders expressed doubt that Senator Wiley's motion for a closed Senate session to hear an official explanation of the foreign situation would receive approval.

Wiley said that in connection with consideration of the lend-lease bill the Senate should have a full report on world conditions from high officials, with special reference to the Near and Far East.

"Are Adolf Hitler and his associates, Japan and Mussolini, attempting another war of nerves?" the Republican Senator asked, or is there a synchronized, coordinated movement in process whereby when Hitler opens his spring offensive in the Balkans, Japan will attempt some move against British interests and perhaps against our own interests?"

The House Naval Affairs Committee considering the request for funds to fortify Samoa and Guam, before deciding to call Admiral Stark, heard an expert assertion that air power gives Samoa an important place in the "strategic picture" of the Pacific.

This statement was made by Capt. Harry W. Hill, representing the Navy, who outlined plans for spending $8,100,000 on various improvements, including bomb shelters.

Hill said that Samoa, which lies far south of the present main fleet base at Hawaii, would be the southwestern point of the Navy's Pacific patrol line starting at Dutch Harbor, Alaska.

The committe also heard Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, argue for an appropriation of $4,700,000 to develop the far Pacific island of Guam.

Nazis Drop Chute Bombs on Bengasi

By Edward Kennedy,
Associated Press Staff Writer

With British Forces in Bengasi, Libya, Feb. 13 (delayed).—German bombers, resorting to a new wrinkle, dropped huge bombs attached to parachutes in a two-hour raid last night on this British occupied port in Italian Libya.

One of these projectiles wrecked a vacant building, the blast shattering windows and blowing out doors a quarter of a mile away. Another, exploding on rocks in shallow water near the quayside, made a splash which rose 300 feet and drenched streets several blocks from the harbor. Shipping was undamaged.

At dawn today dive-bombers repeatedly strafed the city and nearby air fields with machine-gun fire. Scant damage was inflicted on the air fields, in sharp contrast to the destruction caused by British raids on the same fields before capturing them.

Over both the air fields at Berka and Benina are strewn wreckage of scores of Axis craft, including two German planes.

(The parachuted missiles may have been land mines, dropped in this manner to break their fall and prevent them from burying themselves by their tremendous weight.)

All the Nazi raids resulted in no casualties as the civilian population was warned in time to take shelter. They caused expressions of resentment among the 7,000 Italians—for the most part anti-Fascist or lukewarm toward Mussolini—who remain here. Ardent Fascists left with the fleeing Italian troops.

Australians Told to Meet Crisis Calmly

By the Associated Press

Sydney, Feb. 14.—The Australian government announced today after a war council meeting that this commonwealth and her people "can and will face any crisis calmly and with deliberate purpose."

With Australian chiefs of staff and Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, Britain's Far Eastern commander in chief, the war cabinet considered a Pacific situation which, only yesterday, the government described as of the "utmost gravity."

Today there was a calmer atmosphere. Acting Prime Minister A. W. Fadden said the war cabinet reviewed the Australian defense program in the light of the latest international news. He asserted the warning of yesterday was issued so that everyone would realize how necessary it was to place the nation's interests first.

Japan's consul general, moreover, took it upon himself to issue a statement saying he could see nothing to justify "the alarming news" reflected in yesterday's press.

New Zealand on Alert

In Auckland, New Zealand, Prime Minister Peter Fraser said that New Zealand's war cabinet was giving hourly attention to the situation in the Pacific Ocean, which he said showed continuing deterioration of the utmost gravity.

In Shanghai, a Japanese military spokesman acknowledged "the Far Eastern situation is becoming more difficult," but he added: "Japan won't take any steps to stir up the waves of the Pacific."

Other observers there traced the Australian concern to reports of steadily increasing Japanese pressure toward the South Pacific, including the Netherlands East Indies and the Singapore area, as well as the alleged supplying of Nazi raiders by the Japanese.

In Saigon, French Indo-China, Japanese journalists said that Japanese warships were patrolling the whole Indo-China coast and even the Thailand shore as far as Bankok as a precautionary measure. No Japanese official would confirm this, however.

Dickering With Soviet

The correspondents said they believed that Japan would move against Anglo-American interests in the Orient and the Dutch East Indies when and if Germany tried to invade England.

A radio broadcast from Tokyo quoted Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka as saying before a parliamentary committee that he would use present Japanese-Soviet trade negotiations to "readjust relations between the two countries." London has expressed fear that Japan is preparing to make an accord with Russia and thus protect her back door for a sweep into the southern Pacific against Britain and the East Indies.

Despite their government's renewed advice to Americans to go home, a number in the Far East were reported by Shanghai shipping officials to be unable to do so because of limited ship facilities.

units on an important Greek position yesterday, killing and wounding or capturing the entire assault force.

The offensive shoved the Italians from several well-fortified positions despite stiff resistance, it was reported.

Greek dispatches said the Italian dead and wounded, at the end of the first surge yesterday, were counted in hundreds.

Infantrymen were said to have worked their way up dominant heights, foot by foot, under fierce fire from Italian mortars, machine guns and rifles. Military circles said the results were "of exceptional importance."

Athens Calls More Reserves

(It might appear that the Greeks were putting all their available strength into the Albanian campaign in an effort to consolidate strong positions there, the better to meet a possible German thrust against Greece herself.

(Reports reaching the Yugoslav border town of Bitolj today from Greece said the Athens government, apparently in fear of German invasion through Bulgaria or Yugoslavia, had called up additional reservists from several classes on 12 hours notice.

(Air corps classes of 1933, 1934 and 1935, electrical experts from classes of 1930 through 1937 and other specialists from the class of 1938 were said to have been called to the colors, along with naval reservists and nursing personnel.

(Later advices reaching Bitolj said that Greeks, after a bayonet assault this afternoon, gained several vantage points west of the village of Malina in the northern sector of the front. Here, too, heavy artillery fire preceded the attack.

Italians Reinforced

(These dispatches also said that Italian reinforcements had arrived at Tepeleni and in the coastal sector of the front, where the Greeks are still fighting to reach Valona.)

Planes dotted the Albanian sky yesterday at the height of the Greek offensive against Italian positions north of Klisura and around Tepeleni.

Tripoli Taken By Fleet, Cairo Hears

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Feb. 14.—Although there were no reports of British activity in Libya, rumors persisted today that Tripoli has been bombarded or captured—or both—by the British Mediterranean fleet. Though this is purely grapevine information, similar stories in the past frequently have proved to be based on fact.

It is felt here that it is extremely likely that Britain will press the advantage gained in her rapid conquest of Cyrenaica (eastern Libya) and unless Marshal Rodolfo Graziani asks for an armistice, as some sources maintain he has already done, some form of assault on Tripoli seems certain.

British bombers visited the Island of Rhodes for the fifth successive day early yesterday morning, blasting the naval harbor and setting fire to a number of buildings.

A Junker-88 dive bomber was hit by antiaircraft fire over Malta yesterday and was last seen losing altitude, with smoke pouring from its engine.

Fourteen more unserviceable Italian warplanes were counted at the Benina Airdrome, in Libya, bringing the total taken at that base to 100, while 40 were taken at Berka.

Ethiopian patriots are reported to be raiding Italian positions in wider and wider areas in Ethiopia, but no details of their activities have reached communications centers.

British Continue Advance

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 14.—British imperial troops have advanced 130 miles into Italian Somaliland from Kenya, military sources indicated today in announcing the fall of the Fascist Towns of Afmadu and Bulo Erillo.

Five armored cars were taken at Afmadu, where a heavy raid by the South African air force had put most of the garrison to flight before British ground forces arrived, a communique stated, and four cars were seized at Bulo Erillo, where it was said Italian resistance was strong.

(The loss of Afmadu already had been acknowledged by the Italians.)

The British announced here that the Ethiopians were "steadily extending the spheres of their control" in the east African area.

In Eritrea, military sources said, British troops continued their slow advance, with two columns moving toward Asmara, the capital. One column gathered its forces for the assault upon besieged Cheren and the other operated further to the south toward Arresa.

British sources in Bengasi reported that a British Hussar regiment had advanced into Tripolitania, western Libyan province—without meeting serious opposition—and captured a native camel corps.

Axis Raiders Active

Rome, Feb. 14 (AP).—German warplanes bombed British air bases in Libya "intensely" again last night, and joined Fascist bombers in attacking air and naval bases at Malta, the Italian high command reported today.

Sharp fighting was said to be continuing in Eritrea in East Africa, where the Italians declared their troops had repulsed British attacks in the Cheren sector. Planes were said to have machine-gunned the attacking British troops.

tion of our vigilance service all the enemy parachutists were captured before they had a chance to carry out the grave damage they had in mind. During the capture an encounter took place, in the course of which a deputy sheriff and a citizen were killed."

The provinces mentioned are right under the instep of southern Italy—an exceptionally wild and unpopulated territory where it was doubtless hoped that the parachutists could work for a few days without capture and then presumably be picked up by British planes or by life boats from a submarine.

The communique, it will be noted, did not say that they did no damage at all, so they must have got down to their jobs before being captured. Moreover, it is not possible to figure out whether they were captured during the first night, since the announcement has come three days after they landed.

Apulian aqueduct, the world's largest, is located in this region and supplies drinking water to 2,677,000 Italians.

19 Declared Captured

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—The Rome radio gave a detailed account today of the British parachute invasion, saying specifically that 19 parachutists had been seized along with another group of unstated size.

The wireless account said the British, carrying maps of the district, had taken over some farms in the area, preventing the peasants from giving an immediate alarm, in their attempt to "blow up and damage chiefly the hydraulic works built by the Fascist regime."

One parachutist broke his leg in descending, it was stated, and was almost immediately captured by Italian police, having been "abandoned by the others."

"Soon," the account went on, "the alarm was given and the (other) parachutists, who had descended in a wooded district, were surrounded by the police and military. Eleven of them were soon captured while seven others were arrested some kilometers away. The latter used hand machine guns under the command of a British underlieutenant, killing one Italian police agent and one shepherd.

One carabinier compelled the seven to surrender. The other group of parachutists was captured soon afterward, and among them was one captain.

"All had uniforms of khaki, aviation helmets and Italian money."

(In London, British military circles said they had no knowledge of such a landing. If it was made as announced, it was the first British application of a technique used widely by the Germans in conquering the Low Countries.)

Alert London Foils German Fire Attack

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 14.—Germany's bombers tried a fire raid on London tonight, showering the city with hundreds of incendiary missiles and explosives, even as the Royal Air Force set the skies aflame over Calais in a simultaneous attack on Luftwaffe bases in France.

From dark until nearly 11 p. m. German raiders unloaded over several London districts, but squads of firewatchers snuffed the fire-bombs almost as fast as they fell. No large fires developed.

A northeastern port was attacked with high explosive bombs. Some property was damaged.

British night fighters took to the skies in one eastern area in an attempt to beat off the attack, which appeared to be one of the heaviest in weeks.

Gunflashes split the London sky in rapid succession; bombs fell in several metropolitan areas, in East Anglia and elsewhere. Other planes were over the Northwest and the Midlands.

The R. A. F.'s night raid was the second attack of the day on the so-called invasion ports, bombed in daylight by British formations which reported they fought through German challengers over the Channel.

Antiaircraft shells could be seen bursting above the Channel mist on the French side tonight. Flares also were observed.

The thud of heavy explosions on the French coast could be heard on this side of the Channel during the British daytime offensive sweep.

The British, challenged during the day by German craft over the Channel, said a German Messerschmitt was shot down. (In Berlin, the Germans said at least nine British fighter planes were shot down in an attempt to break through to the French bases.)

The British communique tonight reported the loss of one British fighter and the downing of a German fighter over the Strait of Dover in a patrol skirmish this morning.

During the day single German raiders dropped bombs in northeast Scotland and in Kent.

Casualties in last night's raid on London were acknowledged larger than at first supposed. They "included a large number of persons killed."

(The Germans said Thursday night's attack on London was directed effectively against airports and industrial plants near the mouth of the Thames.)

German and British long-range guns exchanged shells across the Dover Strait for a fourth successive day.

O.P.M. Speeds Its Studies of 'Ersatz' Metals

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Growing defense demands for strategic metals have intensified studies by the Office of Production Management looking toward substitution of other materials and elimination of their use in nonessential products, it was learned yesterday.

Officials emphasized that research was being carried out as far in advance as possible in order that plans for the use of "ersatz" materials would be ready in the event shortages became acute. Meantime, they said, many industries and large consumers were already cooperating with defense agencies' requests to curtail use of vital metals or to replace them with materials of which there was a plentiful supply.

Principal metals which are now being studied, either because shortages are threatened by increasing defense requirements or possible curtailment of supply, are aluminum, magnesium, zinc, nickel, tungsten and tin.

Urge Study of Plastics

Disclosure of the expanded program of planning and research was accompanied yesterday by a plea from E. R. Stettinius, jr., director of the OPM priorities division, that manufacturers "give immediate attention to the development of plastics."

Plastics, he indicated, might be used to conserve the supply of vital defense metals, particularly aluminum, magnesium and zinc.

Stettinius reminded manufacturers that the Bureau of Standards plastics section was equipped to advise on the problem and that a meeting of the Plastics Defense Committee of the industry would meet here Friday to make suggestions for the increased use of the new industrial material.

Demands "Compelling"

Stettinius warned that with defense industries making "compelling demands" on aluminum, magnesium and zinc, their availability for nondefense purposes will be diminished.

He noted that aircraft builders were presently making elaborate tests to see where plastic materials might be substituted in planes and that makers of household equipment, such as refrigerators, washing machines and vacuum cleaners, were considering substitution projects.

OPM officials said the purpose of their studies was to make a transition from the use of defense metals to other materials with the minimum possible industrial and consumer dislocation when, as and if shortages became critical.

Lend-Lease Bill's Opponents Meet

strength would not go above 30 votes on the final tally.

It was decided yesterday that Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee would lead off the debate Monday on behalf of the bill, to be followed probably by Majority Leader Barkley. Senator Clark, of Missouri, will fire the opening gun for the opposition. The historic debate is not expected to exceed two weeks.

Meanwhile, the Senate Military Affairs Committee voted to ask Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, to take the stand next week on the question of sending American military equipment to England.

During debate on the bill raising the national debt limit to $65,000,000,000, Senator Wheeler suggested that the British dominions were not doing as much for the mother country as the United States was being asked to do under the aid-to-Britain bill.

A Senator from a Rocky Mountain State yesterday told reporters that his mail had originally been 9 to 1 against the aid-to-Britain bill, but now it was "50-50." Another Senator from the same region commented that his vote on the bill "is the most uncomfortable decision I've ever had to make."

In a radio address favoring the lend-lease bill, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson declared that "only a childlike unsophistication is able to believe that the United States will be permitted to remain fancy free and to go its way untouched and unmolested, in a world whose partitioning among the dictatorship nations has long since been planned and charted."

William D. Mitchell, Attorney General under President Hoover, stated yesterday that the bill should be passed.

"So long as there is any chance that Britain can survive—and the best expert opinion is that with our material aid, in ships, armament and credits, she has at least an even chance—that aid should be given," he said.

nondefense items on the budget, as well as annual maintenance costs of the Army and Navy, from taxation. Maintenance of teh armed services, as distinct from capital expenditures for their expansion, is likely to cost $4,000,000,000 a year for at least a decade, "no matter how the war comes out," he predicted.

Administration leaders also have "passed the buck" in recommending nondefense economies without suggesting where the cuts should be made, the Ohio Republican asserted. "If you really want to save anything, you've got to change relief and agricultural policies and a lot of other policies, and those are changes the Administration would vigorously oppose."

"If the lend-lease bill is passed," said Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, "you might as well be realistic and raise the limit to $100,000,000,000 right now."

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, predicted an "overall" Federal debt of $100,000,000,000 by July 1, 1943.

Byrd introduced a resolution to set up a 12-man Congressional committee, consisting of six members from each house, to bring in recommendations for revision of the Federal tax system to meet imperative defense expenditures and elimination of nonessential expenditures and to study "postwar fiscal problems."

Green Fears Misuse of State Sabotage Laws

By Fred L. Strozier
Associated Press Staff Writer

Miami, Fla., Feb. 14.—Proposals that the States enact laws providing stiff punishment for sabotage of defense industries met sharp opposition from the American Federation of Labor today.

The suggestion, backed by the National Conference of Mayors and already under consideration in some Legislatures, is intended to punish sabotage but actually may be used against innocent union men, said the federation's president, William Green.

In fact, he said picketers, legitimate strikers or workers making normal mistakes might be punished under such legislation.

"Of course we all favor the punishment of anyone who sabotages defense industry," he added.

The executive council of the A. F. of L. voted to use its influence against the measure in each State. It then studied the results of its effort to avoid strikes against industries that are engaged on defense jobs.

Daniel W. Tracy, Second Assistant Secretary of Labor, reported to the council that the Labor Department's conciliation service recently had added 10 or 12 men to its staff and, generally, had been able to settle disputes between labor and defense industry.

Green said there had been some increase in labor disturbances due to greater activity on defense work.

The Labor Department's help was enlisted, through Tracy, in opposing Congressional proposals for anti-strike or compulsory mediation laws, against which the council already had gone on record.

The council slated a conference tomorrow with Col. Philip Fleming, wage-hour administrator, and agreed to urge upon him that no changes be made in the law he administers.

Green reported a "very encouraging outlook" from conferences designed to bring back into the federation fold 80,000 members of the Intrenational Typographical Union, suspended for refusing to pay special assessments into a war chest for fighting the C. I. O.

Consideration of the A. F. of L.'s organization work in the auto industry was deferred until next week.

New Defense Buying Plan Is Set Up

A new set-up of defense purchasing under "substantially improved methods" and providing for clearance of large Army and Navy orders by the Office of Production Management purchases division was announced yesterday by Donald M. Nelson, director of the division.

Nelson said the arrangement, approved by the O. P. M. and satisfactory to the Army and Navy, clarified working arrangements between the services and the division. It provides that the Army and Navy continue to initiate and execute contracts and to take final responsibility for fixing defense material specifications, but that the division will have review functions on all contracts for $500,000 or more.

Other orders, involving unusual procurement problems or those likely to have a major market effect, are also to be submitted to the division on its request.

The purchase division will coordinate the placing of major defense orders and will advise the service departments on procurement and planning aspects. To facilitate the job, the Army and Navy will continue to furnish the division with information on requirements, delivery schedules and specifications.

In addition, the director of purchases will "review certain procurement procedures, methods, policies and specifications, and, on highly technical items in cooperation with the (OPM) division of production, will give such advice and make such recommendations as will facilitate efficient procurement."

The new arrangement represents a clarification of the powers delegated to the OPM by President Roosevelt in an Executive order creating the organization.

Army to Use 300,000 Men In Maneuvers

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—Lieut.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the First Army, announced today that "the most comprehensive and exacting maneuvers ever held in the United States in peacetime are planned for the First Army this summer."

At a press conference, he said that between 300,000 and 350,000 men would take part in the maneuvers, somewhere in the south.

Prior to the First Army maneuvers, Drum said there would be two separate maneuvers of the four corps constituting the First Army, making a total of eight weeks of an intensive, simulated "blitzkrieg."

"With few exceptions, equipment will be complete by maneuver time," he said. "We have sufficient equipment on hand now to train specialists, but equipment for combat is not in an advanced stage.

"These maneuvers will provide a better opportunity for the appraisal of the combat power of American troops than those previously held because the soldiers will have been hardened by months of intensive training."

He explained that the First Army tactical organization was concerned with "training its components to the point where the successful defense of the Nation will be assured."

"We should realize," he said, "that a real combat team in modern warfare includes the cooperative efforts of air units, air defense forces, mechanized forces, long range mobile artillery, supply system, maintenance, engineer troops and others, with ground infantry and cavalry divisions."

D. C. Troops Battle Mud At Ft. Meade

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Feb. 14.—The District's 121st Engineers and 104th Ordnance Company moved into camp today and settled down in a sea of mud.

After a week of fine, clear, almost balmy weather, today dawned cold and clammy, with a blanket of fog smothering the great cantonment and rain falling in a slow drizzle. The half-finished roads became quagmires, deeply rutted by the constant movement of trucks and puddles quickly formed between the barracks buildings.

Arriving shortly after noon, the Ordnance Company and the first element of the Engineer regiment went to work at once building duckboard walks from the roads to their quarters. The second detachment of Engineers came in just at dusk.

In addition to their own motor vehicles the Engineer convoys included 29 trucks of the 104th Quartermaster regiment, which has been in camp a week. The Ordnance Company moved in on its own vehicles, including the heavy and complicated shop trucks in which it repairs the division's small arms.

Besides battling with the mud, rain and fog, the engineer regiment was forced to make major last-minute readjustments when it discovered one of its barracks buildings had been turned over to the men of the detail sent here ahead of time to classify members of the division. The companies were redistributed to take care of the change.

One of the 121st's first tasks was to collect 500 steel cots and 500 mattresses from quartermaster warehouses. As a precaution against delay in acquiring these items, Col. John W. Oehmann, regimental commander, had ordered all companies to bring sufficient folding canvas cots with their baggage.

Col. Oehmann was enthusiastic in praise of his regiment's morale, pointing out that the men had fallen to work in the rain and mud as if they had been in camp all their lives. A tour of the engineer area revealed order rising out of chaos with incredible swiftness.

"Engineers," said Col. Oehmann, "are trained to make the best of whatever they find. That's what the Army needs engineers for."

Company C, 191st Tank Battalion, formerly the Twenty-ninth Tank Company, of Danville, Va., arrived at Meade late today. It will be quartered in tents in the old post until its quarters near the Twenty-ninth Division cantonment are ready in late March or early April.

Arrival of Company C completes concentration of the 191st, which includes, also, companies from New York, Boston and Hartford. The battalion was organized last fall and will become an integral part of the armored force when its period of basic training is completed.

Col. John A. Cutchins, division chief of staff, announced today that arrangements had been made with the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad to grant a round-trip rate of approximately 1 cent a mile for weekend trips along its line. The rates, which will be placed in effect for parties of 500 men or more and will apply to special trains, will be $3 to Richmond, $2 to Fredericksburg and $1 to Alexandria from Fort Meade and return.

Col. Cutchins said he was conferring with officials of other railroads serving Virginia in an effort to work out similar rates for all troops in the division.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, division commander, announced that Washington's Birthday would be a full holiday in the cantonment.

Baering Down On the News

I like the way Alfonso of Spain just gave his little boy the hot seat. Otherwise known as the Spanish throne.

They are setting up another monarchy in Spain like the place was a bowling alley.

Ten years ago the country was too tough for Alfonso, who started on a career autographing road maps.

The same thing happened in Rumania when Michael took over Carol's job. If those two kids are smart they will veto any attempt to start a father's day in Madrid or Bucharest.

Alfonso escaped in disguise like a strip tease dancer in a policeman's overcoat. Can it be possible after ten years that the coward is sending Don Juan back for his toothbrush?

The arrangement may work out. But the first thing you learn when gambling is never to send a boy on a man's errand.

The Gallup Poll

Many Easterners Found Leaning Toward Idea of Trial 'Blackouts'

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 14.—Are American cities and towns about to go in for experimental "blackouts," as many European cities did in the months before the war?

Public demand for practice blackouts has already reached substantial proportions in some areas of the country, a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion shows, but many Americans still consider such steps "unnecessary," "just a sign of a lot of confusion," or "not worth the trouble."

Nevertheless, as some American communities embark on practice blackouts this spring, the idea may spread. Further Institute checks will be made to see whether the present number favoring such tests grows or not.

New York to Experiment

Spurred on by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, New York City will experiment shortly with practice blackouts over limited areas, while Army engineers watch from planes and other vantage points the success of the operations.

The Institute's question—put to men and women in all sections of the United States—was as follows:

"New York City is planning to have a practice blackout shortly. Do you think all towns and cities in your State should have practice blackouts every few months?"

The replies were:

Yes	42%
No	45%
Undecided	13%

Naturally the amount of curiosity and enthusiasm for practice blackouts varies widely from section to section—from the cities of the eastern seaboard, for instance, to the plains of Kansas.

Sentiment by Sections

But even in the Mid-West States of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri and the Dakotas an average of almost one person in three said he thought practice blackouts were very much in order.

Here's the percentage of individuals in the principal sections of the country who favor trial blackouts:

New England, Mid-Atlantic	50%
East Central	34
West Central	31
South	39
West	46

Through thousands of miles from the Atlantic arena of the European War, West Coast voters who want practice blackouts are probably thinking of the three-way Axis pact between Germany, Italy and Japan.

Those who turn thumbs down on the proposition at this time usually content themselves with saying "it isn't necessary at this time," or "we're too far away to get excited about air-raids"—the latter comment coming often from small towns and farms.

But a number of them also say: "It would merely frighten people—cause hysteria. Is it supposed to make us war-minded?"

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who addressed a world radio audience last week, is still very close to "tops" in the hearts of his countrymen, a new survey by the British Institute of Public Opinion indicates.

Churchill was approved by 85 per cent of all those interviewed in answer to the question:

"In general do you approve or disapprove of Mr. Churchill as Prime Minister?"

Only 7 per cent said they disapproved and 8 per cent were undecided or offered no reply to the question.

With 85 per cent of his countrymen approving him as Prime Minister, Winston Churchill stands at a higher peak of popularity than the late Neville Chamberlain ever reached, and higher than the 71 per cent mark recently reached by President Roosevelt in a parallel survey in America by the Gallup Poll.

Nazis Propose To Pay Dutch For Damages

By Lloyd Lehrbas
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Nazi-dominated Netherlands government, diplomatic sources reported here yesterday, has undertaken to compensate the citizens for property damage suffered in the war.

While no official figures are yet available, informed estimates are that damage totaling $500,000,000 was done to Dutch property in the 5-day blitzkrieg last May which smashed the Netherlands. Private property losses were placed at $350,000,000.

The compensation decree providing for war damage payments made no mention of the manner in which the government would raise the necessary funds required, according to the authoritative information received in diplomatic quarters here. The program is believed the first of its kind in Europe.

Taxes Increased

Since German authorities are in complete control of all governmental, financial and commercial activities, however, informed sources said they believed that the war damage costs would be paid in Dutch currency and funds obtained from higher taxes which, in some instances, have been increased 25 per cent.

Under Nazi economic practice both in Germany and in occupied countries, these sources declared, there have been practically no limitations on the amount of "printing-press money" placed in circulation.

Germany itself has made a state secret of its gold reserve and no authoritative figures exist on the gold "backing" for the millions of marks which are in circulation in Germany and German-dominated countries.

$1,622,000,000 Frozen Here

The Dutch government is understood to have shipped most of its gold reserve to the United States and England just before the Nazi occupation, and there is no official information on what amounts may have been seized by the Germans.

Dutch assets, now "frozen" in the United States, total $1,622,000,000, including $700,000,000 in bullion, currency and time and demand deposits.

The Nazi-controlled Netherlands government is now attempting to secure all gold or foreign currency which frugal Dutchmen have saved, according to the diplomatic reports received here.

Citizens Must Sell Gold

The bank has requisitioned all bank notes in dollars, Swiss francs and Swedish crowns, refusing any exemptions to orders that they must be turned in for Dutch currency.

The Netherlands Bank is also obliging all citizens to sell it any gold they may have, and by December 20 had reached all whose names begin with the letters, I, J, K, L or M.

Under the war-damages decree the owners will be compensated 100 per cent up to 50,000 florins (approximately $25,000), and 90 per cent on losses over that amount.

Household furniture and effects will be compensated for by payment-in-kind coupons.

Payment will be made only for property of Dutch nationals.

Most of the damage claims will be made in Rotterdam, where a terrific German air bombardment—on the day the Dutch army surrendered—reduced 26,000 private residences and 11,000 business premises to ruins.

Roosevelt Stays Vermont Rail Strike

President Roosevelt yesterday blocked a strike of 1,300 employes of the Rutland (Vermont) Railroad by invoking provisions of the Railway Labor Act. The strike was set to begin last night.

He named a special board of three members to investigate the dispute which was said to be threatening interference with the defense program. The board, under the law, is given 30 days in which to investigate and report, then another 30 days must elapse before a strike may be begun.

The President did not immediately make public the personnel of the board. His action was taken on the request of Gov. William H. Willis, of Vermont.

Meanwhile, the two top figures in the defense set-up, William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, directors of the Office of Production Management, are scheduled today to plunge into negotiations seeking settlement of the Allis-Chalmers strike.

The walkout of 7,000 workers in the Allis-Chalmers plant at Milwaukee has tied up work on $45,000,000 of defense orders for three weeks.

Negotiations under way here for three days, under auspices of defense officials, were in recess yesterday while awaiting Knudsen's return to the Capital today.

"Outlaw" Strikers Dismissed

Bridgeville, Pa., Feb. 14 (AP).—Approximately 400 employes at the Vanadium Corporation plant who went on strike Monday in defiance of C. I. O. leaders were notified of their dismissal today, C. I. O. Regional Director Anthony Federoff reported.

Federoff, who termed the strike a violation of the union's contract with the company, said the strikers had "forfeited all their protection under the contract."

Much of the plant's output of Ferro-Vanadium goes into national defense production.

Optimism was expressed over the possibility of early settlement of a strike at the Vanadium Corporation's plant at Niagara Falls, N. Y. The management and the C. I. O. United Mine Workers agreed to a conference Monday. The union is asking wage increases. The plant, employing 400, has defense contracts for alloy steel.

Negotiations also were in progress in efforts to settle a strike of A. F. of L.-United Automobile Workers at the Motor Wheel Corporation, Lansing, Mich. Negotiations to settle a strike of C. I. O. steel workers at the Youngstown (Ohio) Sheet & Tube Co.'s Brier Hill furnaces appeared stalemated.

About 2,500 workers were affected by the walkout at Motor Wheel which has contracts for shell casings and airplane propellers.

From the A. F. of L. in Washington, meantime, came a statement that the "recent furore over strikes in defense industries" had given a false impression. Labor's Monthly Survey, a federation publication, said that time lost due to strikes during 1940 amounted to "less than two hours per worker employed," and was little more than one-third the time lost in 1939.

Nurses Plan Party to Aid Blood Bank

While ten transfusions were being given yesterday to little patients at Children's Hospital, the blood bank campaign advanced with the addition of new benefit parties—notably one by the hospital's own nursing department, set for next Wednesday night.

With Valentine's Day yesterday as the heart of the campaign—extending before and after the actual date—the variety show at the Willard Hotel last night highlighted the day's events. This benefit broadcast, sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce and Station WOL, brought an array of radio entertainers, with the studio audience buying tickets at 50 cents apiece, to aid the blood bank fund.

Under the same roof with patients benefitting from the blood-on-deposit, the Children's Hospital nursing department will hold the bridge party at 8 p. m. Wednesday for hospital personnel. Miss Ashby Taylor, superintendent of nurses, is in charge of plans, assisted by Miss Verna Santer and Miss Eileen Ihmsen.

Station WJSV, The Washington Post and the American Legion are locally sponsoring the campaign for the benefit of child sufferers.

Lieut. Commander W. A. Corley, retired, cochairman of the campaign, yesterday announced that the date and place of one party had been changed. Second Division Post and Unit No. 28, with the Holy Name Society of St. Martin's parish, will give a benefit party at St. Martin's Club, North Capitol at Rhode Island Avenue at 8 p. m., March 7. It was previously announced for the following day at another address.

To boost attendance at the card party of the Washington Bridge League at the Shoreham Hotel next Wednesday night, Thomas Hamlin, president, has requested each member to bring a non-member. The public also is invited. Duplicate, rubber bridge and other card games will be played.

In Falls Church, Va., Mrs. Robert N. Landreth and Mrs. Joseph McCaskill have organized what promises to be a large party for next Friday evening in the Madison School of that community. Bridge and table games will be played in the auditorium, and group games in the cafeteria.

They have formed the following committee: Mrs. Mason Barr, Mrs. Tage Beck, Mrs. Channing Bolton, Mrs. J. A. Branson, Mrs. Kortwright Church, Mrs. Milton Eisenhower, Mrs. E. C. Forsyth, Mrs. Ward Freeman, Mrs. H. P. Fellowes, Mrs. J. L. Harrison, Mrs. W. J. Hinnian, jr., Mrs. H. P. Ingrave, Mrs. M. L. McElroy, Mrs. James Martin, Mrs. Howard Middleton, Mrs. Lee Park, Mrs. Charles Pendleton, Mrs. Laurence Proctor, Mrs. Morse Salisbury, Mrs. F. B. Salsbury, Mrs. Clarence Shotwell, Mrs. Rollo Smith, Mrs. Stanley Stewart, Mrs. Philip Talbott, Mrs. Louis Woods.

James E. Walker Post No. 26 will hold a card party at 1414 Q Street Northwest at 8 o'clock tonight, with John L. Dogans, vice commander, in charge.

A group of Washington Post employes joined in a benefit party for the fund last night at the home of Raoul Blumberg on Raymond Street Chevy Chase, Md.

Although Valentine's Day, the "theme day" of the campaign is past, there is still time for individuals and organizations to plan parties for the fund. Persons may give parties in their homes and bring the proceeds to the cashier of The Post. Souvenir bridge tallies may be obtained in advance at The Post.

Terrific Blast At Explosives Plant Kills Seven

Du Quoin, Ill., Feb. 14 (AP).—All seven men at a plant manufacturing liquid oxygen explosives for coal mining were killed today in a blast so terrific it blew debris over an area of a quarter of a mile and hurled one of the bodies 250 feet.

The explosion, wrecking the plant of the United Electric Coal Co.'s Fidelity Mine and damaging several auxiliary buildings, shook homes in Du Quoin, 5 miles away. Fire followed the explosion. The mine proper was not damaged.

The dead, several of them decapitated, were:

A. L. Barker, 69, superintendent; James Thornton, 72; Lyle Cook, 35, and Russell Cook, 31, brothers; John Bailey, 25; Nelson Todd, 24, and John Rappusi, 30. All lived in Du Quoin.

Mine officials were unable to explain what caused the shattering detonation. The lamp black cartridges themselves are harmless but become a powerful explosive when soaked with liquid oxygen.

Ex-Alley Cat Wins Awards At Show Here

Champion Mystery Marvel, a short-haired white cat with sapphire blue eyes which appraise the world benignly, is now a well-groomed witness to the axiom that every kick is a boost.

Her owner, Mrs. Bryan Shine, of Detroit, speaks of the matter while the cot languishes, on a cushion, behind a wide rainbow of prizewinning ribbons in the Columbian Cat Fanciers, Inc., show in the Odd Fellows Temple here.

Mrs. Shine had looked from her apartment window in Detroit to see a janitor emerge and give "a pitiful little alley cat" a swift kick. The cat landed against an adjoining building and was retrieved, nursed and cared for by Mrs. Shine.

Its sapphire blue eyes began to work on people and soon it had won blue ribbons in Detroit, Jackson and Cleveland cat shows. It returned to its cage here yesterday with two blue ribbons, first prize in the best short-haired class and first in the prize champion class.

In the show are 180 cats, gray cats, black ones, red and blue ones and innumerable white ones. A few prizes had been awarded last night, as follows:

Best black cat, Rosedere King Cole, owner, Emma C. Payne, of Falls Church; best chinchilla, Delphi Don Juan, owner, Mrs. James R. Mood, 131 North Irving Street, Arlington, Va.; best red cat, Champion Eiderdown Hoga Baba, owner, Mrs. Mary Smith, Pitman, N. J.; best blue cat, Glen Echo September Sunshine, owner, Mrs. Thomas J. Maloney, of Glen Olden, Pa.; best white cat, Champion Snokrest Fairwoods Nancy, owner, Snokrest Cattery, Detroit; best kitten in Specialty Show, owner, Mrs. Mabel Erdman, Lebanon, Pa., and best kitten of opposite sex in Specialty Show, owner, Mrs. Helen Leiner, of Hamilton, Md. The best kitten in the All Breed Show is owned by Mrs. Arvid Chlin, of Dorchester, Mass. The best kitten of opposite sex in the All Breed Show is owned by Mrs. L. H. Benham, of Cleveland, Ohio, the judges said.

The show, participated in also by the American Tabby and Tortie Club, will continue from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. today.

Krivitsky's Body Cremated in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—In the presence of only a dozen persons—including his widow, Tanya—the body of Walter G. Krivitsky, who was found shot to death Monday in his Washington hotel room, was cremated today.

There were no funeral services for the man whose death brought charges that he had been "hounded and hounded" by Soviet secret agents. Officially, his death was listed as a suicide.

A.M.A. to Call Seal and Pine To Testify

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

District Court Justice David A. Pine and former Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal will be called as defense witnesses in the doctors' trial, it was disclosed yesterday.

William E. Leahy, head of counsel defending organized medicine against the Government's charges of having violated the Sherman Antitrust Law, indicated that both Pine and Seal are potentially important witnesses.

Their testimony would revolve around charges lodged against Group Health Association in 1938 that it was a corporation illegally engaged in the practice of medicine, and an insurance company which did not comply with the District's insurance laws.

At that time Pine was United States Attorney and Seal Corporation Counsel. The former accused GHA of practicing medicine illegally and Seal initiated the insurance complaint.

Subsequently Justice Jennings Bailey held in District Court that the Federal workers' medical cooperative was innocent on both counts. Shortly thereafter the Department of Justice instituted a grand jury investigation resulting in indictment, on charges of obstructing GHA, of the American Medical Association, District Medical Society, two other organized medical groups and 21 individual defendants.

150 More Exhibits Offered

The eighth day of the trial yesterday in Justice James M. Proctor's court was a weary continuation of the offering of exhibits by the prosecution, which was begun Thursday.

Consisting entirely of letters, telegrams and miscellaneous communications sent by or to the American Medical Association between 1932 and 1938, 150 of the exhibits were submitted and identified yesterday forenoon. Nearly 100 others had been offered on the previous day.

Ordering a luncheon recess at 1:20 p. m., Justice Proctor excused the jury until Monday morning. When court was resumed at 3 p. m., it was only to allow opposing counsel the opportunity to argue admissability of the approximately 250 documents.

In a courtroom denuded of jury, defendants and spectators, prosecutors John Henry Lewin and Grant W. Kelleher, on the one hand, and Leahy, Edward M. Burke and Seth W. Richardson, of defense counsel, engaged in spirited clashes over several of the letters which the Government seeks to have admitted.

Argument Heated

One particularly heated argument involved a letter purportedly written by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the A. M. A. Journal and one of the defendants, to a young physician who sought advice as to whether he should apply for a post on the G. H. A. medical staff.

Lewin and Kelleher argued that Dr. Fishbein, in discouraging the young doctor, inferentially attacked the cooperative's soundness and integrity. Leahy retorted that the letter had no material significance. It was shelved by Justice Proctor with the understanding that it could be introduced later if proved important to the case.

When the afternoon battle was over, 23 exhibits had been admitted and 8 rejected, with nearly 100 others due to be argued when court is resumed Monday morning.

Justice Proctor indicated that he will excuse the jury Monday morning, bringing its 12 members and two alternates back into court only when all is in readiness for the prosecution to begin reading those letters, telegrams, etc., which have been admitted in evidence.

Th next witness for the Government, scheduled to take the stand after the A. M. A. documents have been read to the jury, will be Willian C. Kirkpatrick, who was the second president of Group Health Association.

Capone Too Ill to Face Inquiry, Doctor Says

Miami, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP).—Al Capone's physician said today that the former gang chief is in no physical condition to be questioned Monday by the Justice Department about his financial resources.

A hearing is set before Frederic G. Rita, special department attorney, in the Internal Revenue headquarters of the Federal Building. The Government is seeking to determine whether Capone can pay a judgment growing out of income tax suits.

New Technique Forecasts High Blood Pressure

Methods of discovering high blood-pressure tendencies in persons of early adult ages have been developed by researchers at George Washington University Medical School, it was reported yesterday.

Announcement of the research results was made at the ninth annual post graduate clinic which opened yesterday and continues through today at the university's school of medicine, 1335 H Street Northwest.

Means of detecting "hypersensitive reactors"—persons who in later life are apt to become high blood pressure victims—were devised by Dr. Paul F. Dickens and Dr. Thelma B. Dunn, both of the university staff. Their research was made possible by the Cecilia Cummings Memorial Fund—a fund given the college by former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings in memory of his wife.

Strongly Hereditary

It was found that high blood pressure tendencies are strongly hereditary. Among cases examined, it was discovered that one grandparent or one parent was hypersensitive in 32 per cent of the positive instances. In 30 per cent, the tendency was passed along through the female line.

There is no cause for alarm when a person is shown to be hypertensive, Dr. Dickens continued. Rapidity of high blood pressure development cannot be accurately determined. A person, he said, may live to be 80 with an alarmingly high blood pressure and again the affliction may progress with malignant rapidity.

Students and alumni attending the clinic yesterday visited Gallinger Hospital in the morning and were taken on a round of the wards.

Dr. Mayo to Lecture

In the afternoon, lectures on obstetrics and gynecology were given by Dr. Samuel M. Dodek, associate in obstetrics and gynecology at George Washington; Dr. Louis H. Douglass, professor of obstetrics at the University of Maryland; Dr. M. Edward Davis, associate professor of obstetrics, Rush Medical College, Chicago, and Dr. Henry L. Darner, clinical director of obstetrics and gynecology at George Washington.

One of today's most famous speakers will be Dr. Charles W. Mayo, of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Dr. Charles Stanley White, professor of surgery at George Washington, also will speak, as will Dr. Paul D. White, lecturer in medicine at Harvard University.

Sergeant Held In Slaying Of Private

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 14 (AP).—An army first sergeant was jailed by military authorities today on a charge of technical homicide after officials said he had shot to death a private who he alleged had attacked him with the buckle end of a belt.

An Army Board was immediately convened to investigate the killing. The men involved were members of a Negro medical detachment.

Placed under arrest was First Sergt. L. T. Miller, following the death of Private Paul Mayo, 31, a native of Vian, Okla., who was to have been transferred to Camp Lee, Va., tomorrow.

Maj. William Maglin said Miller told him that in a scuffle in an upper hallway of the medical detachment barracks, Mayo lashed twice at Miller with his uniform belt.

Miller said he placed Mayo under arrest, armed himself and began marching the prisoner to the guard house. Mayo again swung the belt—buckle first—Miller fired two shots in the air, then fired twice at Mayo when the latter failed to stop the attack.

2,500 Quit Security Rolls Monthly for Jobs in Industry

Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt declared yesterday that about 2,500 retired workers are returning to work each month because of the national defense program.

He said that as required by law their old age and survivors' insurance benefit checks are suspended as long as they are working.

During the first year of its operation the Federal old-age and survivors insurance system made 330,079 awards, 254,984 of these for monthly benefit payments. The awards totaled $4,710,281 a month as of December 31, 1940, or a benefit rate of $56,523,372 a year. In addition, there were 75,095 lump-sum death claims approved for a total of $9,138,025.

Curing Baldness By Vitamin Really Is Hair-Raising

Seattle, Feb. 14 (AP).—A hair-raising discovery was reported at the University of Washington today.

Drs. Earl R. Norris and James Hauschildt have isolated a new vitamin, called Inositol.

Inositol is what the technicians term an "anti-alopecia factor." It seems the Greeks had a word for "baldness," and "alopecia" is derived from that word.

So far, however, trying out the hair-raising possibilities of Inositol might prove too hair-raising an experience for human beings.

Drs. Hauschildt and Morris have grown hair on bald mice with Inositol. The only trouble is some of the mice died under treatment.

Marriage Gummed Up

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 14 (AP).—Harry Hische obtained a divorce yesterday on grounds of desertion. He alleged that before she left him his wife put two pounds of sugar in the gasoline tank of his car and poured shellac into the transmission.

District WPA To Drop 1,000 By March 1

Curtailment of 1,000 local WPA jobs due to decreased appropriations will be placed into effect March 1, it was announced yesterday by District Administrator Paul Edwards.

The order for the slash in the local rolls came from Howard O. Hunter, acting Federal WPA administrator.

The present WPA enrollment for the District is 10,700. This figure will be reduced to 9,700. Anticipating the curtailment order, Edwards said yesterday he has not been replacing vacancies in recent weeks so that actually at work now are 10,300 persons.

Workers have been leaving the WPA at the rate of 150 per week to enter private employment. Edwards expects the rolls to be about 10,200 by March 1 so that only 500 will have to be fired.

Most of the dismissals will be made in the white-collar and construction divisions of highway projects, Edwards said. The defense project workers will not be disturbed.

Four hundred workers are now awaiting jobs with the WPA as compared with 3,500 at this time last year, Edwards pointed out.

Paul Rogers, formerly WPA area engineer in Norfolk, Va., yesterday was appointed director of the division of operations for the local agency. He succeeds Sam Nugent who left for private employment.

A new program of vocational conferences are being planned by Edwards to acquaint WPA workers with the techniques of gaining private employment. Vocational guidance workers will be called in to lecture to the workers, he said.

Misuse of French Funds by U. S. Charged in Report

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Feb. 14.—An official German news agency dispatch from Paris carried excerpts from an article in Les Nouveaux Temps by the French expert on international law, Louis Le Fur, who reportedly charges the United States with "misusing the 3,200,000,000 gold francs left in the United States at the time the armistice was signed between France and Germany last June."

It is stated that the French Ambassador in Washington proposed using the funds to buy foodstuffs and medicines for France, but that the United States Government declared it was unable to act on this suggestion "because of British opposition."

Le Fur reportedly charges that the French gold in the United States is being "used to ease the blockade for England." The United States management of these funds, M. Le Fur allegedly states, represents "actual confiscation of foreign investments."

Dominican Treaty Revision Ratified

By the Associated Press

The Senate ratified yesterday a revision of this country's treaty with the Dominican Republic by which the President will cease to appoint the collector of customs there.

The action, by a two-thirds vote with less than a score of Senators on the floor, was taken over the protest of Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who charged that the Federal Government had "violated its moral obligation" to American citizens holding Dominican bonds.

Vandenberg said the original Dominican Treaty, signed in 1924, provided that the President of the United States appoint the collector of customs until the interest and principal of these bonds was repaid.

Fire Kills 2 Children, Mother Gravely Burned

Revere, Mass., Feb. 14 (AP).—Quickly spreading flames took the lives of two children in their beds today and critically burned their mother as she attempted to save them after rescuing four other of her children.

The dead were Annette, 6, and Alice, 2, children of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Perrier. Mrs. Perrier, 38, was placed on the danger list at a hospital.

U. S. Would Merge City, Police Courts

Broad reforms of the Police and Municipal Courts are being drafted by the Department of Justice into legislation merging the two courts, it was learned yesterday.

Judges of the courts, Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the District Bar Association, and District Attorney Edward M. Curran have been invited to examine the tentative proposals at a conference with Assistant Attorney General Matthew M. McGuire next Tuesday.

Some of the reforms under consideration are:

1. Merger of the two courts into a single District Municipal Court, consisting of a chief judge and nine associate judges, with the jurisdiction now vested in the separate courts.
2. Making the chief judge an effective presiding officer, with authority to control all the court's work, assign cases to his colleagues and require them to dispose of them. This was favored over establishment of a special court for traffic cases. Department of Justice officials said, pointing out that if traffic cases became congested the chief judge would have authority to assign several judges to them at once, until they were up to date. He could deal in like manner with any other branch of the court's work.
3. Giving the new court jurisdiction over civil cases involving up to $3,000, including real estate matters. This has been proposed before, to relieve the pressure on the District Court, where the docket has been congested for years. Cases now pending there must wait from 11 to 16 months for hearing after they are ready for trial.
4. Reform of the Municipal Court's rules on the pattern of the rules of civil procedure now followed by the District court.
5. A system of records which will reflect the work done by each judge.

The tentative proposals have been submitted by the Department of Justice to Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner, of the United States Court of Appeals, the senior judge of this circuit. He approved in principle the proposed changes.

Already in the hands of Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee, is a bill approved by the District Commissioners. This provides for merging the two courts.

Woman Hermit Revives Mystery Of Galapagos

Lima, Peru, Feb. 14 (AP).—The story of a new, mysterious woman resident of the Galapagos Islands, in which Baroness Eloise Bonsquet de Wagner played the role of "empress" a few years ago, has been brought here.

Milton Lobell, of the United States Fisheries Mission in Peru, said he had found a stoop-shouldered, almost toothless woman hermit living in the "Garden of Eden."

She said that she was an American citizen named Johnson, Yonson or Yansen, he related, but that she spoke with a decided German accent.

Putting in at the islands 700 miles off Ecuador to shift fuel tanks of the yacht, Pacific Queen, Lobell said he found the woman in a hut near the grave of the late Dr. Friederich Ritter, German dentist, who with Frau Dora Koervin, left his wife some years ago to establish a "paradise" on Charles Island.

Dr. Ritter died—his island mate said it was poison—some time after the arrival on the island of Baroness de Wagner and during the course of mysterious happenings in which the bodies of two of her male companions were found on a neighboring island.

The baroness, who carried a revolver from a silver cord about her neck, disappeared soon afterward. What happened to her has never been established.

A Patriotic Endeavor .... or Is It?

You ask, "How can money which I give to a real patriotic cause do anything but good?" The answer is simple: many times the money doesn't go to the patriotic cause but to some high-pressure promoter and his crew.

Promoters not interested in anything but profits to themselves are quick to take advantage of public interest—always changing their schemes to conform to the subject having the greatest public sympathy. Today that interest is the fight for Democracy—today, perhaps as never before, we are true patriotic Americans first, last and always.

But don't be stampeded into making donations to unknowns without first investigating. It is the duty of every good citizen to avoid cooperating with the unworthy. There are many worthy patriotic endeavors needing your help, but always remember—BEFORE YOU INVEST—INVESTIGATE—call

Letting George Pay

To appreciate the value of our National Symphony Orchestra it is necessary only to imagine what the Capital would be without it. We ask the community to make this mental effort. It will come to the conclusion, we are sure, that the abandonment of the orchestra would be a grievous cultural loss. Yet the period fixed for the drive for sustaining funds has closed with only half of the required $107,600 in sight. This failure of the initial drive can have only one meaning. Many thousands of Washingtonians who enjoy the symphony concerts and who would be loath to see the organization disbanded have nevertheless been quite willing to let others contribute the necessary financial support. They have withheld their contributions in the hope that the generosity of others would make possible another season of symphony music. Now such an illusion has been rudely exploded, and the life of the National Symphony Orchestra hangs in the balance. As the drive is extended for another week, it is impossible to believe that the people of Washington will let the orchestra die for want of $53,000.

Farming Out Contracts

Inevitably the defense program has thrown a tremendous amount of work into the hands of a limited number of large concerns particularly well equipped to handle Government contracts and build new facilities. As a result some companies are "snowed under" by a deluge of orders which cannot be completed for many months. Yet, since speed is the first requisite of an effective defense program, the emergency calls for mobilization of all our existing productive resources, and, as everybody knows, these resources are in the hands of the little fellow as well as in those of big corporations.

A lesson of this need is available from Britain. The British tried to develop aircraft production by relying upon time-consuming methods of building new aircraft factories and expanding the facilities of existing factories. Two years from the time the expansion work was started, however, none of the new factories had turned out a single finished plane. In 1938, therefore, the Government began to insist that the aircraft companies share (farm out) work on government orders with outside firms. But even this system proved disappointing till a thorough survey of existing facilities had been made and the work of farming out systematized so that bottlenecks could be avoided.

So in the United States, as in Great Britain, the defense program calls for more intensive utilization of existing equipment. Experts assert that a tremendous amount of such unused equipment is now lying idle that could be employed on defense contracts or operations that would release other productive facilities for defense work. To take a single instance: an enterprising group in the Shenandoah Valley has made a survey of local machine-tool equipment. The census gives a total of 375 lathes and other machine tools said to be idle 90 per cent of the time. By pooling these scattered resources, and utilizing local farm labor in spare time, this agricultural region believes it can make substantial contributions to national defense. Elsewhere local surveys of a similar nature are being made, while the National Association of Manufacturers is conducting a productive facilities census covering the entire country.

A very ambitious plan for organizing the entire iron and steel industry into an integrated production unit has been proposed by Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O. and Chairman of the S. W. O. C. Despite the huge backlog of orders held by the large steel companies, Mr. Murray asserts that the smaller concerns have a great deal of idle equipment. He estimates that the industry could produce 5,900,000 more tons of steel if it were organized into a single production unit. Of course, the Murray plan would encounter strong opposition from managements as a proposal to regiment industry, yet some method has to be devised to overcome the difficulties of farming out, and this plan at least deserves consideration. The plain fact is that farming out is essential in building our defense establishment without unnecessary delay.

Knox Vs. Willkie

Misunderstanding over the number of destroyers, if any, we could spare to Britain stresses again the paramount need for setting up a Committee of National Defense. Wendell L. Willkie, speaking with the backing of "high authorities" in Washington, says we must give Britain five to ten destroyers a month as part of our aid-to-Britain program. This was the only item in his all-out advocacy, yet Secretary of the Navy Knox, an equally ardent all-outer, immediately pounced upon it, and said "we have no more destroyers to give Great Britain, and in my position as Secretary of the Navy I am against depleting the United States fleet any further." To say that the tilt makes for confusion in the public mind is to put the situation mildly. Yet a repetition of speaking out of turn will be inevitable till the advisory responsibility of the aid-to-Britain strategy is reposed in a central board at our Commander in Chief's elbow.

The theory of the lend-lease bill is plain enough in the majority report of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It appears way up in the preamble. "The United States," says the report, "must, in its own interests, supply effective material aid to those countries whose defense is vital to our defense." The word effective is the key word, and Webster defines it: To produce a decisive effect or purpose. We know the purpose of the lend-lease bill. In the words of the President's fireside chat, it is to see that the cause of our friends shall prevail. Accordingly the lend-lease bill would provide access not only to our arsenal, but also to our naval and military establishment. That the House is under this impression is shown in the amendment to the bill under which not more than 10 per cent of the existing equipment will be disposed of.

If, as is so often said, time is of the essence of aid to Britain, the allocations from our existing equipment, or "defense articles," are of prime consideration. He who gives now, gives manyfold. Time and Mr. Hitler, as the news shows, don't intend to wait till we have manufactured our arsenal, even till we have passed the lend-lease bill. In these circumstances one would think that by this time the tacticians in the Administration would have worked out what could be spared from our own establishment without damage to our own direct defense. Evidently, with Mr. Knox saying one thing and Mr. Willkie understanding another from the White House, this isn't the case. Elementary coordination seems as yet to be lacking.

Of course no single step should be taken in implementing such aid to Britain without consultation with the service chiefs. This is the burden of one of the House amendments—the one providing for consultation with the Chief of Staff of the Army or the Chief of Naval Operations before disposing of existing "defense articles." However, the problem isn't so easily settled. Both officers are specialists in their own field. They must think in the narrow terms of their own strategy. For instance, if the Navy feels that its job is to protect the entire coastline of this hemisphere, the Chief of Naval Operations isn't in a position to spare a rowboat. In point of fact, the House amendment is unfair to our service chiefs, because their opinions cannot properly be set up as direct checks upon their own Commander in Chief.

But, if the chiefs were put on a central strategy board, along with the Secretary, they would be given a key advisory position in the working out of the national policy. That is something different. Under the lend-lease bill the national policy is based squarely upon making aid to Britain effective, and the Chief of Naval Operations as a member of a Committee of National Defense would feel a responsibility for general strategy which he cannot possibly entertain in his present narrower position. It would be up to him to do his part in executing the national policy by being a tactician first, and a navalist second.

It is plain that we should get the best possible service out of our tacticians, that the authority of our Commander in Chief would be strengthened, that there would be an insurance of coordination in the working out of policy, and, most important of all, that the people would be reassured—if we set up a Committee on National Defense. Certainly the people aren't likely to be reassured by such incidents as the Knox-Willkie difference, especially at this time, when the lend-lease bill is en route to the Senate.

Erasing Folklore

In the light of the archeological interest so long displayed by our Federal make-work agencies, it is hard to understand a project now being carried out by the National Youth Administration in St. Marys County, Md. Apparently the Charles County Board of Education is cooperating in an attempt to erase the marks of a hallowed past from 50 school desks. Consecrated initials are being chiseled out and brand-new blocks of wood inserted. When we recall that the Works Progress Administration a few years ago was spending $3,000,000 on archeological projects, among them the digging of artifacts left by our remote predecessors on this continent, it seems inconsistent to spend more money in destroying the somewhat less crude sculpture of our own youth. Initial-carving is an honored if not always honorable art. There is even a song which refers with strong sentiment to the spot where "she carved her name and I carved mine." If the evidences of our first esthetic stirrings must be removed from their appropriate background, can't the Government start another project to preserve them as folklore by fitting them into table tops?

Swagar Sherley

When Congress was appropriating billions for prosecution of the World War, Swagar Sherley, who died in Louisville yesterday, was one of the outstanding public servants who kept close guard over the Nation's purse strings. As chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, he accelerated the approval of vast spending bills during the war, and was later instrumental in turning back to the Treasury unspent millions that might otherwise have been wasted. The country was indeed fortunate to have at its spending throttle in those critical days a man of keen intellect, broad experience and wholehearted devotion to the public welfare.

Mr. Sherley was a member of Congress from 1903 to 1919. Ironically enough, he was one of many Democrats who lost their seats after President Wilson had called for a Democratic Congress to support his policies. That defeat denied Mr. Sherley the pleasure of helping to enact the bill creating the Federal Budget Bureau, a project which he had long sponsored. But it also gave him an opportunity to render valuable services as director of finance for the United States Railroad Administration. Despite the fact that he returned to private life when still a comparatively young man, he holds a place of honor and distinction in our national history.

Sofia To Singapore

Germany and Japan must now reckon with the unpleasant fact that their Italian ally has become a liability and that Great Britain may soon be able to divert men, ships and planes from Africa to other theaters of the far-flung war. Neither can view such a development with equanimity. Both are under pressure to act speedily before the possibility becomes a reality. So Hitler has given his legions in Rumania the go-ahead signal for a drive, apparently, through Bulgaria to Salonika and the Dardanelles. The twin purpose is to restore Axis prestige and compel Great Britain to maintain large forces in the Mediterranean area. At the same time there are indications in the Far East that Japan is now poised for an assault against British and Netherlands possessions.

Not long ago the British said that they had strengthened their garrisons and air force in Malaya. There may soon be new reinforcements. For when the Italians have been knocked out in Africa, it may be possible to rush to Singapore contingents of Australians, New Zealanders and East Indians previously intended for the Middle East command. Japan's hope of southward expansion might thus be thwarted. So the element in Japan which, for some time, has been showing a readiness to follow Germany's suggestions that the island empire take the offensive against the British and Dutch in southeastern Asia has discovered a new and clamant reason for immediate action.

The sense of crisis in the Far East is well brought out by several developments of the last few days: 1—The renewed "advice" given Americans in Japan and China to return to the United States. 2—The Singapore announcement to the effect that "formations of modern bombers of the Australian Air Force have taken up stations" in northern Malaya. 3—The unexpected return to Manila of a Dutch merchant ship en route to Hongkong, probably as a result of confronting Japanese ships in the China Sea. 4—Yesterday's statement by A. W. Fadden, Deputy Prime Minister of Australia, that the war has reached "a new stage involving the utmost gravity" to Australia. He indicated that his government has received "grave advices" concerning the situation in the Pacific.

The developing crisis in southeastern Asia may blow over even as the Balkan crisis may blow over. But it would be foolish for either the British Commonwealth of Nations or the United States to gamble on such a possibility. The storm signals are unmistakable, and the only uncertainty seems to be where the storm will break.

THE DREAMERS

In these days men shall look to the sky for the coming of death;
White-eyed, searching wings in the sky forever
Fear death that falls.
Men shall not wander far from the doorway
Nor the shadow of the walls,
Nor run too long in the sun.

There is no peace, there is no time for dreaming;
We walk above our graves in the street.
Death falls from the sky, the roof overhead is broken,
There is no more sleep.

Perhaps the children dream
On broken walls of lots, dream and whisper softly to each other
Of clean sweet food, and green of the earth,
And sunlight falling on the far-off sea.

Cab Driver's Side

A letter under the heading of "Transportation Problem" in The Post of February 9 and signed "Rider," has aroused my ire. For a long period of time I have known several cab drivers and feel that they have been misrepresented in this letter.

Few critics of cab drivers, who have one of the hardest and most nerve-wrecking jobs of all, ever stop to consider that many riders are small enough to check the zone areas and ride just as far as he can. When he has had his ride, he probably gives the driver a quarter and then waits for a nickel change. Technically, this is O. K., but don't you think it rather cheap? In addition, if these persons would consider the fact that most cab drivers pay rent on cabs, insurance, hack driver's license, and, should he own the car, because of its hard usage, must be overhauled, and gas and oil, as well as tires, cost money—if they would consider these things they would probably be a little less harsh in their judgments.

The Capital Transit Co. is probably doing its best to transport the various employed persons. I have had to use the buses and street cars too, and many times have come late to work because of a dawdling driver, but it has not even occurred to me to report the number on the driver's cap? How about giving the cab driver the courtesy you give a bus driver, and giving both kinds of men the courtesy you would give an equal or superior—they serve, I agree, but they are human, too.

Thumbs Up!

". . . . We are, as a Nation, fully appreciative of the great-heartedness of the American people; one good thing the war has done is to show us where we have our friends.

"But, really, life under the blitz is not so terrible; we used to wonder, when brave little Finland was undergoing her crucifixion, 'How would we take it if it came to us?' and now that it is here, we almost take it in our stride. This city has suffered terribly in the four heavy attacks, but the people come up smiling, any idea of negotiating with Germany is absolutely out of everyone's mind; in fact, a feeling of quiet confidence is noticeable; we have faith in our great prime minister, and deep in the hearts of the people is faith in God.

". . . we are really very cheerful—food is just a little difficult, but we have plenty; . . . I feel proud to be living in this country at this time—'our greatest hour.'"

The above letter was recently received from a friend in Bristol, England. It is such a fine description of the indomitable spirit in which England is taking it that we thought others would be interested.

Graphic Horror

To see the soldiers dead on the battlefield in the news reels of today is both horrifying and very unpleasant. How much pain it brings to the hearts of all mothers who, like myself, have sons in the service. Their silent prayers must, like mine, be that God will never let this happen to any American sailor or soldier.

Why bring this horror to the screen in such a realistic manner? It is bad enough to read and hear of the war, without having to see the dead right before your eyes. How about it?

"War Aims"

Prime Minister Churchill has asserted in Parliament that "there is such common comprehension in the United States" of British war aims that no occasion had arisen to outline them for representatives of the American Government. Mr. Churchill errs.

Perhaps Mr. Churchill is unaware of the protests in Parliament and in the British press at the British government's reluctance to state its war aims. If members of Parliament and the British press do not know the British war aims, then it is certainly curious that Mr. Churchill should expect the United States to know them.

Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador in Washington, was very frank about war aims of his government. "We must reconstruct the world," he said, ". . . so as to prevent another war." This opinion is reminiscent of Versailles.

Americans have no more specific conception of Great Britain's war aims than Lord Halifax. Mr. Churchill, who is as one with Mr. Roosevelt on foreign policy, does "not feel that there is any pressing need for Britain to outline its war aims yet." These and other facts point to the conclusion that both the American and the British governments are afraid to inform the people of war aims, because these aims would not be acceptable to the people. A Call To Republicans

I am as hard-shelled, unrelenting a Republican as can be easily envisioned, but from the depths of my heart I wish that my party would open its eyes to our relation to the world situation. The very fact of our blessed national freedom makes us debtors to our neighbors everywhere who are spending prodigally from their store of life and treasure to sustain freedom. A verse of Scripture says, "Freely ye have received; freely give."

Please, fellow-Republicans, stop obstructing; forget frayed-at-the-edges party lines; come down from your pinnacle of gorgeous isolation and follow generously the leadership of a world-minded, straight-thinking, vigorous man like Mr. Willkie, who is intensely eager and able to make our great party and our country a light indeed shining in a dark world. Analogy

Let me draw a word picture of a certain situation in the present World War:

A cabin in the woods; a bear on the south side; a man with a loaded gun on the north side.

The ferocious bear is about to charge the man at the corner.

The threatened man yells to the man with the loaded gun: "Give me your gun, quick, and I'll kill the bear!"

But the man with the loaded gun is very wise, he fancies, and wants to think the matter over and be sure. "Now, suppose," he ponders, "I let him take my gun, and he doesn't kill the bear. Where would I be?"

Need we carry the analogy any further? FRED D. JACOBS.

Commercial Aviation Plea

There were only 342 commercial airplanes in the United States last October. All of these planes are ready for use in the Army or Navy service as troop transports or bombers. Likewise, the pilots and co-pilots operating these planes are subject to call for active Army or Navy duty, as most of them hold reserve commissions in the Air Corps.

As long as there is no necessity for fast movement of troops, the commercial pilots are acquiring experience at the expense of an economically sound transport enterprise.

It is not hard to realize that air mail, air express, and rapid passenger transport are essential in wartime and are necessary if a belligerent nation is to operate effectively. Our planes, at the present time, are carrying many defense supplies and providing transport for many travelers on defense business.

The air carriers had 250 planes on order for delivery in 1941. They agreed with the National Defense Advisory Council to release half of this equipment on order to the Army and Navy. If the carriers are to expand normally, they should have at least 500 more planes by the middle of 1942. This number of planes represents only a drop in the bucket when compared with the thousands being built for war purposes. To be exact, it is only about 1 per cent of the number of planes that the defense program calls for. Due to the different type of skill and machinery needed to produce commercial planes as compared with military craft, the production of these planes will not impede the defense program to any noticeable extent. Any statement to the effect that commercial production slows up the line of military production is absurd.

Britain today is operating 95 per cent of her prewar commercial transport system and is still allocating some of her new planes to commercial use. The English are regretting that they did not develop a widespread commercial system. It would enable her to have communication and transportation to all of her extensive empire.

For several years Congress has recognized commercial air transportation as vital to the national defense. We have nothing to lose and everything to gain by encouraging commercial air transport and allowing it to grow. It is a wise policy to allow our commercial airlines to expand at a normal pace, because their business is sound and healthy, and offers a potential reservoir for unemployed labor after the war is over and the bottom has fallen out of our present lopsided militaristic economy.

Proximity To War

What's the necessity for all of these so-called "expert" opinions as to whether or not the enactment of the lease-lend bill will take us closer to war? Anyone with even the least understanding of the conventional emotions of mankind must realize that our supplying war weapons to England, for the very obvious purpose of defeating Germany, is not going to alleviate the already well-developed hatred of the Nazis for democracies.

As a comparison, suppose we were at war with England, and Nazi Germany would lend its war weapons to England for our defeat, would our love for nazism be enhanced by the act?

If the carrying out of the lease-lend formula doesn't take us closer to war, then Germany will either be afraid of us, or else the most shining example of understanding the world has ever known. And I, for one, do not believe she will be either. J. J. SPERRY.

The Post Impressionist

Miss Harriet Martineau

LORD BROUGHAM'S "little, deaf woman from Norwich" arrived in Washington during the winter of 1835 on her journey through the United States to see how democracy worked.

She was accompanied by Miss Jeffrey, her traveling companion, whose "supreme rationality and faultless temper" were ever a comfort, and by her indispensable ear trumpet. Miss Martineau, a serious woman, looked upon her deafness as no liability, for speaking down an ear trumpet was not conducive to levity. The author of "Illustrations of Political Economy" was not a frivolous woman interested in idle prittle-prattle.

There really was altogether too much of it in Washington to please her. In fact, she did not like Washington at all. To her it was a straggling, dreary place—the roads deep in mire; the houses small and far apart, and the people provincial. After five weeks, she was glad to shake the clay from her shoes and later on in the spring to sail up the beautiful Ohio to the city of Cincinnati. There the houses were imposing; the people all prosperous; the society cultured, and the public buildings a credit to any country. It would be a matter of only a few years, thought she, when the Capital City would be moved to Ohio.

IN SPITE OF Miss Martineau's small opinion of Washington, Washington admired her prodigiously. Not since the visit of Lafayette were so many parties given. The British Embassy entertained her, of course. Mrs. Woodbury, the wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, invited 18 of the most important Washingtonians to meet her at a dinner party where 30 different meat dishes were served. The abstemious Miss Martineau confined herself to a thin slice of turkey, one of ham, and the society of Henry Clay.

President Jackson also gave a large dinner for her. He, it seems, tried to be an impartial host. His guests were invited, not because of their congeniality, but because of their contiguous position in the alphabet. The evening Miss Martineau was entertained, it was time for the J's, K's and L's to be at the White House. Although the crystal chandelier in the state dining-room sparkled and scintillated, the company was rather dull, and Miss Martineau returned to Mrs. Peyton's boarding house on Pennsylvania Avenue mentally and spiritually wilted.

Mrs. Samuel Harrison Smith's dinner party was not so large nor so formal as some of the others but it was, probably, much more to Miss Martineau's taste.

HENRY ORR, the mulatto, who served as caterer at all of the fashionable dinner parties during the early days of our Republic and who had much pride in his profession, was chagrined when Mrs. Smith told him about her plans for the dinner. Only eight meat courses seemed to him too meager. He was abashed to think of England's great economist and writer on the poor laws seated at such a bare table. Mrs. Smith was a woman of character and the pleas of Henry budged her not a whit. With such a limitation placed upon him, he had not much heart to go on. But at last the menu was decided upon. A bouilli was to be placed at the foot of the table and to remain there until after the soup and fish courses had been removed. Then came the canvasback ducks and pheasants. For side dishes there were to be Virginia ham, turkey, partridges, mutton chops, sweetbreads and oyster pie. The vegetables were stewed celery, spinach, salisify, cauliflower, beets and potatoes. There was to be the usual array of custards, blanc-mange, jellies and sugar-plums. For dessert, Mrs. Smith had planned to have pies and puddings. But when she saw the anguish on Henry's face, she relented and accepted his suggestion of forms of ice cream at the head of the table and a pyramid of oranges and grapes at the foot.

"Indeed, Ma'am," groaned he, "puddings and pies are no longer genteel."

The dinner was to be at the fashionable hour of 5, but Miss Martineau and her companion arrived quite early. They had started out in the morning to take a walk and to make some calls. At 3 o'clock, finding themselves near Mrs. Smith's home, they decided not to go back to the boarding house to dress. In fact, they had started forth in the morning all prepared for just such a contingency. Mrs. Smith showed them to her bedroom. There they drew forth from the capacious pockets of their French dresses hair brushes, combs, satin slippers, fresh silk stockings, lace mits, jewelry and scarfs. In a short time they were suitably dressed for the party.

MISS MARTINEAU enjoyed most of all her visits to the Senate. And it was a notable Senate that she had the opportunity of visiting. "I thought I never saw a finer set of heads," wrote she afterwards. Mr. Calhoun attracted her, first, with "his splendid eyes, the straight forehead surmounted by a load of stiff, dark hair."

She never tired of listening to Daniel Webster, who always came to the Senate clothed in blue and buff, the colors of the Whig Party. But for Henry Clay she had the greatest admiration. His graceful carriage, his wonderful grasp of public affairs, his "deliciously winning voice," his kindness and his high integrity enchanted her.

The women spectators, though who had, at that time, the privilege of the floor, annoyed her. Their waving plumes, their brightly colored dresses, their whisperings behind their hands convinced her that they did not come to listen to the debates and to improve their minds. That some of the Senators enjoyed their female audience amazed her. When others compared the members' stalking from their seats to those of the ladies to cranes in search of fish, she was delighted. And, finally, when Judge Porter banished the spectators from the floor to the galleries, she felt that at least the legislative branch of our Government was all that it should be and that democracy was a permanent institution in our country. Today And Tomorrow

The Imaginary And The Actual War

UNTIL THE French defeat last spring an Allied statesman was like the fox who said the grapes were sour if he pretended that he saw no need of American troops in Europe. Last winter an American visiting among the French commanders and their staffs was certain to be asked by everyone he talked with how soon the American troops would begin to arrive. The question was bound to be asked at that time. For until the French army dissolved and the British army was withdrawn from the continent, the Allied commanders were doing what has usually been done by commanders who are destined to be defeated—they were trying to fight the previous war all over again.

LIPPMANN

They had hoped, as in the other war, to establish an eastern battlefront, with Poland backed by Russia, and a western front manned by Britain and France, and eventually by America as well. Even when the eastern plan collapsed, the generals who were conducting the war and the Chamberlains and Daladiers who were in office at the time, continued to think of this war as another 1914-18. They thought that with Germany blockaded there would be super-trench warfare from Switzerland to the sea until the British had conscripted enough soldiers, and the Allies had accumulated enough munitions, to blast their way into Germany.

HAVING FAILED to grasp the technical revolution resulting from the coordination of the airplane, the tank, and the armored mechanized corps, they did not understand the tactics of the war on land, and the immense strategical consequences of this technical revolution. The previous war was the one and only kind of war they could imagine and so, as a matter of course, they conceived this war as another war fought by masses of men trying to achieve a massacre by hurling shells at one another and driving the infantry against the barbed wires and the machine guns.

The war that the Allied commanders imagined was never fought. What we called the blitzkrieg disposed of the notion, which discerning men have always known was false, that this war is a repetition of the other. But the opposing minority in Congress do not yet know it. And all that they have to say about how we are being enticed to send the young men to die on the battlefields in Europe, is derived in the final analysis from the fact that they still think of this war today as the defeated commanders and discredited Allied statesmen thought of it until last June. If this were still the war that the Allies thought they were fighting under the command of the French generals and before Dunkerque and before Mr. Churchill assumed the supreme command, it would not be possible to believe the British Prime Minister when he said that the Allies would never need the American Army. But today, what Mr. Churchill says on this point is the indisputable truth because since Dunkerque it is no longer to be doubted that this is not another bloody land war in continental Europe as in 1914-1918 but the greatest naval war of all time.

THE DISCERNING have known this since 1936 when, under the pretense of attacking Communism in Russia, Germany, Italy, and Japan entered into an alliance against British and American sea power in the Atlantic, the Mediterranean, and the Pacific. This is and always has been the actual war. In this war the Axis conquests in Europe and Asia have been incidental and preliminary moves to place themselves within effective striking distance of the foundations of British and American sea power. That is why Norway was invaded. That is the strategical meaning of the conquest of France. That was the reason for luring Italy into the war. That is the meaning of the threats against Gibraltar, against the Balkans, Turkey, and Suez, against Indo-China, the Netherlands Indies, and Singapore.

While the opposition in Congress have their minds fixed on another war within Europe, and are quite rightly resolved not to get involved in another expeditionary force for the purpose of mass massacre on the continent, the actual but totally different war is proceeding without their having realized what is going on. There is no question of motives. No doubt those of the minority are quite as good as anyone's. Nor is it a question of purposes and ideals on which presumably almost all Americans are in the end agreed. This is a debate between those who are talking about this actual war for the command of the seas and those who still think, despite all that happened in France last spring, that this is another European war fought on the continent by great masses of infantry.

IT WILL not be long now before everyone capable of understanding anything will see that this is a great maritime war. It is a war which will be won or lost in great actions all over the world centering upon the elements of sea power: upon the British Isles, upon the main entrances and exits to the seas, upon the merchant ships and warships, upon the bases and strategic fortresses of the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and the Pacific.

This is a war for the command of the oceans in the midst of which lie the two American continents. The destiny of the North American continent was determined once in the Sixteenth Century by the defeat of the Spanish Armada, and again in the Eighteenth Century by the defeat of the French Empire. In the Nineteenth Century the destiny of this hemisphere was determined by that assertion of sea power which we call the Monroe Doctrine. In the Twentieth Century the destiny of the western world will be determined by this gigantic naval war which was first projected in 1936, was not understood by the Allied statesmen who were in office until last spring, nor by their generals, and is not yet understood in this country by the opposition in Congress. Yet things continue to exist even when men do not understand them and events proceed though public men do not foresee them. The war, the actual and not the imaginary war, exists. It proceeds on its inexorable and terrible course. And at this very moment it may be coming to a climax that will compel everyone at last to understand it.

Fair Enough

Supreme Court Split

A RECENT OPINION of the United States Supreme Court, issued in the writing of Justice Felix Frankfurter, may be interpreted by some labor unions as a special license to commit wrong against law-abiding members of the community and thus against the community itself. The fact that unions are private associations, and may be utterly corrupt, was not touched upon but deserves the consideration of laymen and Congress. This decision is consistent with the New Deal Party, which itself was largely derived from Justice Frankfurter through his influence on the education of lawyers, who, in turn, have affected the thought of the Government on the subject of the rights of industry, property and the individual citizen in relation to labor unions.

In a prosecution of four leaders of the Carpenters' Union, brought by Thurman Arnold, of the Department of Justice, the majority opinion of the Supreme Court, written by Justice Frankfurter, clearly imputes to Congress an intention to tolerate the pursuit of wrongful ends by labor unions.

CONGRESS withdrew the right of injunction from potential victims of union picketing apparently on the ground that this right might be invoked to hamper unions in their legitimate, militant activities on behalf of their members. Justice Frankfurter and the majority now hold that unions are also exempt from penalties after the acts have been committed, even though such conduct violated their contract obligations.

It may be, also that an innocent victim of a boycott enforced by false representations may have no redress, provided that the offender be a labor union, although it is a well-known fact that some unions denounce others as anti-labor groups and many unions are crooked rackets.

The majority opinion of Justice Frankfurter and the minority opinion, written by Justice Roberts, with Chief Justice Hughes concurring, are reminiscent in an elegant way of a group of guardhouse lawyers disputing the articles of war. Learned lawyers all, the Bench even split into three minds, with Justice Stone off in a corner muttering that there was just no case, anyway.

The majority opinion, in its direction of thought, certainly does not hamper the New Deal labor policy. Under this opinion unions can feel encouraged to commit offenses against workers, employers and utterly disinterested parties, and always, in such cases, against the whole community. Eventually, unless checked, this course might provide the Administration with an excuse to embrace the unions in a Government labor front on the ground that the independent labor movement has become an obstructive, destructive nuisance. That being done, the Government, as the bargaining agent of all the workers, obviously would be in a position to make independent existence impossible for industry as well.

THE CASE was one in which the employer, the Anheuser-Busch Co. of St. Louis, was plainly not guilty of any violation of the rights of labor, although pickets represented that the company was unfair to organized labor.

The carpenters violated an agreement to arbitrate disputes with the machinists on a construction job and struck not only Anheuser-Busch but two other companies with which that firm had business relations. Anheuser-Busch suffered great loss through a strike and boycott when it had no power to revise the allotment of jobs between the carpenters and machinists. Such actions by labor unions, incidentally, are apparently admitted by Justice Frankfurter to be "familiar practice in these situations."

The laws cited are the Sherman Antitrust Act and the Clayton and Norris-LaGuardia Acts, which latter two modified the Sherman law's severity in union disputes.

ALTHOUGH Justice Frankfurter, in advocating the Norris-LaGuardia Act some years ago, insisted that "civil actions for damages and criminal prosecutions remain available instruments" for the redress of wrongs by unions, he now appears to hold that the Clayton Act relieves them of all responsibility. Justice Roberts and Chief Justice Hughes find just that meaning in his majority opinion.

The thing is now a gaudy mess, but Congress at last is getting up the gumption to lay down some real law that no ideologist can construe away or distort to the distress of the country and the political benefit of obdurate unioneers.

Socialist Economy

By Mark Sullivan

Implications Of The Lease-Lend Bill

SOME OF THE delay and reluctance about enacting the lease-lend bill is caused by a surmise about the relations between the United States and Britain in the broad sense. The surmise is:

That in Britain a small number of leaders of the British Labor Party entertain the expectation that Britain is to be made a country with a socialist economy. In some cases the expectation may be more than an expectation; it may be a planned intention.

That in the United States, a small number of persons associated with the leadership of the New Deal have a corresponding expectation or intention about this country.

SULLIVAN

That between the two groups there is understanding. That the idea is to bring about a program of socialist economy, similar in form, in the two countries. That the lease-lend bill, if enacted, as well as the relations generally between the two countries, would be used to facilitate the process.

TANGIBLE statement of such a program is rare. One leader of the British Labor Party, Mr. Ernest Bevin, has been quoted as saying that after the war there must be "economic reconstruction of the whole foundation of society." Another spokesman of the British Labor Party, Mr. Harold Laski, has been even more explicit.

That some such idea exists is believed or surmised by many who follow Washington matters closely. Several Washington newspapermen of the highest standing have alluded to it. At the time of the appointment of Mr. John G. Winant to be our Ambassador to Britain, there was frequent allusion to this underlying condition. Mr. Raymond Clapper, a writer of impeccable good faith, rather sympathetic to the New Deal, wrote:

"Mr. Winant's appointment is the product of the preoccupation here with the future of British economy—the preoccupation with the future of the British Labor group and its leader, Ernest Bevin, who is expected by many in the Administration to be the next Prime Minister of England. Mr. Winant is not so much an Ambassador to the Court of St. James's as an ambassador to the court of Mr. Bevin."

TO THE SAME effect, two columnists especially well-informed about the inner group of the New Deal, and sympathetic to that group, Messrs. Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner, wrote:

"Mr. Winant was the President's man, chosen in the face of unusually determined opposition at the State Department. . . . The President, is authoritatively understood to have been much influenced by intimations from London that Mr. Winant's appointment would be extremely agreeable to the British labor leaders. In the course of his work at Geneva Mr. Winant became particularly intimate with the famous British Minister of Labor, Ernest Bevin, and the New Dealers here hopefully anticipate that having a crony at the American Embassy will strengthen Mr. Bevin's hand in British politics. Mr. Bevin seems, in truth, to be becoming a major preoccupation of the President and the New Deal group in the Administration."

A thorough and reliable reporter of Washington events and trends, Mr. Raymond P. Brandt, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, wrote at the time the appointment of Mr. Winant was pending:

"It is one of the unverifiable reports in Washington that his appointment was asked of President Roosevelt by Ernest Bevin, the trade union leader who became minister of labor in the Churchill government."

TO THE SAME effect, and in greater detail, an especially careful and well-informed correspondent, Mr. Arthur Krock, of the New York Times, describes a disturbing suspicion which accounts for the hesitancy of some about the "lease-lend" bill:

"The suspicion is, and for some time has been, that the American and British new dealers who have the most influence with the President, aim at a socialization of industry in both countries; that the form of the lease-lend bill will assist in bringing about that result here; and that Ambassador Winant was selected as the best liaison officer to that end with Britons of like mind . . ."

It is hardly possible that all these correspondents should be mistaken, and identical in their mistake—to those who know them, and know the Washington scene; it is not conceivable they are mistaken. Their statements, read by members of Congress, necessarily and justifiably create a feeling that before passing the lease-lend bill it is desirable to know all about the bill's background and implications, what use might be made of it.

IT IS DESIRABLE that the lease-lend bill should be judged on its face, by its merits, as a method of helping Britain to resist conquest by Hitler. To this end, the intimation that it has a secondary purpose beneath the surface should be brought into the open and cleared up. Possibly Mr. Wendell Willkie, from his thorough examination of conditions in England, might be able to help. Mr. Willkie is a thorough believer in the American economy of free enterprise.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Private Purkey

DEAR MA:

Everything is about the same here in camp, especially the weather which has been of two kinds all winter bad and worser and anybody who gets drafted this spring instead of in midwinter like I did is getting a great brake. My feet have taken so much abuse they are unconscious, and don't believe that stuff about this being a machine war as I have never seen so much walking done in peace or war. From my experience I think I have been drafted in a bunions derby.

Nothing makes the boys so sore up hear as when they get a paper and read about all them strikes and walkouts around the country. Every time I here about those guys with nice warm jobs who go home every night to homecooked chow and yet squawk about the hours and the pay it gives me a pain you know where. Believe me if I was out of the Army and had a job where I could quit every night and not saloot nobody I would mow down anybody who tried to sell me the idea I was not getting a square dele.

Well, I am getting use to spending all my time in a uniform now but it is no cinch after being used to having three soots in different colors, one with patched pockets and one with cuffs on the pants all my life. Gee, ma, it would feel swell to get into a white shirt, striped necktie and Sunday soot once in a while. In the Army you have to ware the same soot Sunday you wore all week.

I can be transferred to a tank corpse if I want to, but I don't know whether I would like it much. The work looks too confining, and while I would like to get into a service that would be easier on my feet a tank aint my idea of no pleasure kar. A friend of mine was in the tanks and he says it is like going to war in a safe. A tank is like a taxi with no springs, and with all the upholstering done by a scrap iron man. I guess I would be safer from stray bullets in a tank, but I do not think I will sign up unless I thumb a ride and see for myself how it is. Before a soldier joins a tank corpse the least the Government should do is give him a demonstrayshun.

How is the defense program coming on back home? I see where some Washington witnesses say the country is short of planes, guns, tanks and everything. As the old gag goes, this is a fine time to tell me, heh, ma?

I wish the Government wood turn the whole thing over to Henry Ford. He is the father of quantity produckshun and the mother too, I guess. All you have to give him is a monkey rench, a few nuts and a general idea what the war needs and he will turn it out so fast that Uncle Sam will not only have enough planes, tanks and guns for 1941 and 1942, but will be giving previews of the 1943 moddells.

Do not worry about me as my flew is a little better and I am getting used to chilblains. After all I was lucky not to get sent with them boys to New Fundlind.

Love,

OSCAR.

It certainly seems funny to think of Otto Harbach, Irving Caesar, Oley Speaks, Jerome Kern and all those song writers accused of being violators of the Sherman antitrust law. They probably never dreamed they could do a thing like that on a piano.

We still think there must be something more back of the Department of Justice war on the song writers than appears on the surface. Do you suppose Bob Jackson or Thurman Arnold ever had the experience of living in a rooming house full of Tin Pan Alley boys?

Elmer Twitchell says he has made a close study of Marshal Goering's uniforms and finds they are the work jointly of Omar the Tentmaker and Buddy De Sylva.

Lindbergh Testimony

By Harold J. Laski

"He Has Said Too Much Or Too Little"

London.

A FEW HOURS ago came news of the fall of Bengasi and therewith the conquest, in rather less than two months, of the whole of eastern Libya. With this victory, the climax of an operation as superbly planned as it has been brilliantly executed, Italy confronts in slightly more than seven months the collapse of her whole African empire; for the foundations of her power in Eritrea and Abyssinia have already probably been shaken.

LASKI

There are two comments on this supreme achievement that are, I think, worth while to make, one from the British and one from the American angle. From the British angle, it is clear enough that no praise could be too high for the way in which Sir Archibald Wavell carried through a campaign involving not only complex operations over difficult country but also that full cooperation among the three arms of modern warfare which has great promise for the future. But immense as is Sir Archibald's achievement, one must not lose sight of another context in which it must be set to be appreciated.

For the decision to embark upon this campaign was the joint responsibility of Mr. Churchill and Sir John Dill, chief of the Imperial General Staff. They made their decision in those dark days when France was falling, when every hour seemed likely to mean invasion of England and when the British army had been deprived of a large part of its equipment at Dunkerque. It was a decision, on any showing, which required unlimited faith and courage. Its risks were enormous. Without it, the Italians might have been in a position to strike at Egypt with almost immeasurable consequences. Without it, also, the British people would have lacked a new, vital source of resolution and self-confidence.

THE RESULTS have proved themselves. They have shown that relationship between the statesman and the soldier which is of the essence of success in war. They have revealed not only the latent power of the British Commonwealth of Nations; they have revealed also that we have in our leadership a man with imagination and the daring to use that power. People hold their heads high in England today. They feel that their endurance is at last being translated into the terms of those victories which give assurance of the ultimate outcome of the war.

As this news comes, we have been reading from full American reports the testimony of Col. Lindbergh before the Congressional committees on the "lease-lend bill." Quite obviously, Col. Lindbergh is entitled to the view that a drawn battle is the best outcome of this war; none can invalidate the findings of another man's emotions. Quite obviously, also, he is entitled to speak to Congress of the immense air power of Germany, which he saw for himself three years ago. What is bound to puzzle the outsider is the range of subject matter upon which Col. Lindbergh speaks with the assumed authority of an expert. That he is an aviator of unsurpassed brilliance and courage none needs to be told. That he has thought hard upon the problems of aviation is obvious from his experience since his transatlantic flight. That since his achievements he has mingled much with those to whom the issues of international politics are a staple of conversation one need not doubt.

What is surprising to the outsider is the implication that this experience makes Col. Lindbergh an authority upon a range of questions each of which depends for its answer upon factors the knowledge of which can hardly have come his way. The part that sea power will play in this war, the part that economic strain will have, those psychological impalpables of which those most experienced in the ways of government will take most account, the reaction of the Italian defeat on stricken France and triumphant Germany, its consequences in the Balkans—is Col. Lindbergh an expert upon those? He knows little of the mounting volume of resources at our disposal. He has never had to undergo any careful examination upon what Mr. Justice Holmes would have called the "inarticulate major premises of his thinking." In no sense a specialist in the realm into which he has ventured, he makes judgments about issues full knowledge about which is not only outside his competence but is outside that of anyone in the United States except a small official circle. To an Englishman, the use of his authority in a limited field as the basis upon which to advise the Legislature of the United States indicates an attitude of mind which marks amazing self-confidence.

MR. ASQUITH once said of Lord Curzon that he had the "conscious knowledge of effortless superiority." It is difficult not to feel that something of the same quality is revealed by Col. Lindbergh in his evidence.

He gives us conclusions; he ought to give us fully the argument for his conclusions. He wants peace by negotiation. What leads him to believe that Hitler would keep his pledged word? Does he think, what reason has he to think, that Hitler would restore to the occupied countries that way of life to the maintenance of which we are pledged? He does not think a British victory possible. Would Col. Lindbergh seven months ago have thought possible so massive a catastrophe as that which Italy has suffered in Africa? In effect, his attitude is a plea to America to use her influence to compel a compromise with the dictators. That means leaving Hitler in being, with his Gestapo and his concentration camps. Does that not matter to Col. Lindbergh? Does he know what they are like? Has he ever talked with those who have been their victims? More important still, has he, after the last eight years, the belief that democracy and dictatorships can successfully live side by side? Most important of all, when he speaks of the defense of America does he imply in that defense the safeguarding of American democracy? Or does he separate in his mind defense of the American Nation from defense of American democracy?

IT WAS, I think, John Bright who said the worst of great thinkers was that they so seldom thought greatly. The danger of the eminent aviator is that he associates competence in a particular technique with the right to pronouncements on omniscience. We think Prof. Urey a great chemist, but we do not think that gives him the right to speak expertly on American foreign policy. We think Miss Edna St. Vincent Millay a charming poet, but that gives no special weight to her opinion on America's housing problems. And in the same way, when we in this country are fighting for our national existence, we cannot but think it presumptuous on Col. Lindbergh's part to announce the answers to equations most of the variables in which are unknown to him and wholly outside his experience. No doubt some of our indignation comes out of our view that Col. Lindbergh has no special friendliness for the principles for which we stand in this conflict. That prejudices us with regard to him.

But we think he has said too much or too little. Too much, if what he says represents all he claims to know, for he knows little more than the competent reader of the press. Too little, if he wants a real assessment of his claim to speak. He ought to give us the whole of his mind. But I doubt that he will risk the dangers of that exposure.

Wisdom Of T. R.

Words For Our Time

(The following quotations are taken from the "Theodore Roosevelt Cyclopedia," a collection of approximately 5,000 quotations from Roosevelt's speeches and writings recently published by the Roosevelt Memorial Association.)

Americanism is a question of principle, of purpose, of idealism, of character; not a matter of birthplace, or creed, or line of descent.—(1908).

Discrimination against the holder of one faith means retaliatory discrimination against men of other faiths. The inevitable result of entering upon such a practice would be an abandonment of our real freedom of conscience and a reversion to the dreadful conditions of religious dissension which in so many lands have proved fatal to true liberty, to true religion, and to all advance in civilization.—(1908).

There is no use in saying that we will fit ourselves to defend ourselves a little, but not much. Such a position is equivalent to announcing that, if necessary, we shall hit, but we shall only hit soft. The only right principle is to prepare thoroughly or not at all. The only right principle is to avoid hitting if it is possible to do so, but never under any circumstances to hit soft. To go to war a little, but not much, is the one absolutely certain way to insure disaster. To prepare a little, but not much, stands on a par with a city developing a fire department which, after a fire occurs, can put it out a little, but not much.—(1916).

Boasting and blustering are as objectionable among nations as among individuals, and the public men of a great nation owe it to their sense of national self-respect to speak courteously of foreign powers, just as a brave and self-respecting man treats all around him courteously. But though to boast is bad, and causelessly to insult another, worse, yet worse than all is it to be guilty of boasting, even without insult, and when called to the proof to be unable to make such boasting good. There is a homely old adage which runs: "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If the American Nation will speak softly, and yet build, and keep at a pitch of the highest training, a thoroughly efficient Navy, the Monroe Doctrine will go far.—(1903).

The labor problem is a human and a moral as well as an economic problem; . . . a fall in wages, an increase in hours, a deterioration of labor conditions, mean wholesale moral as well as economic degeneration, and the needless sacrifice of human lives and human happiness; while a rise of wages, a lessening of hours, a bettering of conditions, mean an intellectual, moral, and social uplift of millions of American men and women.—(1913).

The strike situation in the United States at this time is a scandal to the country as a whole and discreditable alike to employer and employe. Any employer who fails to recognize that human rights come first and that the friendly relationship between himself and those working for him should be one of partnership and comradeship in mutual help no less than self-help is recreant to his duty as an American citizen; and it is to his interest, having in view the enormous destruction of life in the present war, to conserve, and to train to higher efficiency alike for his benefit and for its, the labor supply. In return any employe who acts along the lines publicly advocated by the men who profess to speak for the I. W. W. is not merely an open enemy of business but of this entire country and is out of place in our Government.—(1915).

Waver in Compass Needle Blamed On the Moon

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (AP).—One of the daily fluctuations in compass needles was explained today by a discovery that they come from tides in the air caused by the moon.

These air tides act like generators and produce electric current in the atmosphere which changes the magnetic lines that guide the compass.

This explanation was made to the American Philosophical Society by Dr. John A. Fleming, director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The air tide is a vast swell in the atmosphere extending probably hundreds of miles up, which follows the moon around the earth the same as the ocean tides, although not usually at the same hours.

Like the ocean tides, the air tides flow back and forth twice a day. Errors in the compass needle follow these tides faithfully. They are deflections of a fraction of a degree.

Study of English Unsafe in Japan, Says Tokyo Report

Tokyo, Feb. 14 (AP).—The newspaper Nichi Nichi quoted a youthful student today as saying it no longer is safe for a Japanese to study English in public.

The youth said he was slapped on the face by a man who saw him studying English vocabulary cards on the way to his school, where the subject is barred.

A translator for the Japan Advertiser reported he was berated by a kimono-wearing Japanese for reading the English edition of the paper—which is controlled by the foreign office—while riding an interurban train.

700 Reserves Enter Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 14 (AP).—The United States Naval Academy, keeping pace with defense preparations, today took in its first class of reserve midshipmen—701 young men who will be rushed through a 90-day course leading to ensigns' commissions in the Naval Reserve.

Arriving by automobile, bus and train from every State in the Union, the reserve middies filed into Bancroft Hall to report to Academy officers. By late afternoon they had been sworn in, following a brief address by Capt. F. A. L. Vossler, commandant of midshipmen.

After getting uniforms and textbooks, the reserves settled down in Bancroft Hall, the midshipmen dormitory, which will be their quarters for the next three months.

Classes will begin Monday for the reserves, who have had at least two years of college education and have been on 30-day cruises aboard battleships.

Their instructors will be 23 members of the midyear graduating class who failed to pass eye examinations.

The curriculum for deck officers includes ordnance, navigation and seamanship. Candidates for engineer officers will study such subjects as marine engineering, electricity and seamanship. Those who pass the courses will receive reserve ensigns' commissions.

WPA's Answer to the Maid Problem

By Lucia Giddens,
Post Staff Writer

Eight young women stepped into the work-a-day world a few days ago fortified with a written formula for being "model servants."

INDIVIDUAL COVER
An average of 24 inches should be allowed for each cover

"Graduates" of the Household Workers Training Project of the District WPA, they had been trained to plan, cook and serve meals, house-clean, do the family washing and ironing, answer bells, remove stains and control household pests.

Although they had been practicing chores for three months at the project's headquarters, 814 Independence Avenue Southwest, they took away with them a tangible piece of equipment—which they'll probably brandish as often as a broom. This is a handbook written especially for them. It amounts to a textbook outlining every step in serving a formal dinner or an informal afternoon tea, in making a bed properly and even in cleaning a closet.

As each "graduate" steps out to seek private employment, she is given a copy of this new handbook, which may before long be increasing the production of model servants on a wider scale. Already an offer has come for publication by a commercial firm which wants to sell it to the public, said J. Bernard McDonnell, director of information at the District WPA.

BED MAKING
Finishing the mitered corner. This is an art in itself.

Eighteen other trainees are at the project's headquarters now, learning how to become the sort of servant who might have stepped out of a book—that is, a handbook. The project, training colored women between 18 and 35 years of age, was designed to help meet the constant demand in Washington for competent household workers. When they finish the course, they are referred to the District Employment Center for placement.

LAUNDERING
Washing a woolen sweater. Garment is spread flat to dry.

Fortified with the new handbook, the household worker has information ranging from her personal dress and manners, to work schedules for service in two-person, four-person or five-person families. The handbook was written by Thelma Huber, formerly the staff's home economics consultant.

One of the first lessons is in answering the telephone, in which the maid is told:

"Be courteous and cheerful at all times and answer promptly and say, 'Mrs. Jones' residence, the maid speaking' . . . If it is necessary to ask the other party to wait, say 'One moment, please,' instead of 'Wait a minute.'"

Ten pages of details tell the household workers how to serve various types of meal. It takes 19 pages to outline all the steps in doing the family laundering. Details are so specific that one direction reads: "Hang shirts by the tails and dresses by the hems."

CLEANING
The trainee learns how to care for a vacuum cleaner, an important chore.

Jean Arthur and William Holden Head Cast In Wesley Ruggles' Epic of Wild and Woolly; 'Valentines' Stage Revue Is Timely Tidbit

BELL

IN "ARIZONA," Producer-Director Wesley Ruggles has done for the Territorial beginnings of the present Western State approximately what he did in "Cimarron" for Oklahoma's pioneer days. He has molded a far-flung, spacious and complete screen play that has something of epic quality about it; a chronicle of events that transcends the purely personal concerns that motivate it and takes on something of the importance of the founding of a Commonwealth.

In fashioning the original Clarence Budington Kelland story to the requirements of the cinema, scenarist Claude Binyon supplied Director Ruggles with all the elements of great "Westerns" that have found their way to the screen since the epochal days of "The Covered Wagon." With the narrative pitched in the period beginning with the year 1860, there are the familiar clashes between the law and the renegades, Indian uprisings, soldiery, both Union and Confederate; a stupendous cattle stampede, gun fights and the strange workings of justice and romance in a Tucson of wild and bloody origin. In the resourceful Ruggles hands these exciting factors have been welded into a picture of fine unity and power that only recedes occasionally from the high tension of thrilling action and bitter conflict. Opportunity has been found in these easier periods of the story's development to soften its sterner moments with a robust flow of comedy, the interpolation of a little music here and there and the furtherance of a pretty love affair expressed in terms of gentle violence.

"Arizona" is filled to the brim with frontier "types" that seem to be authentic as to time and place. They are, for the most part, a be-whiskered and a befouled lot, with a touch of "Eastern" dudism once in a while showing through for the sake of effective contrast. The whole thing is dominated by the ingenuous fortitude of Phoebe Titus, the only white woman in the settlement, who runs her business of pie-making and her life according to the code of the gun and the instincts of a lady. She seems destined, at the picture's end, to be the mother of the first white child born in Arizona. This is the role played with such rugged realism by Jean Arthur. Opposite her, as the youthful nomad who finally learns to stay put, William Holden, splendidly fulfills the promise of his fine performance in the title role of the earlier "Golden Boy." These two are the mainsprings of the film, but, even so, do not tower too high above Warren William, Porter Hall and their associate assassins in the roles of major villainy. Mr. William is the cocksure gentleman bandit; Mr. Hall his cringing and vividly yellow catspaw, finally put to rest by a shot in the back from his "podner," Paul Harvey, in ambush behind one of the picture's better beards; Edgar Buchanan, as an expedient Justice of the Peace—such as it was—and Nina Campana, as Phoebe's ample housekeeper, are foremost among the supporting players.

In his "Valentines of 1941" stage bill, Harry Anger has turned up a nice trick in timeliness. Colorful, compact and more or less capricious, this miniature "revue" enlists specialists who are not too numerous, but are uniformly good. Loper and Barratt, remembered in more than one major stage musical, earn early favor with their sleek and sinuous dances; The Pitchmen, with their ridiculous instruments and remarkable vocalisms, slay the customers at the midway point, and the Calgary Brothers, with their inebriated pantomime and extraordinary slow-motion acrobatics, solidfy their position at the top of the comic heap. In the meantime, the Roxyettes are bowling the pewholders over with their "Heart Muffs" and "Scotch Valentine" routines, which easily rate among their best—especially that Scotch business, which crowds close upon the heels of the original Tiller Girls at their trickiest.

Jo Lombardi's orchestral prelude, in celebration of next week's "Strawberry Blonde," with Gene Archer and Eileen Ritter doing the antique vocals, and a newsreel devoted almost exclusively to Wendell Willkie's testimony before the Senate Committee holding hearings on the Lend-Lease Bill, round out an entertainment that is a handsome valentine for anybody's money.

Fast Make-up Best, Glamour Girl Says

From Hollywood's most glamorous beauty comes a startling announcement.

"Women spend too much time on make-up," are Hedy Lamarr's words. "There should never be anything artificial about beauty," she explains.

"Put on your make-up in a hurry and it generally looks twice as well as it would if you had fussed with it for hours.

"I learned this only after months of trial and error," she went on. "The more time I took to make up, the worse I looked. So I made a vow, and I've kept it. I always start late to get ready for an appointment, allow myself just 15 minutes.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, Feb. 14.

SOMEWHERE in the north of France—Nazi guns permitting—is a church which has a plaque, underneath a large window, reading: "Repaired Through the Gift of the United States Navy." The church had been bombed in 1914. And this is the story of the repairs . . . An American, driving his car along the winding roads of France, was startled when a man tried to dart across its path. The man was knocked down, and the American hurried him to a doctor where the slight injuries were treated . . . The next day the American learned that the man was employed at the village church. He went there, and offered to pay the damages. . . . "No, thank you," he was assured, "It was not your fault." . . . The American insisted upon making some payment.

LYONS

HE SAW the gaping holes in the roof, and the broken stained-glass windows. "We cannot afford to repair it," the American was told. And so he arranged for the repairs, identified himself—and that's why the plaque was erected," in gratitude to the United States Navy" . . . The man was the then Assistant Secretary of the Navy—now thrice elected President of the United States.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE last week, Mr. Roosevelt received a phone call from John Roosevelt, his youngest son. John discussed the South American trip he and his wife are making . . . They plan to leave their baby at the White House, during their absence, and John was advising his father about the necessary care for the child . . . "What? 140?" asked the President, unbelieving. For that was the number of diapers John wanted brought into the White House for the first week of the baby's stay . . . "Youth has changed," sighed the President—and so a Washington diaper service soon will start making deliveries at the White House.

REAL AND EFFECTIVE legislation, to eliminate the poll tax now being assessed in some States, will be introduced in Congress shortly . . . Vincent Sheean's manuscript, which was saved by one of the firemen when Sheean's house burned this week, will be called "Bird of the Wilderness." It's a novel about the mid-West, set in 1916.

ONE OF THE MAIL CENSORS in Bermuda examined a large envelope, addressed to a lady in Berlin, from one of her relatives in New York. He opened it, and found a pair of silk panties. He took it to his superior, who ordered it confiscated immediately . . . An American observer suggested: "Why not let it go on to Lisbon? After all, it's only a pair of panties" . . . "This is total war," the officer explained, "and this comes under the classification of 'Aid and Comfort to the Enemy.'"

JOHN FREDERICS, who bought the small "Gay New Orleans" gates at the World's Fair auctions, received delivery—but of the large entrance gates to the Fair Grounds . . . James Altemus, brother of Liz Whitney, now has two inventions—a record-hanger for which Columbia is negotiating, and a new mount for machine guns . . . When two skating acts of the St. Regis' ice show were unable to appear there last night, the manager phoned the New Yorker Terrace Room, which also has an ice revue, and borrowed two substitutes. . . . The American Theater's Carnival for Britain, at Radio City, promises to be tops for the season . . . John Jacob Astor told his friends: "I feel awful—having nothing to do." To all their suggestions, he replied: "I promise you—I'm going to join the Army."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 14 (INS).—A year ago any Hollywood studio could have signed either Connie Moore or Rita Hayworth for peanuts. Neither girl meant a thing. Today there are more directors wanting Connie and Rita than any other two young actresses. "I Wanted Wings" hasn't yet been released and all we know is what we hear about it, but on the strength of her performance Connie will have a starring role in "Buy Me That Town," with Lloyd Nolan and Albert Dekker. Interesting to me that Lloyd again plays a racketeering role, for he left Paramount once because he was being typed as a heavy.

PARSONS

Well, to return to our other glamour girl, Rita Hayworth, she will probably get the coveted Nita Naldi role in "Blood and Sand" at Twentieth Century-Fox, although the part isn't nearly as big as other movies offered her.

Paulette Goddard came in from Palm Springs today to check with Arthur Hornblow on "Hold Back the Dawn." There were rumors that she was going to Cuba immediately and would bow out of the picture. All of this is untrue. Paulette had wanted to play the school teacher which Olivia DeHavilland is now doing and for which she made excellent tests. Arthur thought she would be much better as the foreign girl (the parts are about equal in importance, I believe) so she was finally persuaded to do as Hornblow suggested.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ad Randall suffered a heart attack while dining in a Beverly Hills cafe and was rushed home; the cosiest pair of diners in town were Elaine Barrie and Billy Seymour, at the Beverly Tropics; rumor is very strong that Helen Gilbert, movie actress, is the secret bride of Billy Marshall; the cutest pair of romancers is Edith Fellows and Robert Jordong; Twentieth has signed Herbert Gunn, who is a dead ringer for Richard Greene—dimple and all; everyone and his bride is turning out for the Valentine party at Ciro's.

In the middle of one of the most exciting rates at Santa Anita Mrs. Fred Astaire, Sylvia Fairbanks and Mrs. Charlie Feldman were talking fashions. But they were all watching the big race to see if "Porter's Hat," as Sylvia called the Howard thoroughbred, would race home; George Raft had a bad day and didn't look too happy; Virginia Field, in a bright red hat, most becoming, was with Alfred Vanderbilt, who told me that he never bet. The only time I collected was on a joint show ticket—one I had with Irene Selznick on Coppertown—and she picked it; Joan Payson, who was with Irene, didn't do very well, either, but it was a lot of fun seeing everyone.

Sylvia Fairbanks is working night and day for the pay cocktail party she and Lady Mendl are giving at the House of Murphy Monday; Marlene Dietrich and Mark Hellinger lunching tete-a-tete to discuss her coming Warner movie; Loretta Young leaves over the weekend to spend six weeks with her husband, Tom Lewis, and is she a happy girl.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Feb. 14.

The other day I piled into a United Airliner with 10 press boys for a quick hop to the famous Mojave Desert where Epic-maker Frank Lloyd was directing his new saga of woman suffrage in Wyoming, called "The Lady From Cheyenne." Ten minutes after stepping from the plane, we approached a frontier American railroad depot with ancient puffing locomotive—and nearby Frank Craven, urging his ox team to pull that printing press on wheels.

HOPPER

Five hundred extras were milling about in the dust under a blazing desert sun. A squalling baby, frightened by the thunder of horses' hoofs and the clanging bell of the wood-burning locomotive, had spoiled two takes.

And standing in position once again for the big scene was Loretta Young as Annie Morgan (the lady from Cheyenne), heading a mob of campaigning women. She was going to the State Legislature to fight for a place for honest women on a jury she hoped would convict a gang of crooks. Nearby a mob of angry men were sending Steve Lewis (Bob Preston) to the same place to fight Loretta.

The giant camera boom, operated by 10 men, was gyrating high and low, left and right, to catch one complete shot of the huge crowd. And 'way in the background, an extra, who was hired because he owned Bessie, a cow, was jockeying her into position for the shot, whispering, "Come on, now, take it easy, money-maker."

When they broke for lunch you could see hundreds of extras, dressed in cheap ginghams, riding boots, squatting down on either side of the dirt road, hundreds of yards up along the sagebrush country, eating sandwiches, salad, coffee off trays. Loretta, Bob Preston, and Frank Craven were full of the excitement of a location trip, which is always fascinating, no matter how long you've been in this business. You never quite get the smell of grease paint out of your system.

Lovable Frank Craven was excited, in his quiet way, about his son John, whom I saw in New York giving a grand performance opposite Edna Best in a play which ran two weeks. John is now doing a play in Miami that Frank wrote many moons ago called "The First Year."

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post's Church Editor

Mass meetings tomorrow at Calvary Baptist Church here and at the Central Methodist Church, Ballston, Va., and First Methodist Church, Hyattsville, will initiate another phase of the National Christian Mission—the Home Visitation Evangelism drive. Dr. Horace E. Cromer is chairman of the local evangelism committee.

In the coming week, several thousand laymen will go out two by two to visit the unchurched and those having become delinquent in church attendance.

Dr. Guy H. Black, field secretary for the National Christian Mission, in charge of Home Visitation Evangelism, will address the Calvary program, and Frank H. Leavell, prominent lay leader of the Southern Baptist Convention, the Ballston program, both at 3 p. m. The Hyattsville program will be a dinner meeting at 5:30 p. m.

Using the same area churches as in last week's National Christian Mission, workers will leave Foundry Methodist, Emory Methodist, Metropolitan Presbyterian, McKendree Methodist, Central Methodist and Vermont Avenue Baptist church on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights for the visitations. Chevy Chase Presbyterian, another area church, will have its rally Monday night only.

In addition to Dr. Black and Mr. Leavell, the other men addressing the various visitation rallies will be Dr. Walter Woodburn, of New York City; Dr. Harry Williams, of Syracuse, and Dr. R. McDonald, of Pittsburgh.

With the exception of Vermont Avenue Baptist Church, all the area churches will hold supper rallies before their workers spread out into various sections of the community. Each area church will embrace workers from 20 to 40 congregations in its section. Prince Georges County team members will join in the McKendree rally, and Montgomery County workers in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian meeting.

Some of Prince Georges County workers will join in the daily rallies at McKendree Church, South Dakota near Rhode Island Avenue Northeast. Others will meet at the First Methodist Church, Hyattsville, each night before visiting.

Friday night, and several following nights, will be devoted to reaching people whom workers were unable to contact at other times. The laymen will present visitation reports to their respective pastors.

"A MIGHTY FORTRESS IS OUR GOD"
MARTIN LUTHER
A mighty fortress is our God.
A bulwark never failing.
Our helper He, amid the flood
Of mortal ills prevailing.
For still our ancient foe
Doth seek to work us woe.
His craft and power are great,
And armed with cruel hate,
On earth is not His equal.
Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
This immortal hymn was inspired by the 46th psalm. It played a most important part in the growth of the Christian church, for Luther's hymns, contrary to the doctrines of the Church, were written in the tongue of the common people. Each hymn was a Reformation sermon.

Slides Tell History Of South

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Old houses, from Virginia and Maryland down into the deep South, told their stories yesterday in an illustrated lecture presented for members of the Georgetown Garden Club by Miss Frances Benjamin Johnston at the Arts Club.

Miss Johnston, who founded the pictorial archives of the fine arts department of the Library of Congress, showed 100 slides of houses of many types, each one revealing the background of the early settlers who built it, the materials they found with which to build and their manner of life.

Unlike many such lectures, Miss Johnston's provided fresh material, including but few of the well-known places such as Monticello and Mount Vernon, and instead, showing those off the beaten track, some historically important but all significant from the standpoint of "The Tales Old Houses Tell" which was the subject of her talk.

In Virginia, where there was plenty of clay and the settlers brought with them their English traditions, there were the handsome old English Colonial houses of brick. In Maryland, where brick was not so easily obtained, but timber plentiful, the gable ends and chimneys were of brick and the central sections frame.

Virginia put its architectural stamp on sections of the deeper South to which settlers went from there, said Miss Johnston. This was marked, she pointed out, in the Tennessee Valley, to which they went, over the mountains, with their household goods, their families and their slaves, building houses whey they arrived, like those they had left behind them.

The same, she said, was true in North Carolina, where, in the highlands, "rock houses" were an echo of those found in the Moravian settlements in Pennsylvania.

Her pictures showed the distinctly English influence in Savannah, Ga.; that of the French in Louisiana, and of the Spanish in Florida. An entire group of slides was devoted to interesting places in St. Augustine.

One of the houses she showed in North Carolina was the old Mast Weaving House, where rugs for the White House were woven in 1830. In Roanoke County, Va., is a log house which she showed, built as a fortress, its foundation over a spring so as to insure adequate water supply.

Some of the houses of which Miss Johnston showed pictures, have been destroyed since she photographed them. On the Louisiana plantations many of the fine old mansions are going into decay, she said, and showed some now being used as hay barns.

Eventually all of Miss Johnston's pictures will go to the files of the Library of Congress. She has already catalogued nearly 7,000 negatives which are architectural documents, she said, giving evidence of the influences brought to different sections by the early settlers. She has also provided 1,250 records of old Virginia houses for the Architectural Research Library of the University of Virginia.

She is now completing a book, "Early Architecture of North Carolina," containing 300 illustrations and with the text by Thomas T. Waterman, which will be off the press this spring. It has been subsidized to the Colonial Dames of North Carolina and the American Council of Learned Societies.

Mrs. Charles Bittinger was joint hostess with Miss Johnston to members of the Georgetown Garden Club yesterday.

'East and West' Meet At Mrs. Brown's Party

By Hope Ridings Miller

KIPLING HAD IT WRONG: "The twain" of East and West can meet, and did—at the luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Frances Cabell Brown in her home on River Road, Maryland.

A Chinese fete from start to finish, the party brought a bit of Oriental atmosphere to a strictly Occidental setting, and more than 40 guests resolved on the spot that they'll learn to eat with chopsticks some time soon—if it's the last thing they ever do.

Hope Ridings Miller

A number of those in the company recalled that a year ago Mrs. Brown gave a most successful Mexican luncheon. So when she changed her partying nationality for yesterday's fete and came through with colors flying, she was only living up to a standard she set for herself.

The hostess wore a handsome Chinese robe of moonstone silk, heavily embroidered in silver and fashioned with full sleeves. Gay Chinese lamps hung over the doorway leading to the drawing room. A carved screen at one end of the room, illustrated handbills and Chinese magazines here and there, and some handsome pastel prints further enhanced the Oriental atmosphere.

Trimly turned out in their native robes were Mrs. Victor Kwong, wife of the Attache of the Chinese Embassy, and Miss Lois Lotus Ing. The latter had assisted the hostess in preparing the place cards, each of which bore on the front a solemn, bearded Chinese figure—one of "the eight immortals." Attached by a ribbon at the corner was either a small Buddha or one of the three wise monkeys.

SMALL TABLES set up in the drawing room and downstairs in the recreation room were numbered with folded red placards decorated with embossed miniature figures—"gods of long life."

Guests served themselves from a bountiful buffet. Since it was an authentic Chinese luncheon, there was no chow mein. Instead, there was chicken with almonds, a delicious spring roll concoction made of lobster and shrimp, bean sprouts and soybean curd, and rice, of course. Dainty cups of chrysanthemum tea, in which a tiny blossom unfolded itself before your eyes; imported rice wine and a dessert of candied kumquats and almond cakes were other choice items on the menu.

At each place there were chopsticks, and no forks in sight. There was also for each guest a one-sentence fortune deftly hidden in a rice cake, and these were read aloud by each guest to the delight of everybody present. "He who rides a tiger does not dare alight," was on the slip inside my rice cake. Mrs. Claude Pepper's read, "You cannot take two skins off one cow."

Miss Ing and Mrs. Kwong patiently gave lessons in chopstick manipulation; but when the situation threatened to grow no better for most of us, the hostess dropped the hint that some forks were in hiding beneath the table marker.

MRS. WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS, wearing a smart navy-blue outfit, was among those enjoying the pleasant party; as were Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, Mrs. Claude Wickard, Mrs. D. Worth Clark and Mrs. Prentiss Brown.

One of the prettiest ensembles there was worn by Mrs. Carter Glass, who had chosen a frock of purple crepe, set off with a petal-covered turban of the same shade. A bright red straw hat, covered with blossoms, also caught my eye. It was worn by Mrs. Edmund Pendleton. Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Thomas Ford, Mrs. Clarence Lea, Mrs. John Murdock and Mrs. Thomas Rolph were among those from the Congressional contingent who were present.

Mrs. Justin Miller was accompanied by her pretty daughter, Mrs. Edwin Ball Abbott. Others there included Senora de Munilla, Mrs. Preston Delano, Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Mrs. Nugent Fallon, Mrs. Harold Bowen, Mrs. Wallace McClure, Mrs. Louis Montfort, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Carroll Stewart, Mrs. James W. Twohy, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Helen Montford Moodie, Mrs. J. J. Locke, Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. Harllee Branch, Mrs. Barton S. Embry, Mrs. Kenneth Romney, Miss Betty Hynes, Mrs. James Craig Peacock, Mrs. Claude Hamilton, Mrs. Rene Jones Taylor, Mrs. Fred Vincent and Mrs. O. W. McNeese.

Only relatives and close friends were present when Miss Afton Wright was married yesterday afternoon to Charles Shepherd. The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock at the Washington Chapel, Sixteenth Street and Columbia Road, the Rev. Edgar B. Brossard officiating.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Wright, wore an afternoon gown of hyacinth blue with dull black accessories, and carried a single white rose. A single strand of pearls, a family heirloom, completed her costume. Mrs. Eastern Feige, of Salt Lake City, was matron of honor, and Miss Zelma Poulton, also of Salt Lake, was maid of honor. They wore dusty pink with navy blue accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Lawrence Clayton was best man.

The Holletts Hosts at Club

The spirit of Saint Valentine was evident at the cocktail party given yesterday afternoon at the Army and Navy Club by Maj. and Mrs. George L. Hollett.

Decorations of red and white gave the room where the party was held a festive air. The long buffet table was centered with an old fashioned bouquet of deep red cyclamen, white stock, and dainty freesia. Tall red tapers were placed on the table.

The guests were mostly Navy and Marine Corps officers and their wives, many of whom have served all over the world. The food served was largely tropical dishes. Mrs. Hollett wore a floor length gown of pale blue crepe, the bodice of which was embroidered with golden eagles.

Among those invited were the Commandant of the Marine Corps Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb; the Assistant to the Commandant, Brig Gen. A. A. Vandergrift, and Mrs. Vandergrift. Brig. Gen. E. A. Eddie Dowling, Feted by Cleric, Tells Experiences

Actor-producer Eddie Dowling held a table of guests fascinated for two hours at a luncheon given yesterday for him and Mrs. Dowling by the Rev. Gilbert Hartke.

Constantly relighting a cigarette (Mr. Dowling rolls his own), the honor guest told many amusing stories of his experiences in the theater. Several of those present were curious to know what William Saroyan, author of the current Dowling show, "Time of Your Life," is really like. Mr. Dowling told of their experiences in putting on the play.

The actor also described how he had taken his 4-year-old daughter, Mary Maxine, to call on President Roosevelt the other afternoon. The Chief Executive is her godfather. In the midst of the interview, the President's scottie, Falla, bounced into the room, and from that moment on the little girl had no time for Mr. Roosevelt.

Mary Maxine is already a real trouper. She is accompanying her parents on their tour with the show, which will go on next month to Saroyan's home town, San Francisco, and she toured with them before the play opened on Broadway.

The Rev. Hartke, who is head of the speech and drama department at Catholic University, held the luncheon in the Colonial room of the Wardman Park.

Mrs. Sheen Defers Luncheon for Deb

Owing to illness, Mrs. H. H. Sheen, wife of Col. Sheen, was obliged to postpone the luncheon she was to have given yesterday for Miss Nancy Strong, debutante daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Alden Strong. The party will take place on Tuesday instead and will be held at the Army and Navy Club.

Next Thursday Miss Strong will enter a local hospital for an appendectomy.

Last night Mrs. Byron was hostess at dinner in honor of the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun. The head of the house was called out of town at the last minute and couldn't attend.

Others in the company were the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan, Senator George L. Radcliffe, of Maryland, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Gulbertson, Edward Van Devanter and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter.

Mrs. Constantine, Mr. Purvis Wed In Alexandria

At high noon yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Flanuel Ratensky in Alexandria, Mrs. Doris Constantine, of Concord, N. H., became the bride of Don Ricardo Purvis, of the Protocol Division of the State Department, at a quiet ceremony attended by relatives and a few close friends.

The bride was gowned in a royal blue frock, street length and a small hat to match. She carried a small bouquet of pink camellias, and had no attendants. Patrick Gordon, also of the State Department, was the best man.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception, at which all decorations carried out the Valentine Day theme. After the reception the couple left for Williamsburg. They will return next week and make their home at 3331 N Street in Georgetown. Mr. Purvis' cousin, Miss Mary Coleman, came from Newark, N. J., for the ceremony.

Farewell Party To Honor Kilgores

Mr. Kilgore recently has been appointed managing editor of the Wall Street Journal, and he and Mrs. Kilgore are leaving Washington shortly to take up their residence in New York.

Rita Donnelly Becomes Bride Of Mr. Jameson

Of interest to Washington was the marriage yesterday in New York of Miss Rita Anne Donnelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas A. Donnelly, of New York, to Minor Story Jameson, jr., son of Minor S. Jameson, of 13 Oxford Street, Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Mrs. Jameson. After a trip to Havana, the couple will reside in Washington.

The ceremony was performed at noon at Sherry's, 300 Park Avenue. The Rev. E. Roberts Moore, of St. Peter's Catholic Church, New York, officiated. The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a white satin princess gown with a V-shaped neckline and long pointed sleeves trimmed with rosepoint lace. A veil of tulle trimmed with the same lace fell from her tiara of pearls and diamonds. She carried white orchids and valley lilies.

Miss Constance M. Donnelly, of New York, was her sister's maid of honor. She was gowned in French blue brocade fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves and a matching halo hat. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Miss Mary Constance McDonnell, of New York, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress and bouquet were similar to those of the maid of honor.

Mr. Jameson was best man for his son. The ushers were John B. Fox, of Arlington, Mass., a brother-in-law of the bridegroom; John P. McDonnell, the bride's brother-in-law; Robert E. L. Brown and J. Paull Marshall, of Washington, and H. Neal Karr, of Bridgeport, Conn.

The bride is a graduate of the Academy of the Holy Child, New York, and Mr. Jameson is an alumnus of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McCook, who are living in Pasadena, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Anson McCook, of Washington.

The hostess wore yesterday a floor-length gown of soft blue crepe and a figured turban. She received her guests in the drawing room, with its walls of Williamsburg blue and handsome old furniture.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Stanley Reed, Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mrs. Alan G. Kirk, Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson, Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. William Flather, Mrs. James M. Helm, Mrs. Frederick Brooke and Miss Anne Randolph.

Valentine's Day Dance Given By Marine Officers

The Marine Corps celebrated Valentine's Day yesterday with a dance at the Marine Barracks Band Hall, and many of the officers and their families seized the opportunity to have dinner parties before the dance.

Among those entertaining were Col. and Mrs. William Capers James, who had a small dinner at their quarters, later taking their guests on to the dance. Guests were Col. and Mrs. Harry Schmidt, Col. and Mrs. James Webb, Col. and Mrs. Emmett W. Skinner, Maj. and Mrs. Lucien Whittaker and Maj. and Mrs. Randolph Pate.

House guest of Col. and Mrs. James recently was Col. James' mother, Mrs. Joseph Alston James, who came on from her home in Summerton, S. C., for a week's visit. She returned to her home on Thursday after a round of fetes given by her many friends here.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

COUNTESS de Limur asked a few friends for dinner the other evening to meet her house-guest, Lady Lamington. Lady Lamington, who is beautiful with the traditional golden hair and rose complexion of England, has been visiting in the United States and will soon go to Bermuda to work as a censor. Her husband, whose father was Governor of Bombay, is in England.

The other evening Lady Lamington wore a dinner gown of pale chartreuse and a gold and turquoise necklace. Our hostess was very smart in a beautifully fitted gown of beige crepe trimmed with heavy gold nailheads. She was saying that Count de Limur is midway across the continent on a trip to California and that with her daughter, Helen Marie, skiing in New England, and her son, Charles, at college only she and the small daughter remain to keep home bright for the travelers when they return.

THE Second Secretary of the Canadian Legation and Mrs. Allard were having a reunion with Lady Lamington, discussing relatives and old friends. The Allards live in the country in Virginia, which may explain their serene and smiling faces. Also present was the Counselor of the French Embassy, Jacques Dumaine, being congratulated on his new appointment as French Counselor in Rio, where he will rejoin his former chief, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin. It is indeed hard to find words of congratulation for an old and dear friend on his departure, though, in Washington one should become accustomed to farewells.

Others dining with Countess de Limur were Paul Guerin, of the French purchasing mission, who divides his time between Washington and New York, and Eric Taff. Mr. Taff, who has lived in Paris for many years and who only left there in November, is now working at Red Cross headquarters here.

After the coffee, when the gentlemen had joined the ladies, we sat before an open fire and indulged in that particular brand of French conversation which is so delightful because it arrives nowhere, but passes many pleasant places en route.

CAPTAIN and Mrs. Alan Kirk gave a small cocktail party at their home in Georgetown the other afternoon. The host, who recently returned from a tour of duty as Naval Attache at the United States Embassy in London, will remain in Washington as Chief of Naval Intelligence. Giving him the latest news from London was Gen. Raymond Lee, Military Attache at the United States Embassy in London, who arrived in this country still more recently on the battleship George V. Gen. Lee will return to England when his vacation is over, leaving his pretty wife and little daughter to keep the home fires burning in Georgetown.

Also dropping by the Kirks' that afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilmer, she very attractive in beige wool with a matching hat, Mr. and Mrs. Howland Chase, Mrs. Lewis Clark, Mrs. Ray Atherton, Mrs. Raymond Lee, Miss. Carolyn Nash, Rudolf Schoenfeld, Jacob Beam, and Samuel Reber. Also Mrs. Ranald Reid, the former Leslie Wright, looking pretty and spring-like in a pink wool frock and silver-fox jacket, and Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Morgan accompanied by his sister, Eleanora, now Mrs. Bertram Long. Mrs. Long's husband is in the army in England and she will return there after a visit to her mother in Chevy Chase. Mrs. Morgan was looking forward to the arrival of her sister, Mrs. Streeter Flynn, from Oklahoma today.

Luxemburg's Royalty Given Farewell Fete

The final social event of the heavy program planned in honor of the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg was the luncheon given for her and the Prince Consort Felix yesterday by the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais. The royal couple left last night for Chicago, where they will spend a day before going on to Montreal.

Guests at the luncheon were the Hereditary Grand Duke, Jean; Lord Halifax, British Ambassador; the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, and Lieut. Konsbruck and Mme. Bech, of the royal party.

From 11 to 1 o'clock yesterday, the Grand Duchess "held an audience at the legation," which, in plain American, means received a group of prominent people.

Those who called on her were the Ambassador of Peru, Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Belgian envoy, Count van der Straten-Ponthoz; the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon, Representative Lewis D. Thill, of Wisconsin, and the Luxemburg Consul, Cornelius Jacoby.

If your spring wardrobe is inspired by the pageantry of brilliant Latin-American colors, such as "Brazilian Beige," "Trinidad Tan," choose make-up tones with undertones of brown, orange or purple. "Chile Sauce Red" calls for a dramatic, vivid shade such as "School House Red." Before applying your matching lipstick and rouge, follow the example of the girl (above) and use a "Bronze Glo" foundation make-up to give your skin a sun-kissed or coppery tint. Those bright, vivid make-up shades call for darker skin tones. They would be garish on the extremely pale face

Motif of New Spring Wardrobe Determines Type of Make-up

By Carolyn Abbott

Before dashing out helter-skelter to buy your 1941 spring make-up, first consider your wardrobe. Decide which fashion influence you're going to follow. Then select your cosmetic colors accordingly. At present there are four fairly established modes—patriotic, South American, "primitive," American Indian and Western cowboy.

In general, the new cosmetic shades are a deeper, clearer, darker red than in past seasons. Nevertheless, some of the newest lipsticks and rouges show undertones of orange and yellow—true affinities of the brilliant Indian tones.

Newest of these trends is the patriotic illustrated below. This girl who is definitely navy-bent accents the blue of her frock and the gold of her military braid with a gay, deep, true red make-up created for that purpose. For her first line of finger-tip defense she chooses a "Colour Guard" manicure kit with polish to match her cosmetics.

If you cue your wardrobe to the "Primitive" American Indian or Western cowboy influence, choose a make-up shade with depths and intensity of color. Vary it from clear reds to slightly orangey shades, depending upon your costume color. The girl above, who wears a tiny, black satin hat topped with pale green, pink and yellow cock feathers, has adopted the gay, Indian headdress style. "Paint Red," a warm, rich, red make-up, contrasts sharply with golden yellows, pale pottery blues and the deeper wampum shades. By all means avoid flamboyant, bluish shades and stick to a deep, sublte red

Young Man Thinks Midshipman Joe's Difficulties In Dating May Be Due to Belated Invitations, And to a Preference for Upper Classmen's Girls

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have read your column for years and I find myself agreeing with your wise judgments in nearly every case. However, after reading your column of Sunday, February 8,—concerning Midshipman "Joe," who was popular "back home" but finds himself unable to get dates for Academy "hops."—I feel that something more (from a man's angle) might be passed on to Joe, to help him out of his dilemma.

While your advice to Joe is sound enough, as far as it goes, I feel there are some other angles to his problem worth considering. For instance, Joe quotes the girls who refused him: "I'd love to come, but we have exams next week." And, "I'd love to come, but I've been invited to a party." Both of these answers lead me to suspect that Midshipman Joe is a bit late in issuing his invitations. And no girl likes to be asked to any function, however glamorous, at the last minute!

From my own experiences with girls, plus observation of a popular kid sister, I know that no girl likes to be "dated" at the last minute. To begin with, it's rude. It implies a belief that the girl is so unpopular that she can be rustled up any old time. I have seen my sister refuse a bid and then sit home rather than go out with a boy who called up the night before. And on gala occasions such as Naval Academy hops,—for which most girls would drop everything to go,—it is wise and courteous to make a date at least ten days or two weeks in advance.

All formal invitations are sent out well in advance; and by the same token, every sort of invitation should convey the same consideration. So, I suggest that Midshipman Joe's girl friends were either piqued at his late invitations, or they actually had previous engagements, properly made some time in advance.

Here is another thought: Joe is a third classman at the academy. This is the first year he can "drag" girls to the dances there. By deduction, Joe must be in his teens; certainly not older than 19. It is just possible he has been asking girls who are too old for him. Most young ladies are terribly conscious of age differences at college; and many refuse to attend college dances after they pass a certain age. At the Academy, most of the boys are slightly younger than at other colleges.

Those girls whom Joe has tried—and failed—to date, are undoubtedly friends of upper classmen; girls he has met at other Academy functions. They are probably as old as, if not older than, Joe. They must feel that he, a mere third classman, is an "infant." Else why would they so consistently refuse his invitations—if he is as attractive and socially acceptable as he claims to be?

Another word of advice to Joe: Don't ever run after a girl until it makes you appear a fool, or a craven thing, begging her favors. If she refuses your friendly advances once or twice, drop her. One or two refusals on the part of a girl means that she obviously wants no part of you; that further invitations are useless. It is humiliating to the boy and embarrassing to the girl to continue asking for dates after one or two "regrets." No wise lad ever would let himself be rebuffed 15 times, by three girls, in the space of five months! Take my advice, Joe, play the field. YEHUDI.

Using This Advice, 'Joe' Can't Miss!

DEAR YEHUDI: Thanks a million for the splendid follow-through. I have a hunch you have scored a bull's eye here; that you have gone straight to the heart of Joe's dating difficulties—in suggesting belated invitations and a preference for upper classmen's girl friends as his social stumbling blocks. I am as grateful for your "further remarks" as Joe himself will surely be—after digesting your advice and putting it into practise. M. H.

Man Reader Counsels Girl About Kissing

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It occurs to me that a man's opinion might be useful to the 21-year-old girl who asked you to tell her the safety rules for kissing. I think your advice to her, published February 7, was entirely sound. It is my belief that no girl should—or does—resent a kiss from a man if he is reasonably sincere; which is to say, fond of her, or with a decent regard for women in general. Kisses can be respectful, contrary to the views of some prudish persons.

However, I would advise her to steer clear of the "wolf" type of man. No girl can afford to place confidence in a man who is trying to undermine her character or corrupt her morals—at least, not so long as he continues to try it. This girl will find her greatest happiness in a middle-ground, healthful attitude toward kissing, that is neither too carefree, on the one hand, nor too prudish, on the other. SENSIBLE MAN.

DEAR S. M.: Thank you for this bit of big-brotherly advice to "Twenty-one," who asked for "enlightening comment from readers." As you say, if she keeps away from "wolves," and steers a clean-minded middle course in her behavior toward "reasonably sincere" young men, she will never come to grief from a kiss now and then. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Decorate Guest Room by Home Handiwork

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

One of our favorite correspondents writes us about her guest room. (We almost feel as though we'd really seen her home, as she's written us several times during various stages of its growth.) Now that the guest room is up for attention, she has a few problems to settle.

The walls are a soft blue, and she's used a flowered sateen for bedspread and dressing table skirt (a white ground splashed with roses). The draperies she's planning to make of the same material—straight hung they'll be, with double swags and jabots lined with wine-colored sateen.

The dressing table skirt has a mirror top, and for it she's painted a pair of battered pewter lamp bases in flat white and has made shades of heavy wine-colored opaque paper, plain and pleated. She's done the same rejuvenation job on a pair of larger bedside lamps, while a really fine Lowestoft lamp on the chest of drawers has a new white silk shade. She'd like to paint the carved gold mirror over this chest in a flat white, too, but wonders if she should.

About painting the gold mirror frame, we'd say do it in a minute if the mirror is not a special treasure. If it's a fine old piece, it might be a shame to paint it. If it's just a usual commercial piece, then go ahead and paint it.

Soltaire Returns To Favor for Engagement Rings

The solitaire, or one fine diamond in a plain setting, is back in fashion for engagement rings. And this type of ring represents the best value for your money, because you're not paying for the labor required to cut a lot of small stones.

The color of your stone is also important. To judge color look at a diamond by daylight as well as under the counter lighting. Gem experts use a clear north light for grading diamonds. The standard for a bridal diamond is a steely frosty white, as pure as ice. The amount of "fire" that darts through the gem depends on the number of facets, or sides, cut into it to reflect the light. A round stone in the brilliant-cut is the most dazzling of all. Your mother probably had a solitaire brilliant in a gold prong setting. The newer square-cut and emerald-cut (the latter is square or oblong with nipped-off corners) gives less flash and flame but is clean-lined and modern.

Another test of a good diamond is its proportion. The part above the mounting should be in balance with the part below the mounting, next to your finger. Also, consider the clarity of your stone as seen through the jeweler's little eyeglass. All diamonds aren't perfect. The fewer the flaws, of course, the more precious the gem—and the higher the price.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Local socialites today were recovering from the Upper Crusters' annual Valentine costume party last night at the Plush Sofa Club, at which notables appeared as famous lovers and loveresses. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer, retired banker and health food manufacturer, impersonated Casanova; Mr. and Mrs. Otis Tinfoil, just back from a whirl at Palm Beach, went as Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning; Mrs. Thornberry Flitt, who flew back from Nassau for the event, and Herringbone Tweed, boulevardier, went as Darby and Joan; Mr. and Mrs. Broadhurst Chubb appeared as Mark Antony and Cleopatra; Mrs. Atterbury Husk was Queen Elizabeth, with Buzzie Bellwether as Essex.

Mrs. St. John Chinchilla went as Peggy Joyce, accompanied by an entourage of former husbands. Mortimer Silo helped solve the man shortage by going as Henry VIII, accompanied by six extra women as wives.

Resort Items

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Wackkerry-Chimp-Midas, who recently arrived here following her Reno divorce from the marinated shrimp tycoon, is being given a rush by two of her former husbands and a former fiance. She has been seen dining and dancing with Eustace Wackkerry and Leonidas Chimp, also with Philander Plunkette, to whom she was engaged briefly between her third and fourth divorces. It is understood that in her last divorce proceedings she was given a settlement of $2,000,000.

The recently wed Mr. and Mrs. Ditherton Doolittle 3d have arrived here on their yacht, the Babylonia, and will remain until weather conditions become more favorable in the North at which time Mr. Doolittle will return home to look for a job.

Tradelasts

"Oh, say, I have a lot of compliments for you! . . . All the girls think you look so much better in your new navy outfit than you did in your brown. Of course I hated to say so this winter, especially as you'd bought that new beaver coat . . . ."

". . . Yes and everybody was saying how much better you looked now than you did . . . You know you looked so tired there for awhile."

"Who said it? . . . Why Mrs. Prick! Imagine! Yes, she said she really thought you were one person a little extra weight hadn't hurt."

"Did you hear about the perfectly wonderful thing Mrs. Wiseacre said about your little essay? . . . She said she thought it was the best thing you'd ever done—that you'd really improved a lot."

"Yes, Adele said she believed you could really be quite smart looking—if you'd just pay a little more attention to clothes."

"Prepare to faint! This is from Claude! . . . Yes, he said he had the most fascinating conversation with you last night about the lend-lease bill . . ."

"Now this is a good one! It's from that Mrs. Trail—the one who's so jealous of her husband! . . . Yes! . . . Well, she said you were the one woman she'd met that she really liked."

Budget Time for Cleaning

Crochet Rugs In Spare Time

SO HOMEY in your bedroom or your favorite reading nook is this colorful crocheted rug of candlewick yarn. And it's no shrinking violet that can't stand wear, for you have crochet it over a base of sturdy cotton clothesline.

When finished the rug is an oval measuring 21 by 31 inches, charmingly combining four different shades of candlewick yarn. A color combination that will lift the dullest room out of the doldrums is old rose, dubonnet, ivory and black.

Beginning with the doubonnet, say, make a chain 10 inches long. Turn and, holding the clothesline against the chain, make single crochets into the chain and over the clothesline.

When you come to the end of the chain, continue down the other side, using single crochet and working over the clothesline all the time. Continue around and around your first row, being sure to add enough stitches at the turns so the rug will lie flat when completed.

When you want to change to a new color hold the dubonnet against the clothesline and crochet over both with the new color for a few stitches. By this easy method you add stripes of ivory, rose and black and more of the dubonnet.

To finish, cut one strand of the clothesline, crocheting over it, then repeat with the other strands until ends are neatly covered.

Mush Rolls

ONE of the first foods I can remember my mother discussing was mush rolls. My aunt was visiting us and mother had made mush rolls for breakfast. Aunt Caroline wanted the recipe and mother's explicit directions for making them. If anyone has not eaten these best-tasting light fluffy rolls now is the time to make them.

These mush rolls are the kind of food that will make the simplest meal seem like a feast, especially when they come hot from the oven so that the butter drips down their sides and sinks softly into their very hearts. Here is the recipe:

Mush Rolls

Stir ½ cup white or yellow cornmeal into 2½ cups boiling salted water. Continue boiling and stirring constantly until the mush is quite thick and well cooked—8 to 10 minutes. Add ½ cup shortening (part butter for flavor) and 1-3 cup sugar, and stir until the shortening is melted and the sugar is dissolved. Cool until lukewarm. Crumble 1 cake compressed yeast and dissolve in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Blend into the lukewarm cornmeal mixture. Sift 4½ cups all-purpose flour once before measuring. Add the sifted flour all at once to the cornmeal mixture, working it in thoroughly with the hands. When the dough is well mixed, knead up and set to rise in a well-greased bowl. Cover with a damp cloth.

Keep the dough at 80 to 85 degrees until it is double in bulk (about 2 hours). The dough should feel neither warm nor cool to the touch—just "in between." Place the dough out of a draft. If the kitchen is cold, put the dough in a cupboard with a pan of hot water beside it. Punch down by putting the closed fist down in the center of the dough. Fold the edges to the center, and turn the dough completely over in the bowl. Cover with damp cloth. Let rise to a little less than double in bulk (about 45 minutes at 80 degrees.) Punch down again and let stand 15 minutes (to loosen up) covered with a bowl or clean damp cloth to prevent the dough from cooling and crusting. Cut off small pieces of dough, and form into balls with well-greased fingertips.

The dough is rather sticky, but it can be shaped into balls with the fingers if they are kept greased. Do not add more flour. Place the dough balls in well greased pans, in small muffin cups—1 ball to each cup—for rolls with crusty soft sides. Cover with damp cloth. Let rise until double in bulk—25 to 30 minutes. Bake for 12 to 15 minutes in muffin cups (20 to 25 in large round pan) using a hot oven, 425 degrees. You will need 36 small muffin cups for these rolls or three 8-inch round layer cake pans.

Health Routine Is Best Route To Beauty, Declares Singer

By Ida Jean Kain

AS A RULE, women do not try very hard to improve on their natural share of charm and attractiveness, but it takes a woman whose fame and fortune could be summed up in a completely delightful personality to make us realize how feebly most of us exert ourselves in our own behalf.

This is by way of being an encore of Hildegarde. I have told you about this girl from Milwaukee who continues to so successfully bewitch a cynical New York—but she warrents closer acquaintance. We can learn a lot from her.

She is not beautiful in the cold, perfectionist sense of the word—even though it would be fighting words to mention such an opinion to her legions of admirers. But she is extremely pleasing to the eye and the more you look at her the lovlier she looks.

She says that while no woman can afford to neglect what looks she may have, it isn't important to be very good-looking. To quote, "one must have a combination of things—and they add up to personality, which can be developed, like talent!"

Hildegarde's Rules

For example, Hildegarde didn't have to learn to sing—that has always come natural—but, nevertheless, she hasn't overlooked any hints that might prove helpful along this line, and as a result she is convinced that the main trick is "not to tense the vocal chords in speaking or singing." Tension gives your voice an unpleasant edge.

Frequently mentioned as one of Manhattan's best-dressed women, her rules are simply: Elongating lines without frills, good fabrics, and a girdle. She thinks a girdle is very important to smooth chic. And so, I might add, is a good figure. She is superlatively streamlined.

Her measurements are: Bust, 36 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 34 inches—2 inches smaller than the bust! She takes keen delight in the fact that her waist is tinier than it was a few months back—just reward, she declares, for daily stretching exercises which she performs on a special apparatus designed to make you stretch against resistance.

Stretching Is Slimming

All stretch exercises work wonders—provided they are done regularly—toward slimming the waist. You will be amazed at the results you can get from stretching on a bar placed in a doorway, or merely by standing up to your full height and stretching and bending to alternate sides.

In addition to these calisthenics, she walks "25 blocks a day as a necessary ritual." Also, she watches her diet—not so much for the exclusion of calories as for the inclusion of the protective elements. She is very health-minded. She never has pastries, sweets or rich, heavy foods, but during the past few months has been making a point of drinking plenty of milk every day. And that, she declares, is the reason she hasn't even caught a cold when most people have had the flu.

Weight is not one of her problems. It never varies from 129 pounds for her height of 5 feet 7½ inches. That seems slight for her frame, but she feels good at it so it must be all right for her.

Hildegarde's entire program revolves around a health routine. She says you find it twice as hard to sparkle or to be friendly and charming when you don't feel up to par, and that's a thought worth pondering.

Wire-Tapping Inquiry Shifts To D.C. Office

Testimony that an office in a big downtown Washington building was wire-tapped by private detectives is expected to be brought before the Senate committee investigating wire-tapping this morning.

Counsel for the committee said a Washington woman who heads the force of charwomen in the building will take the stand as the session opens at 10 a. m. She will be asked to tell what she knows of visits after hours of detectives reported to have gone there to lay telephone "tape."

The woman will be questioned in connection with the committee's investigation of alleged efforts of a utility company to pry into the personal affairs of certain Ohio attorneys.

Detective to Testify

The committee today will also hear again from Laurence W. Gerth, private detective, who yesterday told the Senators that he had suggested an investigation of Gov. John W. Bricker and other prominent Ohioans. Purpose of the inquiry, which he said he had conducted for utilities companies, was to ascertain fees charged by Bricker and city officials of Columbus and Toledo in rate cases against the companies, the Columbia Gas & Electric Co., and the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., a subsidiary.

"I don't know the interest of the companies in the fees charged," said Gerth in answer to a question by committee counsel, William P. Maloney.

The committee recessed until today before Gerth concluded his testimony.

Asked About "Smear"

Chairman Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee, asked Gerth whether the investigation of attorneys for the cities was intended to "embarrass or smear" Gov. Bricker and others, among them James Huffman, son-in-law of former Senator Vic Donahey, and John Davies, attorney for the City of Columbus.

Remarking that Bricker was not Governor at the time, Gerth said the purpose of his work was to obtain evidence "to fight back" and that Bricker was included because he was among the counsel for the companies.

Gerth said his investigation was not suggested by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., which he testified paid for the work.

"I sold them on the idea that the information might be worth trial," said Gerth. "I don't know if they used my evidence."

Maloney asked Gerth if he knew that J. P. Morgan controlled Columbia. Gerth said he did not.

The witness said he was employed by the companies in 1937.

Philippines Face Declining Trade, Capt. Craig Says

Thriving industries of the Philippine Islands, whose products are exported largely to the United States, will inevitably fall into a decline in 1946, when the strategic islands win their independence, according to Capt. John D. Craig, who recently completed a three-month exploration of the American outpost in the Far East.

Capt. Craig described the islands' amazing progess in modernization in a talk to members of the National Geographic Society last night at Constitution Hall.

"Hitch-hiking" by plane to a remote gold mine in the jungle backcountry of Mindanao, the speaker filmed the approach to its narrow, mountain bordered airport. Approaching the field, the pilot dropped 4,000 feet within a mile by a series of steep slide-slips. Everything at the mine—trucks, machinery, food, equipment of all kinds—had to be flown over the rugged terrain where a cableway is being built to haul the ore out to civilzation.

Capt. Craig showed pictures of a yellow flower which pineapple raisers had to introduce to feed wasps which had been introduced to destroy one of the most injurious insect parasites of the pineapple.

The lecturer talked with President Manuel Quezon, most energetic champion of Philippine independence, and also visited the Sultan of Jolo and tribes of Moros, Tagalogs, and the formerly head-hunting Igorots. He said that the intense distrust of the Tagalogs of the northern islands for the southern Moros was gradually being overcome.

Frank G. Smith, 55, Dies at Lecture

Frank G. Smith, 55, a Navy Yard draftsman who lives at 1404 Massachusetts Avenue Southeast, collapsed while attending a lecture in Constitution Hall last night. Emergency Hospital ambulance attendants pronounced him dead when they arrived shortly after 8 o'clock. He was reported the victim of a heart attack.

Clarify Acts, Dr. Walsh Asks U. S. Leaders

The Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University and regent of its School of Foreign Service, last night opened his seventeenth annual lecture series on international relations.

A large number of the 1,500 persons who gathered in Memorial Continental Hall to hear him discuss "Democracy and the World Revolution" were present on the occasion of his first lecture back in the happier year of 1924.

In discussing the lend-lease bill last night, Dr. Walsh called on public men to show less deviousness and more straightforwardness, in "dealing with the lives and destiny of our people."

He put forward this query:

"Are the combatants fighting one of Europe's conventional wars over ancient imperialisms, over trade, strips of territory, political rivalry or some similar controversy limited to European and Asiatic belligerents? Or are we witnessing a violent social earthquake marking a shift in the rock formation underlying the edifice of habits, ideals and spiritual conduct which free men have laboriously erected across the centuries of the Christian revelation?

"If it is the first of these alternatives—merely another paroxysm in Europe's perpetual war lust—the Senator Wheeler and Col. Lindbergh are right. We should stay resolutely out of the arena . . .

"But if it is the second, clearly proved, then every instinct of democracy, Christianity, even of self-preservation, counsels prompt, generous and wholehearted assistance to the embattled survivors of aggression, let the German chips fly where they will. And I do not shrink from the dread possibility of war as one of the consequences.

"If that menace to America is as immediate and specific as the President, the Secretaries of State, of War, Treasury and Navy declare, and Mr. Willkie confirms, then the conscience of democracy is faced with another 1917, and with far greater justification. I, for one, would be ashamed to take money for it, however, disguised as loan or mortgage or lease."

In asking for more honesty in connection with the lend-lease bill, Dr. Walsh said:

"If the proponents of the bill had the courage they ought to have, they should, in all intellectual honesty, admit publicly what I have heard admitted privately—that the bill if passed, is legislative condonation of acts of war. By every tenet of international law to which we have subscribed before and since the Alabama Claims, we will become a belligerent with the status and risks of a belligerent. . . .

"This is not national defense, but international defense of what we believe to be human liberty wherever outraged and assaulted. I am not arguing against that nobility—God forbid—but against a certain deviousness and lack of straightforwardness in dealing with the lives and destiny of our people."

D. C. Judge Frees Man Who Sped Two to Hospital

Robert Martin, 26, of 928 Maryland Avenue Northeast, received a suspended sentence yesterday in Traffic Court on a charge that he sped at 50 miles an hour through Southeast Washington, while taking two traffic victims to Casualty Hospital.

Judge John P. McMahon told Martin that his motive was "commendable" but pointed out that "while speeding there is a possibility of your injuring other people."

Martin testified that he was asked to take the two injured persons from Issue, Md., to a Washington Hospital "as fast as possible." He was arrested at Pennsylvania and Branch Avenues Southeast by Policeman K. T. Stein, who escorted Martin to the hospital, then booked him at the Eleventh Precinct for speeding.

Those injured in the Issue accident were Arthur Bussler, 41, of 1327 South Capitol Street, released after treatment for cuts and bruises, and Madeline Price, 29, of 1433 Columbia Road Northwest, still in the hospital with a fractured arm, shock and leg injury.

Impersonation Charge Denied

A man identifying himself as Halsey Pershing, arrested here by the FBI, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday, on a removal warrant charging that he impersonated an Army major in New Orleans.

The warrant said that the purpose of the impersonation was to obtain a credit card from an oil company. Pershing pleaded not guilty and asked continuance of the hearing so that he might obtain counsel.

Turnage granted the continuance until Friday and fixed Pershing's bond at $1,000.

Chile Reporters Are Welcomed By Roosevelt

Seven Chilean newspapermen were welcomed to the United States yesterday by President Roosevelt, who told them he hoped bonds between this country and the Latin republics would be tightened by exchanges of journalists.

The group, which includes Joaquin Muirhead, who will begin work Monday at The Post, was presented to the President before his press conference by Maj. Gen. E. M. Watson, military aid.

With members of the Luxemburg royal family looking on as guests, the cosmopolitan press conference heard President Roosevelt learn that one of the visiting Chileans is related by marriage to the Delano branch of the President's family.

President Makes Introductions

President Roosevelt opened the press conference by introducing the Chileans to their American colleagues and describing the visit as a splendid idea.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope that other South American countries will send newspapermen to work here and that American newspapers will reciprocate by sending a group southward.

As the President turned the group over to the hospitality of Washington newspapermen, Thomas F. Reynolds, United Press correspondent and president of the White House Correspondents Association, extended greetings to the Chileans. Carlos Eastman, one of the visitors, replied for the visitors, thanking the President and Reynolds.

In the banter that followed, an American correspondent asked the President if it were not true that members of the Delano family are now prominent in Chile.

Sailor on a Whaler

Mr. Roosevelt explained that a New England Delano had gone to Chile many years ago as a whaling ship captain, had enlisted his ship in the Chilean navy and had remained there to settle.

Luis Ignacio Silva, one of the Latin-American journalists, then told the President that one of his sisters is married to a Delano.

Present at the press conference were the Grand Duchess and Crown Prince of Luxemburg, guests at the White House.

After their meeting with the President the Chilean delegation attended a luncheon of the Overseas Writers Club at the Willard Hotel.

Defense Reporter

Muirhead, who comes to work on The Post next week, is 30 years old and married shortly before leaving for the United States.

Muirhead is reporter on national defense for La Hora, of Santiago, a morning newspaper. He specializes in politics.

One of his first impressions of this country, he said in casual conversation, was the traditional remark of foreign visitors: "Your American girls are very beautiful."

His brother, together with Anibal Jara, Chilean consul general in New York, founded La Hora and is now its manager.

Muirhead has been with the Santiago newspaper since it was founded.

Policemen 'Raid' The Post to Learn Of Photography

When a squad of United States park policemen descended upon The Post Building last night employes having cars parked around the Ellipse began wrinkling their brows and a copyboy even yelled, "Chiggers! the cops."

But the visitors were education bent, as members of the Park Police Training School's photographic class.

Members of the contingent, which absorbed an hour's lecture on picture making from Hugh Miller, Post photographic chief, were Policemen Arthur D. Cook, P. W. Birch, Charles P. Apfelbeck, C. A. Mason, Melvin H. Leach, Orren Spears, John A. Henricksen, Kenneth E. Williams, Albert Kreuger, J. J. Burns and Joseph T. Wirth, and William Hughes, civilian instructor of the training class.

D. C. Gets $30,000 In Unclaimed Fee Deposits

The District coffers were enriched yesterday by $30,000 when a check for that amount was received by Acting Auditor A. R. Pilkerton from Judge George C. Aukam, of Municipal Court, this representing losses to litigants in the court in former years who failed to claim refunds from filing fee deposits.

Until four years ago when a person filed a civil suit involving more than $500 he was required to post a deposit of $10, and if the amount involved was less than $500 to deposit $1.60. If actual court costs were less the litigant could claim a refund if he acted within three years. Some $30,000 was left unclaimed four years ago when a flat fee was adopted.

Three years ago the Commissioners raised a question on whether unclaimed refund money should be turned over to the District tax collector instead of being kept in the jurisdiction of the court, but no action resulted. The question was revived by Acting Auditor Pilkerton some time ago after a routine audit of District accounts was made following the death of the late Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor. Following conferences the $30,000 check was drawn by Judge Aukam.

Judging the contest were: Justice Joseph R. Jackson, of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals; Mastin G. White, solicitor for the Department of Agriculture, and L. Welch Pogue, general counsel for the Civil Aeronautims Board.

She has hired taxis to search for him; she has been loaned a car and chauffeur by the Animal Rescue League, she has advertised, broadcast and offered a reward, all to no avail.

"I am deeply grieved and ill over the loss of my dog," she said yesterday, "and will gladly pay a reward for his return, dead or alive."

Transit Head Denies Fight On Bus Line

But Better Crossing Is Needed Before Crosstown Route Is Fixed, He Asserts

The Capital Transit Co. "is not fighting" attempts of citizens to obtain a crosstown bus line but "feels the need of a better crossing" of Rock Creek Park before such a line is established, E. D. Merrill, president, declared yesterday at a public hearing before the Public Utilities Commission.

Controversy between opposing citizens' groups continued at yesterday's hearing on whether the proposed route should cross the park along Military Road or across the Klingle Road-Park Road route.

The company president, who did not take the stand, made his statement while quizzing a proponent of the Military Road route, which is advocated by the steering committee of the citizens' associations.

Quotes Statistics

Merrill said he "had great sympathy" with Harry Bortin, who was testifying for the steering committee, but did not think that Bortin had proved his point. Bortin produced a half-dozen statistical exhibits which purported to show that the Military Road section did not have enough transportation; that the persons along the proposed route have less bus-miles per person than any other section of the city; that the section of the city along this proposed route had increased 75 per cent in population over a ten-year period.

"I am a civil engineer myself," Merrill said, "and I also have been on a witness stand attempting to justify my figures."

Merrill said in the last two weeks he was informed of the weight-load which the Klingles Road bridge would permit (12,000 pounds as stated by the highway director). The large-type bus in use on the Connecticut Avenue line weighs in excess of 15,000 pounds. He wound up his statement by requesting a further study about park crossings.

Nathan M. Lubar, chairman of the steering committee, took the occasion of Merrill's statement, also, to "make a statement of policy."

Bridge Held Obstacle

He said the citizens of the District want a crosstown bus line. They would not object to crossing the Klingle Road route if the bridge were in any condition to be used for bus transportation, he said.

"But because we know that it will take at least a year to provide another bridge we are asking for the Military Road route now," Lubar declared.

"Not only because the lower route can't be had, but because the northerly route will serve the most people," he added.

A brief flare-up occurred when Marvin M. McLean, president of the Northeast Council of Citizens Associations and of the Brookland Citizens Associatin, testified the council had gone on record favoring the Klingle Road route. A. D. Calvert, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association, asked McLean if the council had not at its December and January meetings unanimously favored the Military Road route and then changed its mind at the February meeting. Words followed which were ordered stricken from the record by Commission Chairman Riley E. Elgen.

Preferences Differ

McLean said the Park Road route would require only an extension of the existing Catholic University bus route on both its western and eastern terminus so that the bus would traverse from Westmoreland Cicle to Bladensburg Road Northeast, as is proposed by the citizens. The Military Road route would involve a brand new bus route and would be an expense to the transit company.

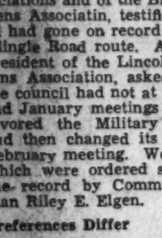
W. I. Swanton, representing the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, said his group favored the Klingle Road route but would not oppose the Military Road route if ordered by the commission.

George E. Dieffenbaugh, secretary of the Citizens Association of Chevy Chase, indorsed the Military Road route but added he was not opposed to the lower park crossing. He said the upper route, however, would bisect the territory not served now by the company and would make connections with 15 other transit routes.

The hearing will be resumed at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Recreational Contest for U. S. Clerks Extended

The Federal Employe Council announced yesterday that its recreational contest for Federal employes has been extended to Tuesday night, February 18. Details of the contest will be announced tonight on the council's radio program, "Your Government This Week," over WJSV at 7:45 o'clock.



Mrs. Maulding

Guests on tonight's program will be Mrs. J. F. Atwood. Maulding, personnel director of the Interior Department, and Mary Mathes, of the Farm Credit Administration personnel office. They will discuss recreational activities among Federal employes.

News of the week of interest to Government employes will be commented on by Jerry Kluttz, editor of The Post's Federal Diary.

Two winners of the council contest will be sent to St. Petersburg for a week's vacation, all expenses paid. Any Federal employe can enter the contest merely by writing the council in care of WJSV and tell how his or her spare time is being spent, and what the council can do to promote recreational activity among Federal employes.

World Christian Endeavor Union Reported Planning to Move Headquarters to Capital

The headquarters of the World Christian Endeavor Union, which coordinates the work of 4,000,000 Endeavorers in many lands, may be moved from Boston to Washington in the near future, The Post learned on reliable authority last night.

Paul Williams, of this city, member of the executive committee of the world organization, revealed that fact to a Post reporter during the annual dinner of the high school (formerly Intermediate) District Christian Endeavor Union last night at Calvary Baptist Church.

President of the world society is Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, Pa., whose assistant, the Rev. George R. Sweet, spoke before the 350 'teen age boys and girls at last night's dinner. They came from 50 churches.

Discussing "Youth and Christianity," Mr. Sweet stressed the need of today's youth giving service in Christ's cause. Sharing the program with him was his wife, Mrs. Sweet, who urged attendance at the International Christian Endeavor convention at Atlantic City from July 8 to 13.

Rex Barger, president of the high school union, and toastmaster, presented the following dinner attendance awards:

Mount Rainier Christian, with 150 per cent attendance, first prize, two registrations for Atlantic City convention; Eckington Presbyterian, 101 per cent attending, neon sign award; Chevy Chase Baptist junior high unit, banner; Chevy Chase Baptist senior high unit, one convention registration; Gunton-Temple Memorial Presbyterian, shield; Potomac Heights Community Church, one registration, and Sherwood Presbyterian, honorable mention.

Among the guests of honor were Mrs. L. C. Greene, counselor of the high school union, and "mother" to hundreds of Endeavorers; Miss Pauline Shoemaker, president fo the D. C. Senior Endeavor Union and others. Mrs. Herman K. Smid handled dinner arrangements.

D. C. Adds 5 Properties To Tax Rolls

Exemption Revoked On $1,988,442 Worth at Behest Of Special Board

Property totaling $1,988,442, heretofore tax exempt, was ordered placed on the assessment rolls by the District Commissioners yesterday following recommendations from a special investigation board which is probing 2,000 privately owned tax-free properties.

The properties, involving five parcels, will yield an annual real estate tax of $35,111.

Heading the list, which is the second such made public by the Commissioners, is the $1,879,899 National Academy of Sciences Building at Twenty-first Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest. Officials of the organization yesterday would make no comment.

Other properties ordered returned to the tax rolls are: Two lots of the Society of Cincinnatus, 2114 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, which are being held for sale and are in use as tennis courts, worth $29,430 and taxable for $594; garage of the St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 1320 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, value $1,000, tax $17; school of the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament for Indians and Colored, conducted at 2121 H Street Northwest by the Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions, value $20,440, tax $357, and that owned by the Western Presbyterian Church, 1911 H Street Northwest and rented for $100 a month to the Calvary Gospel Church, value $53,135, tax $930.

25 Cases Investigated

Yesterday's action by the Commissioners brings to ten the total returned to the tax rolls. All told 25 cases have been investigated by the special board, which is headed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Fowler and includes Deputy Assessor Benjamin Adams and District Surveyor F. F. Healy.

The Science Building, which would bring the District an annual tax of $33,213 was incorporated under an Act of Congress approved by President Lincoln in March, 1863. In its report to the Commissioners, the special board said:

"The National Academy of Sciences and the Research Council perform important duties for the United States Government and the expenses in connection with the labors are paid by the Government. The corporation is said to be a non-profit organization. Its assets run into the millions and are made up in bonds, stocks, real estate and funds of all kinds."

Special Act Suggested

There seems to be no limit to the number and kinds of scientific subjects covered by this great institution, the report stated, and undoubtedly it is carrying on a "great and beneficial" work. The board stated, however, it is of the opinion that the organization "is not an educational institution" within the ordinary and common meaning of that phrase and should be taxed. The board did say, however, if the property is to be exempt from local taxes, it should be done by a special act of Congress.

The Society of Cincinnatus, it was said, was organized by George Washington and his officers in 1783 for the purpose of maintaining the patriotic traditions of the founders of the country. Two lots on the property, however, are up for sale and should be taxed.

Symphony Fund Drive Stakes Hope On U. S. Pay Day

As National Symphony campaign workers continued efforts yesterday to push their drive nearer the $107,600 goal, A. E. Giegengack, public printer who is chairman of the campaign's government committee, expressed hope that Government workers will take advantage of the mid-month pay day to help the orchestra's cause.

Thursday, when the campaign was extended for one week, pledges totaled $54,590.13.

"Our showing now does not compare at all favorably with the amount we raised during the same period last year," Giegengack said yesterday.

"There is an extenuating circumstance, however. There has been no Government pay day since the drive began, while there was one during the first ten days last year. I am holding out great hope that the amount we need to put us over the top will be received as a result of the present mid-month pay day."

District Building Fire Spends Its Wrath on Worker

Fire blazed briefly last night in the office of the collector of taxes in the District Building.

The room is being repainted, and last night a workman, Edward Larry, 1211 Staples Street Northeast, stood on a scaffolding, dousing a window frame with varnish remover.

Apparently touched off by a spark from a wire nearby, flames swept up the window and wall. Staples jumped to the floor, then put out the blaze with a fire extinguisher. He suffered first-degree body burns in the process. Firefighters of four engine companies raced to the Government building, but found the fire already out.

Citizens Ask D. C. Resident Be Made Judge

Brightwood Citizens Association last night indorsed the appointment of a District resident to succeed Associate Justice Peyton Gordon, who retired recently from the District Court.

The association, meeting at Paul Junior High School, also:

Recommended Capt. Joseph C. Morgan of the Fifth Precinct for the vacancy which, the resolution stated, was "about to occur" in the position of inspector in charge of the traffic division. Metropolitan Police indorsed the suggestion of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, for the acquisition of four combination scout cars and ambulances.

Protested against an increase in the gasoline tax.

Protested against any increase in bus or street car fares.

The latter resolution, introduced by S. A. Swiggett, recording secretary, stated that it was understood that Capital Transit Co. would petition the Public Utilities Commission for authority "to increase the tariff on the Takoma-Park Express to a flat 10 cent fare," nullifying use of tokens or regular weekly passes. It also was understood, the resolution stated, that the issuance of free transfers on the express service would be discontinued. The protest was aimed also at "discontinuance of free transfers in any instance."

Charles W. Ray, presided.

North Cleveland Park

The North Cleveland Park Citizens Association climaxed a heated discussion on the proposed closing of a section of Van Ness Street Northwest last night by adopting a resolution protesting blocking off the thoroughfare.

Acting on request of the Bureau of Standards and the Department of Commerce, District authorities are planning to close Van Ness Street between Connecticut Avenue and Reno Road. That stretch now runs through the Bureau of Standards grounds.

Several North Cleveland Park residents last night objected to the move because it would throw excessive traffic on Albemarle, Upton and other streets connecting Connecticut and Wisconsin Avenues.

J. B. Dickman, president of the association, offered the resolution upholding these protests.

On the other side, Howard Locke, who lives at 3726 Van Ness Street, said he favored cutting off the street because it would eliminate some of the heavy traffic that now makes the thoroughfare hazardous for children.

The association will present its protest at a public hearing Monday morning in the District Building.

Antisabotage Law Held D.C. Defense Need

The District will not need a home guard to replace the National Guard, but probably will require some antisabotage legislation, Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech indicated yesterday in an informal report to Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire.

The proximity of Federal troops and the likelihood that soldiers may be moved into Washington in the event of war makes a home guard, such as was authorized by Congress last year, unnecessary, Keech said.

Senator Bridges has volunteered to sponsor whatever legislation the District Commissioners consider essential for the defense of the National Capital. He was authorized by the Senate District Committee to make the inquiry.

Following a conference with Justice Department officials, Keech said that he would study proposed model statutes drafted recently at a parley of State and Federal officials.

These include a sabotage act, a law governing the possession of explosives, an act authorizing military police to cross State lines in pursuit of an offender, and a law designed to protect State property in another State, such as water facilities.

Keech also is examining a World War act, which was amended by Congress last November, providing penalities for destruction or damaging of war materials, premises, or utilities.

The act prescribes a penalty of $10,000 fine, ten years imprisonment or both.

Before making final recommendations as to defense legislation, Keech will confer with the District Defense Council, which is making a study of defense needs of the National Capital.

New Traffic Plan Starts Tomorrow

Motorcycle Officers To Be Centralized; Inspector Miller Named Commander

Centralization of District motorcycle police and appointment of Inspector Arthur E. Miller as "commander in chief" of all traffic work will become effective at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

The new setup, recommended by Maj. Ernest W. Brown and approved by the Commissioners yesterday, is another step along the road toward making Washington "the Nation's safest city."

Nineteen motorcycle patrolmen will be transferred from posts in various precincts to the traffic division roster and will accept assignments from that bureau.

Inspector Miller, who now heads the accident prevention unit, will be elevated to commander of the traffic division and will be in direct charge of all traffic investigation, enforcement and educational work.

The present commander of the traffic division, Capt. Milton D. Smith, will remain as second in command. The move returns the traffic leadership to the same status of several years ago when Inspector Benjamin A. Lamb was inspector in charge of traffic.

Maj. Brown's statement that Inspector Miller will be placed in charge of traffic indicated that the rumored retirement April 1 of Inspector William E. Holmes, present traffic supervisor, will take place.

Though Inspector Holmes has not formally requested retirement, he said he was "thinking about it."

Late yesterday afternoon Commissioner J. Russell Young issued the following statement:

"When this centarlization plan was agreed upon today, there was no understanding as to who would be put in charge of it. Inspector Holmes has not retired, and we assume he is still in charge of the traffic division and will head the motorcycle squadron."

Inspector Miller announced htat he plans to begin a "selective enforcement program" under the new system.

He explained that when the accident prevention unit was organized the purpose was to determine the causes and locations of accidents so that there could be a concentration of police effort to reduce the causes at particular places.

With the motorcycle officers under his command, he said, it is possible to detail the men to streets where accidents occur instead of having them work at large in a precinct.

Under the old plan where motorcycle policemen worked in precincts, it was said, they were under the command of the precinct captain and were used sometimes for other than traffic work.

Maj. Brown said that a survey showed that despite the fact motorcycle officers at the Traffic Division had 700 hours of escort work during January their speed arrest quota was equal to that of the motorcyclists in the precincts and that the downtown men surpassed the others in the number of arrests for other violations.

6 Hurt in Traffic

A 17-year-old boy and 5 children were injured yesterday in traffic accidents in the District.

Walter Brown, 17, of Silver Spring, Md., received severe leg injuries when he was knocked from his bicycle at Piney Branch Road and Eastern Avenue Northwest by a car, police said, was driven by Clifton L. Osborne, 60, of Silver Spring. He was treated at Washington Sanitarium.

Also knocked from a bicycle was Edward Williams, 15, of 1232 Wylie Street Northeast. He suffered head injuries in the collision with a car driven by Curtis Mance, 18, 1135 Tenth Street Northwest, police said. Williams was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Other children treated at local hospitals included Frank McMillan, 10, of 5056 D Street Southeast; James E. Brown, 10, of 5021 E Street Southeast; Horace Waite, 16, 803 Decatur Street Northwest, and Mary Davis, colored, 7, of 7 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest.

FBI Seizes Man With 32 Aliases

The Department of Justice last night announced that Sol Turkin, "check flasher and impersonator who has operated throughout the United States under 32 aliases," was taken into custody yesterday in a St. Louis hotel.

He was operating under the name of Sam Cohen when apprehended, and had been using that name in the vicinity of Seattle, Wash., from January 19 to February 4, the department said.

Frank Leahy Named Notre Dame Head Coach

Entire Staff At Boston C. Follows Him

Former Eagle Mentor Happy to Return to His Alma Mater; Silent on Contract

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 14.—Frank Leahy, 33-year-old Boston College coach, is going back home to Notre Dame.

Father John Cavanaugh, vice president of Notre Dame, announced tonight that Leahy had accepted the post as athletic director and head football coach, a vacancy created 11 days ago when Elmer Layden resigned to become pro football commissioner.

Leahy will sign a long-term contract tomorrow in the office of the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., school president.

The youthful, affable college mentor said in Boston that going back to Notre Dame would be "just like going home to me. Leahy played under the immortal Knute Rockne through 1930, being a lineman on the Old Master's last Irish machine and the last undefeated eleven at the school.

Makes Financial Sacrifice

Leahy's salary at Notre Dame was not disclosed, but he implied he was making a financial sacrifice in order to take the job.

"The financial element does not figure in my decision to return to Notre Dame," he said, adding that he would never have considered leaving Boston College for any job except this one.

Leahy, a native of Winner, S. Dak., carved out a brilliant record in his two years as a head coach. Boston College signed him in 1939 and in two seasons his teams won 19 of 20 games, finishing an undefeated 1940 campaign with a spectacular victory over Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl.

After graduating from Notre Dame in 1931, Leahy took a job as line coach at Georgetown, later serving in a similar capacity at Michigan State under Jimmy Crowley. He stayed with Crowley when the latter became head coach at Fordham, coaching the line there until Boston College hired him.

Leahy to "Clean House"

"I am going to take along all of my assistants—Ed McKeever, backfield coach; John Druze, end coach, and Joe McArdle, line coach," Leahy said as soon as the news of his appointment leaked out prematurely in Boston. "We will start spring practice about March 7.

"I deeply regret that I am leaving Boston College, but I consider it my duty to return to Notre Dame. Every Notre Dame man would welcome a chance to go back as head coach, for it is the greatest honor that can come to any of us."

Leahy Is on Spot

Leahy was signed to a new five-year contract at Boston College on February 3 a few hours after Layden quit at Notre Dame. But when approached about succeeding Layden, the Boston coach obtained release from his contract there.

He is Notre Dame's fourth football coach in 23 years and takes over what is recognized as one of the most difficult coaching spots in the football world. The Irish gridders play a tough schedule of nine games every year and usually are rated in pre-season figures as a contender for the national championship.

Notre Dame's best season under Layden was in 1938 when the team won eight of nine games.

Sample of Boston Goal Tending Which Deprived Eagles of Victory

Washington Six Blows Two Leads as Boston Rallies to Gain Break Before 3,987; Goalie Polich Turns In Brilliant Game

By Jack Munhall.

With a chance to again tie Baltimore for the Eastern Amateur League lead, the Washington Eagles faltered last night, wasted leads of 3-1 and 4-2, and barely managed to tie the Boston Olympics, 5-5, in an overtime match at Riverside Stadium.

To the dismay of 3,987 paying patrons, third largest hockey crowd in local history, the Eagles tired perceptibly in the third to permit the battling Olympics three goals to square the match at 5-5.

The Eagles attempted a comeback in the scoreless 10-minute extra period but Goalie Vic Polich, of Boston, turned in a superb exhibition to repel a succession of Washington rushes. Seemingly impossible was the way Polich shed shots like water.

Then in the final minute of the game, Boston got its biggest chance when Hal Dewey drew Washington's first penalty of the evening and the Olympics had six players to the Eagles' five for the remaining 1 minute and 10 seconds. Washington, however, concentrated its defense and the Beantown boys didn't get a shot.

Players Near Blows

Norm Burns, with two unassisted goals which returned him to the thick of the fight for the league-scoring lead, was outstanding for Washington in a match which grew progressively rough and nearly ended in a post-mortem fist fight between the Eagles' Paul Courteau and Junie Stubbs. After being checked to the ice by Courteau just before the last whistle, Stubbs had to be restrained by Washington players from taking retaliatory measures.

By the tie Washington gained one point but still trails the league-leading Orioles by that margin.

Boston's third-period rally, which tied the score at 5 to 5, was no sudden spurt, but rather the culmination of a slow process by which the heavier Olympics wore down the Eagles.

Sullivan Ties Up Score

With the score at 5 to 3, after Thompson had scored for Boston, and Burns his second unassisted goal for Washington, the Olympics' su-

Danning Still Balks at N. Y. Salary Terms

By the United Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 14.—The New York Giants opened spring training today, with Manager Bill Terry still bickering with Catcher Hank Danning.

Danning refused to report at camp until his salary demands are met, but Terry wired him at his Los Angeles home, advising him to hop a train immediately and come to Miami.

Terry said, "If Danning insists upon remaining home, I'll let him stay there permanently." In Hank's absence, Terry will concentrate upon Gabby Hartnett for backstop duties.

Infielder Norman Young, another of the 13 unsigned players, watched practice from the sidelines. Two young pitchers, Bob Carpenter and Jack Berwer, have refused to report unless their salaries are raised.

The Giants began practice on a public playground because their ball field will not be ready for another week. A shower forced a recess in their workout.

Belloise Matched With Mauriello

Controversy Expected Over Scalzo Fight

The first shot in what may become a war over who promotes the featherweight championship battle between Titleholder Petey Scalzo and Challenger Chalky Wright is expected to be heard this morning by the District Boxing Commission.

Although stories to the effect that the combination of Joe Turner and Gabe Menendez had clinched the fight were publicized last January 28, Promoter Mike Jacobs was quoted as saying in New York yesterday that he had "opened negotiations for Scalzo to defend his title against Chalky Wright at Washington, D. C., on March 15." Jacobs is reported to have said that the bout would be staged in cooperation with Ray Alvis, Washington promoter.

"Blank" Contract Filed

Claude Owen, chairman of the local boxing body, said last night that Pete Reilly, manager of Scalzo, had filed with the commission a "blank" contract and that this agreement had never been accepted by the Turner-Menendez combine. He also said that at the time of the filing, Menendez had notified the commission that he would get the signature of Eddie Walker, manager of Wright.

Menendez said last night that, with Turner, he would appear at the commission offices this morning to sign the contract.

Chairman Owen and Thomas P. Morgan, jr., a member of the body, conferred last night and issued the following statement: "The Petey Scalzo contract on file at the commission's office will be withheld until Manager Pete Reilly informs the commission for which promoter he wants his fighter to work."

It is said that the New York Boxing Commission had ordered Wright to meet the winner of the Archibald-Jeffra bout and this fact had delayed the signing of Wright for Scalzo here. With the Archibald-Jeffra bout indefinately postponed due to the latter's injured hand, the Turner-Menendez duo had planned to go on with the Scalzo-Wright match.

Willing to Co-Promote

Should Jacobs get the contract of Wright for the fight, Menendez, speaking for his side, said last night that he would be willing to stage the battle in cooperation with Jacobs.

He sent the following telegram to Jacobs last night:

"Have exclusive contract on Scalzo to defend world's featherweight title in April with Chalky Wright filed with the local boxing commission. If you can produce Wright's contract will be glad to go in as co-promoters."

Promoter Ray Alvis said last night that he had just returned from New York and that he had the contract of Wright for the bout.

Hoppe Retains World's Cue Championship

WILLIE HOPPE

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Willie Hoppe, title-collecting human robot of billiards, retained the world's three-cushion championship tonight with a 50-to-34 victory over Jake Schaefer, of Cleveland.

The triumph was Hoppe's sixteenth in 17 matches in the month-long round-robin tournament which ended tonight. Schaefer finished with 15 victories and 2 defeats, good for second place in the 18-player field.

The deciding match went 39 innings, with Hoppe ahead all the way after the third inning. His opponent, however, battled him doggedly to the very end although he seldom was within striking distance of the 53-year-old master, who has been winning billiard trophies since 1906.

Battle on Even Terms

Hoppe and Schaefer battled on even terms through three innings. Hoppe eased ahead with two points in the fourth. Then he exhibited his matchless touch in the fifth, running 11 points before missing a difficult bank shot.

Schaefer stubbornly resisted by holding Hoppe scoreless for four turns at the table while he himself scored seven points, leaving the score 16-10. He reduced this to four points, but then Hoppe cut loose with a two-run and then a five-run and stayed ahead by nine points or more the rest of the way.

This tournament gave Hoppe a record of 36 victories in 37 starts in the last two title tournaments, the New Yorker rolling up 20 straight triumphs last year and adding 13 in a row this year before former Champion Welker Cochran of San Francisco defeated him a few days ago.

Twice Defends Title

Hoppe now has risked his title twice this year. He defeated Schaefer in a challenge match just prior to the start of the tournament last January 12. He had a commanding lead on Schaefer and the match was almost over when Hoppe was stricken with pneumonia. Schaefer conceded that Hoppe had retained the title.

The tourney just ended started while Hoppe was still in bed, but he recovered rapidly and made a belated start in the meet, playing his schedule of 17 matches in 18 days.

Score by innings:

Schaefer—201 052 020 002 010 100 001 110 203 010 030 011 31—34. High run 5, innings 38.

Craig Wood's 70 Leads at New Orleans

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 14.—Blond Craig Wood, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., led the first round of the $5,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament today, but the spectacular role fell to Ellsworth Vines, who, a few years ago, was the world's top tennis player.

Craig had 36-34—70, 2 under par, and Vines, with a 36-35—71, was tied with four others for second.

Vines, who turned professional in tennis but retains amateur standing in golf, came to the eighteenth hole 1 under par and put his second shot with a No. 2 iron 18 feet from the cup.

Trying for an eagle 3 instead of playing it safe, he sent the ball 18 inches beyond the pin—then missed the short putt. Ellie's round remained, however, his best effort in an open tourney.

Long Putt Helps

Wood came through where Vines failed and a putt which went more than 20 feet gave him an eagle on the eighteenth.

As a matter of fact, Craig's long putts worked beautifully all day, while practically every other contestant complained of trouble with the fast and rough greens.

Tied with vines were Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago, 36-25—71; Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., 34-37—71; Ben Hogan of Purchase, N. Y., 37-34—71; and Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C., 36-35—71.

Four Tied at 72

At 72 were Lloyd Mangrum, of Chicago; Jake Fondren, of Memphis; Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., and Harry Cooper, of Chicago.

In the 73 group were Dick Metz of Oak Park, Ill.; Sam Byrd, of Ardmore, Pa.; Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., and Claude Harmon, of Orlando, Fla.

National Open Champion Lawson Little, who won the Texas Open championship at San Antonio just before coming here, had a miserable 40-42—82; Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., 38-38—76; P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson, 37-38—75; Johnny Bulla, Chicago, 37-39—76; and Jimmy Demaret, last year's winner, 38-37—75.

N. Y. Yankees' 'Babe' Dahlgren Joins Holdouts

DAHLGREN

Questioning disclosed Dahlgren had been offered the same salary terms as last year. He thinks the club should pitch a few more dollars his way.

DiMaggio, an old hand at the business, deftly sidestepped comment on the subject. It has been reported, however, he wants his palms crossed with $40,000.

Joe clipped a piece from a local newspaper the other day and it may be in the office of the New York Club now. It was an interview with Mickey Cochrane here en route to Honolulu in which the former Detroit manager was quoted as saying he thought DiMaggio was worth $45,000 a year.

18,000 See Irish Turn Back Violets In New York, 41-38

By International News Service

New York, Feb. 14.—Notre Dame's basketball team defeated New York University, 41 to 38, before an overflow crowd of 18,000 which earlier saw Manhattan College beat St. Francis, 47 to 34, in Madison Square Garden.

New York University blew an early 8-to-3 lead and trailed at the half, 18 to 12. In the final stanza the Violets tied the Irish, 25 to 25. From then on the lead seesawed until the closing minutes, when Notre Dame pushed ahead and remained there.

George Sobrek led the Irish with 15 points while his teammate, Cyrines Singer, had 14. Ed Stevens aided the losers' cause with 11.

Quarles Beaten By Lou Ambers

The match was slow although Ambers clearly demonstrated his superiority.

Yawl Good News Captures 40-Mile Cup Race Again

By the United Press

Nassau, Bahamas, Feb. 14.—The Yawl Good News, Robert W. Johnson's 63-foot boat, today captured the 40-mile Governor's Cup race for the second consecutive year.

Good news was followed over the finish line by Belisarius, the 54-foot yawl skippered by E. S. Bradford, jr., of Springfield, Mass.

Gulf Stream, Blue Heron and West Indian followed Good News and Belisarius over the finish line in that order.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor will attend the presentation ceremonies tomorrow night when William Labrot will receive the Duke of Windsor and Nassau Yacht Club trophies for sailing his 54-foot yawl, Stormy Weather, home first in the annual 184-mile Miami-Nassau race yesterday.

Stormy Weather won the event over seven other boats. It was Stormy Weather's fifth triumph in the eight-year history of the race.

This Morning

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on his vacation his column is being written by other members of The Post sports staff.)

By Tony Neri

Huddled around the inclosure commonly known as the corral in front of the corner drugstore, the cowboys were batting full force in their favorite pastime of throwing the well-known bull. Talk got around to basketball and what has changed the game here in Washington. It seems some of the boys were a trifle irate over the way that the officials were handling the games. Not that the officials are unfair in their decisions but it seems, according to the boys, that the referees are apparently trying to perform for the spectators—and are not attending strictly to business.

NERI

It appears the striped-shirt boys in the last two years have taken to exhibitionism—instead of performing their duty on the basketball court in a workmanlike fashion. The officials seem to be laboring under the illusion that the fans have come to watch them perform instead of the ten players who are trying to make a good game of it.

A well-known referee told this writer that the public likes to see an official who is colorful and that he made it a point to put life into the game with loud outbursts in calling fouls. But does the public want this?

A good, efficient, and fair basketball referee, without any of the contortionist antics, could prove a valuable asset to any ball game. And if an official would work in that vein, no matter how fast a contest is, we believe that the players and the spectators both could appreciate the referee's job on the floor.

There are times when there's not a man on the floor who understands what the referee is saying when he calls a foul. How much better would it be if the ref, who incidentally gets a nice fee for his work, would let the players know what the foul is, and who committed it?

The type of officiating hereabouts is a drift down from the work of referees in New York. But the top officials, including those working big intersectional games in Madison Square Garden, have been told to cut out the funny business and just work the ball games. Basketball takes on the aspect of a three-ring circus when an official constantly barks out his decisions while throwing his body around like a Fiji rubber man. There is enough anguish and antics by the coach on the bench, especially when his team's behind, for the public to enjoy. So do we need a couple of clowns on the floor?

The district has its share of good officials. They have been working local high school and college games for many years. They do a good job. They know what their job is. Is there any need for a side attraction in basketball?

Pro referees are the worst offenders in their outlandish methods of working a game. That may account for the diminished interest in pro basketball. Pro players put on a rougher and slower game than the colleges. The officiating being what it is, is it any wonder that interest in pro basketball has fallen off?

It seems to be the newer officials who have taken to copying the style used by pro league referees.

If basketball officials really think that the public comes to see them perform instead of the teams on the floor, how's about arranging a little contest for the striped-shirt boys. It ought to be interesting to have all the whistle-tootin' Napoleons on the floor at the same time going through their acts, the same acts they use in regulation games. We could arrange the attraction on a local court, say, like Riverside Stadium, and the referees could go to it. How many people would pay their good money to see this kind of an exhibition?

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 14.—Paul Runyan, who gave Sam Snead a pitiless beating in the final round of the 1938 P. G. A. championship, has named Snead the greatest golfer of all time. That Snead has yet to win a major tournament does not matter, Runyan avowed yesterday on the eve of an pearance in the annual sportsmen's show. Snead could have licked Vardon, Jones, Hagen and Sarazen at their peaks, and, Runyan added, Snead soon will come into his own as the complete master of world golf.

CONSIDINE

Snead is known far and wide as the blow-up champion of the universe. He has barely missing winning three of the four open championships in which he played and was an equal bust in his P. G. A. championship appearances. In 1939 he couldn't qualify for the latter tournament. He had the open championship in his grip in 1939 and took an eight on the final hole. He led the field in the 1940 open, with 18 holes to go. Then he shot an 81. All of which makes Runyan's assertion comparatively startling.

"He's been unlucky," the literate little pro explained. "More often than not it has been a case of another fellow shooting miraculous golf, rather than Sam blowing up. That eight he took at Philadelphia wasn't a blow-up. He gambled on a shot and it turned out wrong, that's all. He blew up last year at Cleveland, sure, but that's about the only real crack-up he's had. The day he lost to me in the P. G. A. finals at Shawnee I was nine under par.

Runyan says that Snead hits every shot better than Jones could and characterizes Jones as having had one of the worst long-iron games a great player ever had. "Snead's got tremendous strength and stamina, mixed with finesse around the greens. He can hit the longest, straightest shot of anybody, and yet nobody's better than he is on those delicate chips and putts. On top of all that he has the perfect mind for golf. He can't remember his bad holes. He has no nerves, and that's going to make him last longer than any of us; that's going to keep him from getting a little punchy from too many years in this pretty tense business. A fellow like Ben Hogan will burn out. He's so tense that he even 'presses' at cards."

Runyan rather doubts that Snead's record, when he is finally through, will dwarf Jones' still incomparable feats "the competition's much tougher today than it was even ten years ago," he says. "There are many more top-flight players than there were when Bobby was playing. But Snead's scores over the years will be better than those of any player who ever lived. He'll last longer than any other fellow, for he does the hardest things with ease, and without worry. Most golfers begin to slip after they're 31, though you run into an exception now and then such as Craig Wood, who made a mechanical change in his game and began shooting the best golf of his life at 38. Sam will wear for another 10 or 15 years."

Runyan ranks open Champion Lawson little near the bottom of his top-flight listings. He rates Snead at No. 1, by himself, couples Hogan and Byron Nelson at No. 2; Ed Oliver and Clayton Heafner at No. 3; Craig Wood and Lloyd Mangrum at No. 4, and links Jimmy Demaret, Ralph Guldahl, Harry Cooper and Little at the bottom. Little Paul plans to pick up the winter golf tour in St. Petersburg in a couple of weeks, after demonstrating to the sportsmen's show customers how, and how not to smite that evilest of all spheroids.

The broadcasters pet nightmare comes to life tomorrow night at the Garden in the New York A. C.'s annual Baxter Mile. Fenske, Venzke and Munski are meeting in the big race with Boccali in there as an additional strain on the tonsils. What a spot for Graham McNamee!

Among those expected to be present at the battle of Venzke, Munzke, Fenzki or vice verski, are Nick Kenny, Rud Ronnie, Jack Benny, Jenni Penny, Sonja Henie, Reginald Denny, Harry Lenny, Walter St. Denis, Ruth St. Denis, Ray Kinney, Fred Tenney, and Youngman (Henny).

The junk yard: Umpire Passarella, newest American League arbiter, is a San Antonio house dick during the off-seasons. That's a perfect blend of professions. Gene Sarazen has opened a new type of country club, the Lakeview, in New York. It's members will pay only as much as they use the club, which sounds like a great idea. Watch that kid, Sid Hudson, of the Senators, next season. We know a smart baseball man who'll bet you a hat that Sid will win 23 games. Charlie Callahan, capable publicist for the American Football League, will be wafted in the Army tomorrow by the draft. Greg Rice tries again to break Paavo Nurmi's 16-year-old record for the indoor two-mile race tomorrow night at the Garden. Paavo's mark of 8:58.3 was set in these same N. Y. A. C. games. A sportswriter, tentatively identified as Bob Considine, is trying to get 6-foot-6-inch Al Blozis, Georgetown's great tackle and would-shot-put champ, to take up boxing. Terry Young, the tough kid who fights Danny Barfield in New York tomorrow night, muscled four other boxers out of the way in order to get his workout over in a hurry, yesterday. Seems he was taking his mother to the beauty shop for a new permanent.

Army of Government Table Tennis Stars Open Play Today

Tournament Rivals Clash At Ice Palace

FBIRA Is Leader In Department Lists; Starts at 3 P. M.; Four Classes Booked

With almost 200 Government table tennis experts of both sexes eagerly awaiting the starting signal in the Government Employes Championship Tournament sponsored by The Post and commencing promptly this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Ice Palace courts, the event easily outstrips in total number of entries any similar affair ever staged in the city.

Exactly 36 additional entries were received yesterday, more in the mail and plus the others to be personally delivered, Ice Palace and Post officials are certain the total will pass the 250 goal they have set. The event already is far larger than any table tennis tournament ever held locally.

Commerce Prominent

The Commerce Department has spurted in number of entrants until they are now within striking distance of the FBIRA players, currently at a standstill with a total of 30 players. The War Department added two entrants to total 22 with Commerce at their heels with 20 in all. There is a rumor that a certain department will enter a large number at the last moment in order to win the special trophy which will be presented to that agency entering the largest number of players.

Lou and Stanley Fields, Ice Palace table tennis managers, have worked up a new type of draw that will expedite matters a great deal and give all players an approximate time as to when they will start. Eight high-ranking District players will be in charge of the tournament to facilitate the answering of questions pertaining to rules, method of serving and to act as referees.

The lists will remain open until 2 p. m. in order that Government workers will have an opportunity to reach the Ice Palace after leaving work. Play will start at 3 o'clock.

There are four classifications open, one in each field, so that even the most inexperienced player will have a chance to win one of the four handsome trophies The Post will present to winners or the medals for the runners-up. The classes are:

Class A, for the expert player.
Class B, for the novice.
Class C, for the veteran player—40 years of age or over.
Class D, for all women.

The entry fee is 40 cents, which entitles the entrant to unlimited practice periods and play even though eliminated in the early rounds.

Roy Gerard, Commerce; Jos. B. Robinson, Commerce; Harry LeBovit, Commerce; Seymour Prisand, Commerce; Joseph L. R. Beaulieu, Commerce; Edward O. Tate, Interstate Commerce; Howard F. Winkler, Interstate Commerce; W. B. Clifford, Interstate Commerce; Rip Siegel, War Dept.; Francis B. Fisher, War Dept.; Marvin H. Ness, Treasury; J. P. LeRoy, Treasury; Douglas S. Young, G. P. Coolidge Halts Barons, 33-29; Extra Period

Unimpressed by a Bethesda-Chevy Chase High record that listed only 4 defeats in 18 games, Calvin Coolidge High's youthful quintet last night ignored a bad break that cost them a regulation-time victory and went ahead to win an overtime judgment, 33-29.

It was the main attraction of a double bill at the Barons' gym, Richard Montgomery High, of Rockville, losing by a 28-10 score in the opener to Shepherdstown (W. Va.) High.

Winner of only 4 out of its 11 previous starts, Coolidge appeared a rejuvenated club in the headliner. It was out front by 10-8, 17-12 and 22-19 as the first three periods reached their ends, but with only 20 seconds remaining saw the score tied at 26-26 on a contested technical foul, allowed the Barons on the five-times-out rule.

Ralph Meiklejohn, who had been unable to make a point until then, started overtime scoring for Coolidge with a charity toss. Bob Cremins put the Barons ahead again with a 2-pointer, but Richie Waterman matched the effort. Other baskets by Bassin and Weiklejohn put Coolidge ahead for good.

Paced by the accurate shooting of Center Hodgkin, Briarley turned back the National Training School basketball team, 20-15, yesterday on the Laurel High court.

Card, Terp Ringmen Battle Dixie Teams

C. U. Faces Southwestern Louisiana And Maryland Takes on North Carolina Tarheels Here in Tough Matches

By Al Hailey

Maryland and Catholic Universities will call a halt to a week of post-mortems on their last Saturday night's fight to take on opponents from Dixie tonight.

At College Park, Maryland will top off its annual "All-University" night by clashing with North Carolina's fighting Tarheels. A basketball game with Connecticut's high-scoring quintet will start the night's business at 7:30 p. m.

Out at C. U.'s Brookland gymnasium, the Cardinals face the task of protecting their 13-match winning streak from an attack by Southwestern Louisiana Institute at 8:30 p. m., and already there's talk of a "secret weapon" Coach Eddie LaFond will hurl at the invaders.

Obregon to Fight

The secret weapon is identified as John Obregon, a sophomore lightweight who, unofficial reports have it, will fill the shoes of Leo Gaffney, the Cardinals' 135-pounder who broke his hand against Maryland last week.

Johnny is such a big secret, however, that LaFond refuses to allow his name to be mentioned above a hoarse whisper around the gymnasium and last night was gnashing his teeth and insisting to sports writers that he may have to forfeit in the 135-pound class.

An ugly rumor was out early this week that Fearless Edward had a lightweight in hiding who is apparently better than Gaffney, but the jittery Cardinal coach has all but killed such reports.

Be that as it may, the Cards will have a tough time tonight—secret weapon or not—for the Bulldogs from the bayou country are no pushovers.

Cards Face Tough Foe

Already Southwestern has won five matches this season, including Idaho, the national college champions. Coach George Mitchell and his squad from the Lafayette, La., institute arrived yesterday and rushed through a snappy workout in the C. U gym that only added to LaFond's gloom.

Weakened not only by the loss of Gaffney, but also Leo Houck, jr., the Cards for the third straight week will introduce two newcomers.

Terps Show Better Form Losing, 58-40

Maryland's varsity basketball quintet suffered its seventeenth defeat in as many games as the Indians of William and Mary defeated the Terrapins, 58-40, in the Maryland Coliseum last night.

Len Knox, Indian center, was the top scorer of the evening with 17 points. Charlie Woodward, Terp forward, held the honors in the Maryland bracket with 14. In the opening period, William and Mary held a 24-15 lead. As the second session opened, the Terrapins made a threat with five field goals in succession to mark the score at 26-25. This was the closest any rival has been approached by the Maryland five this season.

In the first half, the Terrapins failed to click as the Indians climbed to a 11-5 lead. Then Vernon Andrews and his brother Ted combined a scoring threat with 12 points to top the William and Mary total at 24-15, as the half whistle blew.

By Bill Burnett

After six stormy weeks of basketball action, the last of the four public school cage teams which will go at one another's throats in the 1941 championship tournament next Friday and Saturday, February 21 and 22, were finally decided upon last night in a double-header at Tech gym.

Joining Roosevelt and Eastern, which had previously clinched places in title play, were Tech, with a rousing 40-25 victory over Central last night, and Western, which lost a 34-27 decision to Eastern in the opener of the same bill but entered the play-off because of a better percentage than Central.

Drawings for the championship meet, the first round of which will be staged Friday at Tech and the consolation and title game Saturday at the same site, will be made early next week, according to James W. Suber, interhigh basketball director.

Tide Game Best

Much more depended on the Central-Tech fray last night, the former having a chance to throw three teams into a deadlock for the last two places in the round robin with a victory, but Eastern's engagement with Western stole the show.

Good basketball market every second of play, the outcome finally hinging on the Tide's last-quarter rush.

A 12-8 Eastern advantage at the end of the first period fizzled to 18-18 at the half. At the three-quarter mark the Tide, bedecked in new white uniforms, was out front 25-24. Then, after three straight foul efforts had been wasted, Moe Schulman rammed a field goal and charity toss through the cords. Neil Craig, Larry Capone and Richie Poston kept the rim shot to clinch the victory.

Schulman Scores

Schulman checked in with 12 points, high for the game, and Jimmy Karas proved best for the Red Raiders. He got two field goals and seven single-pointers, missing none of his foul line tosses. The Tide's victory ultimately resulted from superior floor work and team play, sparked by Schulman, Capone and Craig.

For the first half Central managed to make a battle of its closing-out performance in the series, but the Trainers' class gradually asserted itself. Tech held a 9-8 margin after the first eight minutes and at the half was on the happy end of an 18-13 score. From that point on there was little contest. The winners ran up a 29-18 third-quarter edge, and even with reserves seeing most of the action in the last stanza couldn't be stopped.

For a time it appeared Sam Di Blasi, raw-boned center, would be the only Viking to score. He managed for 15 points throughout, 7 of them comprising Central's first of the game. Nine players contributed to Tech's triumph, eight points by "Shrimp" Brewer, who isn't proving high.

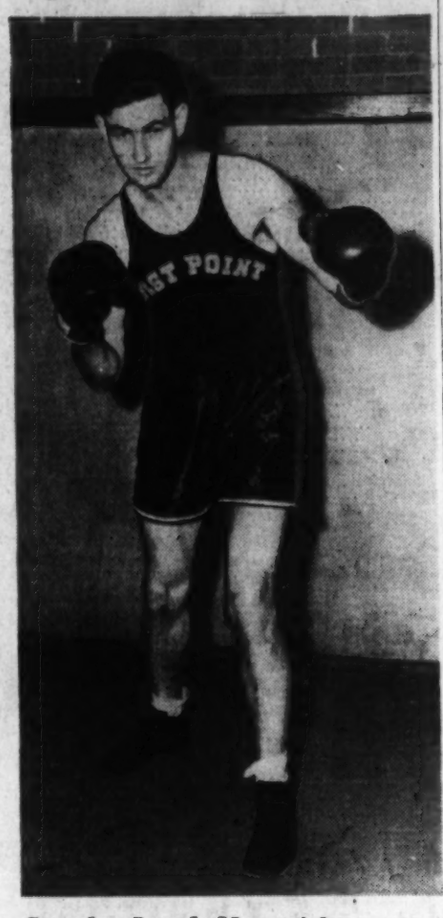
Virginia and Army Meet Again in Ring



Cadet Arvol Allen, Army's 6-foot, 165-pounder, who meets Capt. Fenton Somerville, of Virginia, in a feature of tonight's boxing matches between the two ring-minded schools. Event will be in Memorial Gymnasium, Charlottesville. It is a feature of the midwinter dances

Capacity Crowd to Invade Memorial Gym at Charlottesville Tonight For Dance Week-End Feature

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 14.—The boxing teams of the University of Virginia and the United States Military Academy will meet in the first renewal of their fistic rivalry here tomorrow night before a crowd of around 5,000.

Coming as the sports highlight of the university's winter dance weekend, Memorial Gymnasium is expected to be filled to capacity for the 7:30 start of the opening 120-pound bout between Joe Block, Virginia's undefeated bantam, and Lawrence Lahm, winner of all his matches this season.

Army's tentative 127-pound entry is Henry Halsell, who will face Glenn Connelly, up for his second varsity scrap, while Robert Peden, undefeated West Pointer, will take on Warren Michael, a replacement this week for Don Webster, Virginia's sophomore 135-pounder.

Harry Rising, Army captain, will be Ashby Marshall's foe in the 145-pound bout, and Peter Berkey, 155-pound Cavalier, is slated to draw James Rippin, who won both of his two previous bouts.

Looming as the feature of the evening is the 165-pound rematch between Fenton Somerville, Virginia captain, and Arvol Allen, who decisioned Somerville last year at West Point when dual meet relations were opened with a 4½-to-3½ triumph for the Cadets.

Kenneth Rathbun, Virginia light-heavyweight, will stake his two-year undefeated dual meet record against B. B. Skagga or Frank Clay, a native of Washington, and the heavyweight opponent for Virginia's Guerard Howkins probably will be Ralph White, who split even in two engagements this season.

Winner of Eastern Intercollegiate championships in 1938 and 1939, Army lost only one dual meet last year and comes up to the Virginia meet with a current season's record of three wins and one defeat.

Young Hoyas Beaten, 49-43, By Terp Frosh

Maryland's Old Liner Frosh basket crew swept to a 49-43 victory over the Georgetown freshmen at Ritchie Coliseum yesterday afternoon, sending the Young Hoyas down for the second time this season.

Led by Don Schuerholz, forward, who ripped the cords for 18 points and stole the show for the scoring honors, the Terps were clicking on the attack. In the opening half, the Liners' terrific attack piled up 28 points while the Hoyas were scoring only 11.

However, in the final session the Georgetown crew began to click and with one minute to play cut the winners' lead to 45-43. Two fast field goals by Simler, Liner guard, and Schuerholz boosted the Terrapin total to 49 and the game.

'Slip' Madigan Wins Fight With Tax Appeals Board

E. P. (Slip) Madigan, well known as football coach of St. Mary's College, California, yesterday won his fight in the Board of Tax Appeals against an Internal Revenue Bureau claim that he owed $1,038 income taxes for 1936.

The case centered about St. Mary's custom of making post-season payment to Madigan of 10 per cent of its share of football receipts, in addition to his $7,000 salary.

The board ruled that the bureau had erred in levying 1936 income taxes on remuneration Madigan had not realized until March of the following year.

MADIGAN

The board found that after the Fordham-St. Mary's game at New York City, October 24, 1936, Fordham sent the St. Mary's College Athletic Association a check for $38,324. The president of St. Mary's indorsed the check to Madigan, the board continued, with the understanding that he take $21,690 due him for 1934 and 1935 and wholly balanced in trusts until the accounting could be completed for the 1936 season.

Madigan deposited the check and left the amount untouched, the board found, until after the final accounting with St. Mary's, in March, 1937, which showed he had to return to St. Mary's $1,339.

When Madigan made his income tax return for 1936 he included the $21,690 due him for the 1934 and 1935 seasons, and omitted any amount of the Fordham check attributable to the 1936 season.

The Internal Revenue Bureau held part of the check was taxable as 1936 income.

"No one could tell until after the 1936 accounting whether petitioner (Madigan) would be entitled to any commission for the season, and certainly not what the amount, if any, would be," the board said in its opinion.

Gonzaga Five Scores Over Indians, 36-27

The 17-point scoring of Franny Counselman, forward, yesterday paced Gonzaga High five to its thirteenth triumph against five losses this year, a 36-27 decision over Anacostia at the Indians' gym.

Breaking a 6-6 tie after the first period the Purple rushed into an 18-10 edge at the half and was never in danger thereafter. Going into the last quarter they led, 24-15.

Seconding Counselman in the scoring department was Bob Mulvihill, center, who contributed 13 markers. Anacostia's best scorer was Elmer Leukhardt, with 7 points.

Cardoza High Rallies, Beats Phelps, 38-35

Cardozo High School's colored basketball champions had to battle into two overtime periods to turn back Phelps Vocational five, 38 to 25, yesterday in a conference game at the Banneker Recreation Center.

At the end of the regulation playing time the score was deadlocked at 32-all. The first overtime period ended also in a stalemate at 35 to 35. In the following extra stanza, Cardozo tallied 3 points, while holding the opposition scoreless.

Phelps, decided underdogs before the game, put up a stubborn fight all the way. They held a comfortable lead of 17-5 at half-time, but Cardozo's rally tied the score at the end of the third quarter at 21-21.

Guard Evans led Phelps point-makers, with 13, while Mason was high for Cardozo, with 12.

Star Missing, Riders Still Beat Johnnies

Though Hymie Perlo, captain and high scorer of the team was absent from the lineup, Roosevelt High's cage crew had little difficulty with the St. John's High five yesterday, using two full teams in winning, 51-31.

The victory at the Rider gym was Roosevelt's eleventh in 17 games this season, and the loss the Johnnies' seventeenth in 21.

In Perlo's absence, Charley Howard took over the scoring show with an 18-point total. Four players, Frank Ciango and Tom Robertson, of Roosevelt, and St. John's Buddy Spiess and Dick Hathaway, had 10 points apiece.

Two Jockeys Seriously Injured in Bad Spill at Hialeah Park

Giangaspro In Hospital After Mishap

Two Horses Pile Up On First Turn in 7th Race; Jayfcee Wins Feature Race

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 14.—Two jockeys were injured here today when their mounts went down on the first turn during the seventh race. Both were apprentice boys. J. Giangaspro received a bad cut behind the right ear and a possible fractured skull and was sent to Jackson Memorial Hospital for further examination and treatment. Track reports were that he was in serious condition. Harry Meynell was believed to have a fractured collarbone but was treated at the track first-aid quarters.

The first turn is obscured from the sight of most grandstand patrons, but those who could see the accident said Giangaspro's mount, Bay Stout, broke down and Mobcap, piloted by Meynell, fell over the elderly mare.

The event was a mile-and-a-quarter affair for ordinary platers. Savitar, the $6.80-for-$2 choice in the field of 12, led all the way, attended by White Front. The latter lost out by a nose. Egress was a distant third.

The Lexbrook Stable's Jayfcee, one of the most improved and consistent horses of the season, continued on his winning way today. With Wendell Eads on his back, the 6-year-old gelding which started the Florida winter campaign running as a $2,000 plater led for the entire seven furlongs of the featured Grade "C" event, clicking by a length in 1:23 4/5. He was an 11-to-10 favorite on eight rivals.

Lemar Stock Farm's Mar Le, under Conn McCreary, finished second, two full lengths before Joseph Pepp's No Sir. A crowd of 12,490 cheered for the popular Jayfcee.

SEVENTH DAY, eased off the pace to the stretch turn, moved up strong while saving ground and then taken around the leader, finished gamely to win going away. BLUE LILY displayed high speed under light restraint in the early stages, but stopped suddenly in the final sixteenth mile. LAATOKKA, blocked while endeavoring to steal through at the furlong pole, pulled up and came around to finish stoutly. CIS MARION closed a big gap.

CHARITABLE broke fast and drew clear while crossing the field, set a swift pace thereafter, but was under extreme urging to withstand RIFTED CLOUD'S challenge. RIFTED CLOUDS saved ground entering the stretch and gained steadily, but could not overhaul the winner. ARMOR BEARER, vigorously ridden, made up much ground in the last quarter mile. BRIGHT TRACE went forwardly the entire trip.

JAYFCEE set a rapid pace from the start, shook off repeated challenges from his opposition in the early stages and had little left at the end. MAR LE moved up stoutly on the stretch turn and closed gamely, but could not reach the winner. NO SIR, outrun the first half mile, gained along the inner rail thereafter and finished well. TIMEFUL closed a good gap.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:06. Off 5:07. Winner, Mrs. C. F. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAVITAR, $6.80, $4.20, $2.80; WHITE FRONT, $4.40, $3.40; EGRESS, $4.20.

SAVITAR went to the front at the break to take command and held a safe margin to the stretch, then responded gamely when challenged and outlasted WHITE FRONT at the end. The latter, in closest attendance of the winner right from the start, made a bold bid in the final stages, but just missed. EGRESS, always close up, failed to threaten in the drive. SICKLE BILL, far back the first mile, closed fast in the stretch run.

INTERLACE went to the front at once, opened up a safe lead on the far side and won with speed in reserve. STAIRS, outrun in the first half mile, gained steadily on the leaders and closed well, though no match for the winner. LA JOYA, always close up, failed to threaten in the drive. BROWN SLAVE, never far out of the running, was unable to better her position through the stretch. AMNESTY showed speed for three-quarters, then quit badly.

Rookie 'Rube' Melton Signs Phils Contract

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (AP).—Frank "Rube" Melton, rookie pitcher whose drafting by the Phillies prompted an investigation by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, has signed his 1941 contract, President Gerald P. Nugent announced today.

Melton was drafted from Columbus on the American Association last fall. Landis absolved the Phils of a charge that they drafted Melton with the intention of turning him over to Brooklyn.

Selections at Hialeah Park.

Dear Al:

George Perry, the Marlboro hotel man who specializes in owning Mowlee horses who can run, has been visiting at Hialeah. He was on the Manhattan when she grounded at Palm Beach. Perry had the unusual experience of leaving home for a fling at the Santa Anita races and when the ship went on the bar he came down to the Florida track. Perry, however, left the other day for California, but not on the Manhattan. Jockey Tommy Fowler, came to Washington due to the death of his father. Friends are glad to learn that Bob Smith, former trainer for Mrs. Isabel Dodge, has recovered from illness. Trainer Bob Robertson is on the ailing list. He is "bedded down" with a case of flu. Along with the running of the $10,000 added McLennan Memorial Handicap, the first of Hialeah's "Big Three" stakes today, a sunner-up feature, "The Stagehand," has been carded that carries a distinctive equine sentiment. Stagehand will not be on hand, but there will be any number of turf patrons in the crowded Hialeah stands who will emember the gallant son of Sickle—Stagecraft. For it was at Hialeah that the Maxwell Howard colorbearer made his final appearance under silks just two years ago. Stagehand won the 1939 renewal of the McLennan Memorial and was the "name horse" of that season on the Miami Jockey Club grounds. He had come up to the $50,000 added Widener as a popular choice only to run third to Bull Lea and Sir Damion. That was his last racing appearance. Previously, Stagehand had been the outstanding horse of the 1938 season, running up a total purse earnings of $189,710 as a 3-year-old. In California he won the $50,000 added Santa Anita Derby and then added further to his prestige by beating Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, a feat which no other horse has been able to duplicate. Seabiscuit later went on to become the world's leading money-winning thoroughbred, with the astonishing total of $437,740. Stagehand also won the Empire City Handicap, Narragansett Special and Governor's Handicap the same year. Stagehand went into retirement with a total earnings of $200,110 and is now at the Runnymeade Farm, owned by Johnson N. Camden, chairman of the Kentucky Racing Commission.

BILL.

First race—HIS SHADOW appears nicely placed in the opening event and may take the major portion of the purse. WALLINGFORD has worked well and should have some backing. TRUE HEART to take care of the others.

Second race—BIG BRANDS SON ran with a somewhat similar field last out and may make it two in a row in this company. Has the speed to get in front and will have to be caught. FORE ISUS has a bit of class and is dangerous. HIGH BLAME for the minor money.

Third race—SWEET SHOW'NO has stretch-running ability and may be able to get up in time to defeat such as these. I'm going to take my chances. SIR REG is fairly solid and belongs close to the top. HONEY BOAT could be in the pay circle.

Fourth race—COMMENDADOR II looks like one I'm trying to run down. Appears to be improving and I'm going to string along. PHOEBUS has taken two purses so far and is a dangerous contender. BROWN BEN to take the third position.

Fifth race—THE RHYMER tossed off one last out but has plenty on the ball and with different handling could take it all in this field. BOSTON MAN is much improved and will be a keen factor. LLANERO is a possibility.

Sixth race—GET OFF probably needed that last. Gets a good figure and will have to be beaten. MANY STINGS loves the track and is good now. JOE SCHENCK has been working briskly and promises to be in the thick of the battle.

Seventh race—WOODEN INDIAN has had several chances. This spit could be the right one. BETTY'S BOB and NAVARIN figure high and will battle it out if I have overestimated the top follow.

Eighth race—OVERSIGHT gets my call in the day's finale. Everything seems to suit his purposes. YOU ALONE and SANDY BOOT may hold the others safe.

Best bet—THE RHYMER.

Your Income Tax

Prepared by Bureau of Internal Revenue, Treasury Dept.

Deduction for Bad Debts

Bad debts constitute a considerable item in the returns of many taxpayers and may be treated in one of two ways—either by deduction from gross income in respect to debts ascertained to be worthless either in whole or in part and charged off, or by a deduction of a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts. Taxpayers were given an option for 1921 to select either of the two methods. The method used in the return for 1921 must be used in returns for subsequent years unless permission is granted by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to change to the other method. Application to change must be made at least 30 days prior to the close of the taxable year for which the change is to be effective. However, a taxpayer filing a first return for 1940 may select either of the two methods, subject to the approval of the Commissioner upon examination of the return. Permission to adopt the reserve method is limited to taxpayers having a large number of accounts where credit is extended over a considerable period of time. It is not granted for the purpose of handling one specific debt.

What constitutes a "reasonable addition" to a reserve for bad debts must be determined in the light of the facts, and will vary as between classes of business and with conditions of business prosperity. It will depend primarily upon the total amount of debts outstanding as of the close of the taxable year, those arising currently as well as those arising in prior taxable years, and the total amount of the existing reserve. In case subsequent realizations upon outstanding debts prove to be more or less than estimated at the time of the creation of the existing reserve, the amount of the excess or inadequacy in the existing reserve should be reflected in the determination of the reasonable addition necessary in the taxable year. A taxpayer using the reserve method should show in his return the volume of charge sales (or other business transactions) for the year, and the percentage of the reserve to such amount, the total amount of notes and accounts receivable at the beginning and end of the taxable year, and the total amount of the debts ascertained to be worthless and charged against the reserve during the taxable year.

Increased War Tension Topples Stocks; Leaders Off $1 to $3 in Heavy Sales

By Frederick Gardner
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Feb. 14.—The stock market today took one of its worst tumbles in more than three months as speculative and investment sentiment was further chilled by increasing war tension in the Orient and southeaster Europe.

Heavy industrials, including steels, motors, aircrafts and "blue chip" specialties, bore the brunt of selling which toppled prices 1 to 3 points generally and as much as 5 in isolated cases.

The list dipped at the start, then revived under mild buying. Activity dwindled on the comeback, but picked up in the final hour, during which the largest turnover of the session was recorded. While there were scattered spots of resistance, quotations generally finished among the day's lows.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 1.2 points to 39.8, a new bottom since June 13, last. It was the biggest day's recession for the composite since November 6. Tranfers of 933,740 shares compared with 642,940 yesterday, largest volume since December 31.

In addition to increasing fears of an upset in the Far East and a German push through Bulgaria, financial quarters expressed more apprehension over rising taxes. Notwithstanding fairly favorable business news, bearishness was pronounced at the conclusion of the day's market proceedings.

DuPont lost 5 and Westinghouse 4. Off 2 to more than 3 were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, U. S. Gypsum, Kress, Philip Morris, Great Northern, American Can, Eastman Kodak, J. I. Case and Allied Chemical.

Lesser declines were shown for General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, General Electric, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing and Texas Corporation.

Higher wage expectations clouded the steels, although near-capacity operations were being maintained in most centers. Motors were unable to get ahead despite the fact this week's output of new cars was only slightly under that of the week before.

Some staples such as tin, rubber, zinc and silk shot up substantially in the forenoon but backed away at the last. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to off ¼ of a cent a bushel and corn down ⅛ to up as much. Cotton receded 35 to 55 cents a bale.

Among Curb stocks in arrears fractions to more than 3 points were Colts Patent Firearms, Venezuelan Petroleum, Bell Aircraft, Humble Oil, American Cyansmid "B," Lake Shore and Phoenix Securities. Trades here approximated 196,000 shares versus 179,000 yesterday.

Bond market prices underwent the severest hammering since last fall as traders and investors viewed with increasing alarm happenings in other parts of the world likely to have a direct bearing upon United States economy.

Losses ranged from 1 to 3 points among active rails, industrials and utilities and up to 5 among inactive foreign issues. High-priced domestic loans generally acted with more restraint but here too declines predominated.

The Associated Press average of 20 rail bonds dropped .9 of a point to 60.3, a new 1941 low, and 10 utilities used in the compilation averaged .3 of a point lower at 99.2, likewise a new bottom this year.

As in most sessions since the market has been skidding, the fresh decline was accomplished on comparatively light turnover. Total sales amounted to $7,774,900, par value, compared with $6,637,700 on Thursday. The wide breaks and light volume has been due to withdrawal of bids by those who want to defer new commitments until the international scene brightens, brokers said.

United States Governments were slightly more active than on Thursday and ended down 2-32 of a point to 1.8 points.

Obligations of world powers directly in the news from abroad gave way hurriedly in the foreign dollar department. These included Japan 5½s and 6½s, New South Wales 5s, Australian 4½s and Wurttemburg Electric 7s.

Cotton Use Sets Record In January

By the Associated Press

Reflecting heavy military and civilian demand for textiles, consumption of raw cotton by American mills was reported by the Census Bureau yesterday to have totaled 843,274 bales in January, establishing a new monthly record. The previous record was 776,942 bales, established in March, 1937.

Consumption of cotton by domestic mills for the six months ended January 31 totaled 4,427,291 bales, compared with 4,041,936 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Cotton consumed during January totaled 843,274 bales of lint and 114,144 bales of linters, compared with 775,472 of lint and 104,536 of linters during December last, and 731,793 of lint and 90,843 of linters during January last year.

Exports of domestic cotton during January totaled 52,184 bales of lint and 664 bales of linters, compared with 107,375 and 2,181 during December last, and 1,035,416 and 31,450 during January last year.

Rubber Use Sets Record

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—January consumption of crude rubber by manufacturers rose to 64,225 long tons, highest for any month on record, the Rubber Manufacturers Association said today. The previous peak was 57,155 tons in October, 1939. Despite record consumption, domestic sticks were estimated to have increased to 340,857 tons, up 7 per cent from the end of December and 139 per cent ahead of January, 1940.

Cotton Futures

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Cotton futures dropped 7 to 11 points today under domestic and foreign selling inspired by bearish news from New York, Washington and Liverpool. Even the report that January consumption of cotton was a record for any month acted as a depressant. The market had anticipated still larger use. Other drags on prices included soggy securities markets, discontinuance of the export subsidy on cotton goods sent Canada and Cuba, and uncertainty over possible closing of the Liverpool cotton futures market (which would divert outside hedging to the local market).

Worth Street textile dealers reported sales totaled several million yards.

Bond Weakness Reduces Week's New Offerings

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Weakness in the bond market this week threw a monkey wrench into the machinery for issuing new securities.

Public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday fell to $15,098,750 compared with $84,748,125 the previous week, Poor's publishing Co. reported today. It was the first week this year that new offerings fell below the corresponding period a year ago.

Since the firs tof the year long-term Treasury bonds have fallen off about 4 points, a bit more than they gained in the post-election rally.

Attendant declines in high-grade corporate issues have caused some institutional buyers to await developments, bankers said. This attitude has been strengthened by several recent issues selling below their offerings prices.

N. Y. Central Net In Year Jumps To $11,265,084

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—New York Central system showed an increase of 150 per cent in net income after fixed charges in 1940 over 1939.

The system reported today net income after fixed charges in 1940 of $11,265,084, equal to $1.75 a share on the capital stock. This compared with $4,509,236, or 70 cents a share in the previous year.

Total railway operating revenues in the year were $370,545,875, an increase of $29,459,167 over 1939. Railway operating expenses increased $21,790,748 to $278,674,980. Railway tax accruals in 1940 amounted to $33,476,091, an increase of $1,740,329 over the preceding year.

In the December quarter net income after fixed charges amounted to $4,000,235, compared with $4,126,402 in the final quarter of 1939.

"Since the beginning of the depression, in only one other year has the net income of the New York Central approached the result for 1940," said F. E. Williamson, president. "In 1936, the best previous depression year, the road's net income after fixed charges amounted to $8,933,174."

Retail Sales Mount 29% Here in Week

Washington department store sales continued at a merry clip in the week ended February 8, soaring 29 per cent above the same 1940 week. The gain for the Fifth District was 28 per cent, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. In the four weeks ended February 8, Washington store sales were 24 per cent over the like 1940 period.

Given a substantial boost by Lincoln's Birthday promotions, this week's retail trade nationally showed gains ranging from 9 to 15 per cent over the comparable period last year in dollar volume, the Dun & Bradstreet weekly survey said yesterday.

The increase was described as the largest for any corresponding period since 1930.

"Broadcast gains over the 1940 level," said the survey, "were still concentrated largely in Southern and Midwestern cities, although there was increasing evidence of the spread to other sections.

"Mail orders calling for immediate delivery bulked heavy in wholesalers' new business. Forward covering on staple and semi-staple goods also continued active. Deliveries remained the major concern and in lines most closely related to defense needs buyers were attempting to meet requirements for many months ahead.

"As a rule, however, commitments were limited to 90 days. Speculative purchasing was said to be very little in evidence and in many instances the rate on inventory expansion was found to be lagging slightly in relation to sales increases."

Tobey Queries Roosevelt Over Destroyer Issue

Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, made public a telegram to President Roosevelt late yesterday asking the Chief Executive to clear up "befuddlement" over the question of giving England additional destroyers.

Tobey recalled testimony by Wendell Willkie that the United States send "five or ten destroyers a month" to England, and then noted that Secretary Knox had asserted the Navy had no more destroyers to spare.

The "effect of these directly conflicting statements . . . each after a conference with you, is one of befuddlement," Tobey told the President.

At a press conference earlier in the day, Mr. Roosevelt, in response to an inquiry about the "seeming difference of opinion" between Knox and Willkie, the President said he had nothing to add to what Stephen Early, his press secretary, had said. Early asserted Thursday that while there had been differences of expression there was no controversy between the President and Knox or Willkie on the destroyer question.

Rome Forbids Foreign Newsmen To Leave City

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Feb. 14.—Foreign newspapermen, all of whom are concentrated in Rome, were notified today that they may not leave the capital without permission. The measure which has been expected ever since foreign diplomats were advised that they, too, must keep to Rome.

Recently all foreigners were asked to leave Sicily and the Neapolitan area, but the measure was later postponed. Now there is talk of Genoa becoming a forbidden area. The idea is to concentrate as many foreigners as possible in Rome, where they can be supervised and where they can see nothing of great military interest.

Italian Visas Canceled

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Feb. 14.—All passengers aboard the Simplon-Orient express were halted at Rakek, on the Yugoslav-Italian frontier, today and told that their visas are invalid for entry into Italy, according to dispatches this evening.

The Italian authorities advised the travelers that all outstanding Italian visas had been canceled and must be renewed at the nearest Italian consulate.

German Ration Trial Frees Wife Of Horse Eater

Berlin, Feb. 14 (AP).—A neighbor was testifying against a hausfrau accused of violating rationing laws.

"With my own eyes I saw big pieces of meat—sometimes whole legs of animals—hanging in the defendant's pantry," the witness said.

Police testified they searched the house, but found no meat.

Then came the defendant.

"Why certainly," she said, "there have been whole legs of animals in my pantry."

The court was astounded. She continued:

"You see, it is this way. My husband is extremely fond of horsemeat. He says filet of horse is the greatest delicacy. Even in peacetime we always have horsemeat for Sunday dinner."

The judge said, "Not guilty." Horsemeat is not rationed.

D. C. Chauffeurs Cut Corners On Dance Floor at Frolic

Chauffeurs' uniforms and the purr of 12-cylinder motors gave way last night to soup and fish and swing music. Washington limousines stayed home in the garage and in the new ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel the annual ball of the Benevolent Association of Private Chauffeurs held sway.

Nearly 1,500 persons thronged the floor and they weren't all chauffeurs and their families. The boss and his wife were there too.

"Do you rumba, madam?" asked a dignified looking fellow who six hours earlier had queried of the same lady, "Where to, madam?"

Actually the association, which has rigid membership requirements, has only 90 members. The large crowd had been encouraged to turn out not alone for the festivity of the function. A $700 cardiograph will be presented to Children's Hospital out of the proceeds, it was reported.

Among those on the dance floor were:

Dignitaries Pay Final Tribute To Msgr. Thomas

Most Rev. John W. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of the Baltimore and Washington archdioceses, celebrated the pontifical requiem mass, for Msgr. Thomas, whose body had lain in state since Wednesday. The Very Rev. Msgr. Lawrence Sheehan of St. Patrick's, was assistant priest.

The Rev. Francis Montgomery, of St. Michael's Church, Frostburg, Md., was deacon and the subdeacon was the Rev. Francis Kelly, of Our Lady of Victory Church here. Both priest's choir sang. Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

British Blacklist Is Latest Trouble Of Mission Ship

New York, Feb. 14.—The American rescue ship mission, already plagued by accusations of Communist domination and by the resignation of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and other prominent sponsors, ran into new difficulties tonight when the British placed the steamship Lovcen, under charter to the mission, on its blacklist.

The Lovcen was to have sailed from New York on February 27 to transport interned Spanish loyalists from Casablanca, French Morocco, to Mexico, where they are to be given refuge. The ship was to have evacuated 450 refugees on its initial trip. The specific reason for the blacklisting was not given.

With the March 15 deadline for filing Federal income tax returns drawing unpleasantly close, exactly a month away as a matter of fact, WJSV and the Columbia Broadcasting System tonight brings you a perhaps sad, but necessary, reminder of their importance in "Report to the Nation."

Although special emphasis is to be placed on the 1941 income tax, Director Brewster Morgan intends to give you a dramatic idea of the whole story of taxation in this country, beginning with those which were responsible for the Revolution and, as a result, our country, and tracing the various forms which have grown up since that time, including, of course, the income tax.

How the work of the Internal Revenue Bureau is important in other ways than gathering money, however, will be illustrated with an excerpt showing how it was the bureau's work that was responsible for imprisoning such racketeers as Al Capone.

This "Report to the Nation," originating in the studios of WJSV and heard from 6 to 6:30 p. m., is the twelfth in the series designed to advise the people of the Nation on the functions of the Federal Government.

Also on a topic of current importance, "The People's Platform," over WJSV at 7 o'clock tonight, has as its topic "Will Aid to Britain Lead the U. S. Into War?"

The Post Radio Time Table

1:30 p. m., WJSV—Representatives Clarence J. Brown (Republican), of Ohio; John M. Coffee (Democrat), of Washington; Francis E. Walter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, and Karl E. Mundt (Republican), of South Dakota, join the No Politics blitz.

2:00, WMAL—"The Love of Three Kings," from the Metropolitan Opera.

2:30, WJSV—The story of Abraham Lincoln is told by students of Roosevelt High School on Heroes of Democracy.

6:00, WJSV—With March 15 fast approaching, Report to the Nation discusses "Taxation."

7:00, WJSV—"Will Aid to Britain Lead the United States Into War?" William L. White, Edward Hart, John T. Flynn and Amos R. E. Pinchot talk of this on People's Platform, extending its time to 45 minutes.

9:35, WMAL—Toscanini conducts the N. B. C. Orchestra: "Joachin" Symphony, Schubert; "Toy" Symphony, Haydn; "Symphony Concertante for Violin, Viola and Orchestra," Mozart, and "Voices of Spring," Johann Strauss.

Contract Bridge

Here is a piece of bad luck which befell Elmer J. Babin, retiring president of the American Contract Bridge League, when he was playing in the finals of the open-pair championship at Philadelphia last December.

Mr. Babin is regarded as one of the strongest bridge players in his native city of Cleveland, and he has won many championships; but this hand did not contribute any match points to his total.

His overcall is not too bad. He has a five-card suit, full of holes, it it true; and his partner has passed. Perhaps, as the Scotch proverb runs, he might better have "saved his breath to blow his porridge," as he wound up taking three tricks at a contract to win seven, and thus paid a penalty of 1,100 points to save a non-vulnerable game which had not yet been bid. His opponents were Weiss, West, and Howard Zacks, East.

Winning the opening lead with the jack, West returned the spade eight, which was covered with the nine, and won with the ten by Mr. Zacks. Another club put West in once more to lead his last spade, which was won by the seven when North finessed the six.

Mr. Zacks now led a low diamond, which was ducked in dummy, and the queen took in the West hand. Another round of clubs gave East a chance to discard a low heart, and when still another club was led North ruffed but East discarded another heart instead of overruffing. North now cashed the heart ace, but East ruffed the king, and led the diamond jack. The king covered and the ace won, and then the ten of diamonds was cashed.

East still had the ace of trumps, and North had a headache. He was set four, losing four spades, three clubs and three diamonds.

Dictatorship In U. S. Seen if Britain Falls

Leland Stowe, veteran war correspondent whose eyewitness stories of Nazi invasion in Norway drew praise from newspapermen throughout America, appeared at the Town Hall of Washington yesterday to tell his audience that:

"If we let Britain down by not sending supplies I will stake my life that we will have a civil war or dictatorship in this country within five years."

Stowe, who returned from Europe a week ago, had been abroad as correspondent for the Chicago Daily News since September, 1939.

Civil war or dictatorship here, he explained, would be in consequence of British defeat. But, he added, "I don't think Britain will be defeated, unless we let her down."

"I know," he continued, "that when Britain fought through till October that Britain would win."

The writer chose as his topic yesterday "Latest European Developments," and interspersed his predictions with recollections of past events.

"If there had been a united Scandinavia," he said, "if Norway had allowed Britain and France to pass through, the war there would have continued. I think it possible that France would still be in the war if such a thing had happened."

More than 300 persons crowded into a hall at the Shoreham Hotel to hear the address.

The recent activities of Japan, which have caused the United States Government to suggest that American citizens return home, Stowe termed a "bluff." He felt, he said, that Japan, under Axis insistence, will attempt to cause as much "disturbance" as possible without involving herself in a war with America.

Japan's activity at the moment, he declared, is a move "to bolster isolationists in the United States."

U. S. May Pay Larger Share Of PayRollTax

By the Associated Press

Hershey, Pa., Feb. 14.—George E. Bigge, member of the Social Security Board, said today that the Federal Government's share of the 3 per cent employer pay-roll tax soon might be increased from 0.3 per cent to 1 per cent and the States' share reduced from 2.7 per cent to 2 per cent.

This, he told a conference of employment security agencies of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware was strictly an unofficial opinion, but seemed to him to sum up numerous proposed changes in the unemployment compensation framework.

"This suggestion," he said, "is that the present 3 per cent Federal tax be retained and a 2 per cent offset for State taxes be allowed instead of the present 2.7 per cent, so that the Federal Government would collect 1 per cent of pay rolls for purposes of unemployment compensation (instead of the present 0.3 per cent).

"This would be deposited in a special fund from which withdrawals would be made to cover grants to the States both for administration and for benefit payments above a certain rate. The States would thus have a basic 2 per cent tax rate instead of 2.7 per cent. When cost rose above 2 per cent of pay rolls in any State, it is suggested that the Federal Government pay three-fourths of the excess cost."

Bigge said the effect would be to create a "Federal pool" or fund upon which States could draw whenever their 2 per cent of the tax did not provide enough money to meet unemployment insurance claims.

He referred to the Federal 1 per cent as an "equalization fee," equalizing the national cost between States with heavy and light claims.

With reserves in some States down to one year's benefit, he said, the problem of increasing the funds must be faced in the very near future.

G. U. President Stresses Defense Leader Training

The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of Georgetown University, who Thursday addressed the undergraduate student body at the midwinter convocation in Gaston Hall, stressed the service that educational institutions can render for national defense by developing youthful leaders.

"The welfare of any national activity will depend on the leaders, and therefore upon their training," he said. Dr. O'Leary enumerated various ways in which Georgetown University is endeavoring "to cooperate 100 per cent with the Government" and emphasized the fact that 507 of its students had volunteered this year for training in the infantry and medical R. O. T. C. units.

The honor roll follows:

Seniors—George A. Christy, District of Columbia, and Alvin J. Cummins, Chevy Chase, Md.
